

GRAND CIRCLE TAKES DAY OFF TO FROLIC ON RIVER

Delegates to the Grand Circle, Women of Woodcraft, as They Were Posed for a Journal Photographer Yesterday Afternoon.

Pleasure grand work off the program of the grand circle of the Women of Woodcraft in the fifth quadrennial session in Portland, yesterday afternoon and evening. Business was chopped off after a session of an hour in the morning.

Early in the evening dinner was served at the Oaks, where the trip was concluded. Here, again, the visitors were the guests of the local circles. Today will consist of junketing. No business will be transacted. During the day members of the local circles will meet the visitors at the Women of Woodcraft temple, Tenth and Taylor streets. Most of the delegates have planned trips about the city in automobiles.

Reading of the report of the grand manager, Florence Wehrey, Dr. Lillian Pollock, Clara Hillix, Cora Wilson and Annie Hawkins. The managers are in charge of subdivisions of the Pacific Jurisdiction of the order.

Also it was shown by the report that the equalization fund, which stood at $164,000 in 1935, had been raised to $140,000. The stability of the securities in which the surplus of the order is invested was emphasized in the report.

Explained in the report that more than $100 of the coupons had been recovered and that the others would be collected soon. Two attempts were made to cash the coupons in New York. Both times suspicion was directed toward their holder, and he ran away, leaving the papers lying on the bank desk. None of the coupons have been paid.

Monday will begin a week of hard work for the delegates and grand officers. Saturday the resolutions and grievance committee was instructed to prepare an entire revision of the constitution and by laws of the Pacific jurisdiction and some few of the new amendments will probably comprise a part of the work which the visitors will face Monday.

Plans for adding a third story to the temple at Tenth and Taylor streets will be considered, and the question of the improvement probably voted on.

CRACK SHOTS OF GUARD ON RANGE

Representatives of the Third and Fourth Oregon Regiments Compete Today.

Major F. S. Baker, Chief Range Officer.

Over 100 National Guardsmen, representing the companies composing the Third and Fourth regiments of infantry and the coast artillery reserve organization, are assembled on the new United States rifle range at Clackamas, preparatory to entering the annual state rifle competition, which begins this morning and will continue for three days.

Teams of five men each from Ashland, Albany, Astoria, Bendleton, Woodburn, Oregon City, Cottage Grove, McMinnville, Baker City, The Dalles, two teams from Eugene and six from Portland, will enter the lists and contest for the various trophies and prizes.

Adjutant General Finzer will have charge of the competition in the capacity of executive officer, and Major F. S. Baker will be chief range officer. The other officers detailed for duty at the meet are: Captain L. H. Knapp, Portland, quartermaster; Major Creed C. Hammond, Eugene, range officer; Captain C. E. Winn, Albany, commissary; Captain Albert E. Jenkins, Portland, statistical officer; Captain M. S. Kline, Bendleton, range officer; First Lieutenant Eugene Moshberger, Woodburn, range officer; First Lieutenant John E. Hibbard, camp adjutant; First Lieutenant G. A. White, Portland, ordnance officer; First Lieutenant Harry K. Metcalf, Eugene, range officer; Second Lieutenant Spencer, Portland, range officer.

RUMELIN BUYS THREE STORY BUILDING

Charles E. Rumelin closed a deal yesterday with the Oriental American Importing company for the purchase of a three-story concrete building and 100 by 150 foot lot on the southwest corner of Twentieth and Wilson streets. The consideration involved in the transaction was $50,000.

MEN FLOGGED TILL THEY DIE

Japanese Officials Return to the Old Methods With Their Criminals.

Tokio, July 31.—Considerable surprise has been occasioned in the far east by the discovery that at times men are still being flogged alive in Formosa. It is said that such extreme measures have been resorted to with a view to stamping out the vice of gambling, which is an inveterate habit of the Chinese inhabitants of the island and does much to hinder the effective administration of government. Japanese officials appear to be convinced that occasional recourse to ancient native methods of punishment is the only way to discourage it.

The Japanese police arrested seven men charged with gambling. They asserted their innocence, but under a few strokes from the bamboo agreed to confess. Subsequently they admitted that the confession was conceded only to escape further flogging. But the miseries of the culprits had only begun, and each was sentenced to 80 strokes of the bamboo. The punishment was to be distributed over several days at so many blows a day.

The Japanese official who administered the flogging is reported to have greatly exceeded the number of strokes imposed by the sentence. Apparently he acted on the theory that so long as he completed the number required by the court he was at liberty to inflict as many more as he felt like.

On Monday the prisoners were released and sent home. That night two of them died. Two more are now in the hospital. The matches in which National Guardsmen only are entered, there will be a number of events open to civilians. The open matches will take place today, while Monday and Tuesday the range will be for the exclusive use of members of the National Guard.

STAGE FAVORED BY BISHOP OF LONDON

London, July 31.—Dr. Temple, bishop of London, has declared the stage a playground, and coupled the stage with the church as one of the most powerful influences on the life of modern man.

"Looking around London," said the bishop, "there are two things which I see and which I name as the two most powerful influences upon the life of the people, and those are the church and the stage. In the church, I see the power of the cross, and in the stage, I see the power of the screen. Some people here may say the stage and the church, but I will not argue that."

PET DOG HAS WHOOPING COUGH

New York, July 31.—A score of little folks who are friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Norris, East Orange, N. J., were grieved to learn of the sudden illness of their friend and playmate, Foxy. Foxy is a terrier and has spent most of his four happy years of his life in company with the children of the block.

BRADY CARVES SPUD; NO DIAMOND IN IT

New York, July 30.—William A. Brady, the theatrical manager, stood on the Cunard line pier surrounded by a crowd of fellow passengers who had crossed with him on the steamship Campana, who watched with interest and amusement while Manager Brady deftly cut a huge potato into eight parts to show there was no jewelry in it that he was trying to get into the country without paying duty on. A number of sharp eyed customs inspectors also watched the cutting of the potato, and told him he might go and make any use of the potato he saw fit.

The potato weighed between two and three pounds, and was a prize product. It was raised in a district of

COST OF LIVING AT WEST POINT

Toledo, Ohio, July 31.—In comparison of the cost of running the United States Military academy at West Point and the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Isaac R. Sherwood, Democratic member of congress from the Ninth district of Ohio, an opponent of "militarism and imperialism," asks whether the $2,541,421, which it will cost the government to run West Point this year, is not a woeful waste.

Congressman Sherwood points out that it costs $484 a year to educate a "rich man's son at West Point, while for $448, including board, or only one tenth as much, a student can be educated for one year at the University of Michigan." In this estimate the congressman makes an allowance of

JAPANESE STUDIES AMERICAN PUBLICITY

Philadelphia, July 31.—Sadak Takaki of Osaka, Japan, proprietor of the largest advertising agency in the orient, and the Rev. Toraji Makino, pastor of the Osaka Baptist church, Takaki's interpreter, were guests at a luncheon given by Y. M. C. A. officials of Philadelphia.

Takaki is in America to study advertising methods, and has been in this country about three weeks. He is known as a liberal patron of the Y. M. C. A. Takaki took occasion to pay a high tribute to John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, who, he said, has been the inspiration of the Christian laymen of Japan in supporting denominational work.
