Attorney Henry C. King this morning tarted a moral crusade against the comen of the under world who have women of the under world who have again started operations in the north end. King filed notice with Chief of Police Cox that houses of evil repute were being conducted on the east side of Pourth street between Davis and Everett streets and demanded of him as in officer to do his duty and see that the laws against these places be the laws against these places be obeyed. the same effect and states that he will take the matter up with Mayor Simon his afternoon.

Attorney King received an assurance from Chief of Police Cox this morning that he would see that the public was not annoyed by these people but did not get a definite statement that the women would be ejected. Chief Cox called attention to the fact that the women were not operating in rooms opening on the streets. Constable Lou Wagner, on learning that this notice had been sent out, stated that he would certainly be called upon to enforce the laws.

"When notice is sent to me calling my attention to these immoral practices, which I certainly know are going on, I can do nothing else than go down there and arrest every person whom I find breaking the law.

Attorney King states that he will follow his crusade out to the finish.

"There will be no houses of ill repute running in open violation of the law as long as I am in Portland. I will keep after this as long as there is a house of this kind left in the north end. If the officers fall to do their duty, I will appear before the grand jury as soon as it meets and demand that an investigation is started which will shut up every one of those places."

Thousands of people, learning that the north end had opened, visited the red light district on Saturday night, The police were on hand, keeping the crowds moving, trying to keep a semblance of order, but making no attempt to arrest an of the violators of the law.

It is reported that Tony Arnaud, a saloonkeeper, is said to have secured a lease of 31 rooms, which he has secured a lease of 31 rooms, which he has sublet to the women at $27 a week, this price including their board, or at $18 a week without board. Estimates of the number of women who tried to secure rooms in the district are placed at from 300 to 350 and it is stated that hundreds went to Arnaud and offered substantial bonuses for quarters.

In the present case the amendment originates with the congress. There is no need therefore for summoning a national convention. It rests with congress to decide whether the method of ratification shall be by the state legislature or by a state convention. In this case congress has determined that the ratification shall be by legislature and the states are obliged to conform with the determination.

After the governor of a state receives the resolution properly certified he submits it to the legislature. Here his function ends. He need not even sign the ratification act. A governor of New Hampshire once vetoed an amendment, it was never fully tested in the courts, but it is held by the state department that his action would have no effect. After each house of the state legislature has ratified the act the question is closed so far as that state is concerned. It can never reconsider its action. If it fails to ratify, however, it can reconsider its action after will be effectual. Postoffice Business Points Finger of City's Progress Steadily Upward.

"There is no better evidence of a city's prosperity than its postoffice receipts," said Assistant Postmaster Williamson this afternoon, "which accounts for our feeling so good about the figures for Portland for July."

The business done by the Portland postoffice, money secured from the sale of stamps, from the rent of boxes, from the sale of money orders—everything—totals $64,570.20, as against $56,121.49 for the same month in 1908. This is an increase of $9,448.51—17.14 per cent.

The increase of June receipts over last year was $10,339.48—18.92 per cent. "What does us so much good," said Mr. Williamson, "is that every month shows a good substantial increase over the corresponding month for last year. This shows better than anything else could show that the growth of Portland is steady and substantial."

The experiment is the result of an idea which originated with United States Marshall C. B. In the beginning a pair of Rouen ducks was imported from France, the native ground, and the best specimens of Chinese pheasants were obtained. The initial outlay was something more than $100.
