STEAMERS GIVE LOWEST RATES

Inland Empire Profits by Water Route Transportation.

The fact that freight of all kinds can be transported from Portland to Pendleton and Walla Walla by way of Umatilla and Walla, cheaper by the well equipped steamers of the Open River Navigation company than by the all rail route, has been established by officials of that company.

"If, for instance," said one of them, "instead of sending sugar all the way by rail, the water route were used a part of the way on every shipment from Portland to Pendleton, it would save a saving of 5 cents would be made on every 100 pounds, or $1 on every ton. And this same saving can also be made on practically every class of freight."

"To points this side of Pendleton this saving is even greater on account of the difference in local freight rates on the railroad out of Umatilla, and another reason why the people of that section should recognize the Open River Transportation company is the fact that all of the additional tonnage that the Pendleton and Walla Walla people had to that company will go across the Oregon State Portage road, the amount of freight transported across this road being reported to the government and the larger amount of tonnage reported to them the greater is the strength and stability added to the argument in favor of the early completion of The Dalles-Celilo canal. And the canal once in operation means an immediate material reduction in freight charges in that section of the country."

WESTMORELAND

$9750.00 Is NOT a Large Amount of Money IT'S RATHER MODEST

Fourteen WESTMORELAND lots sold in one day is NOT a great number—in fact, it's rather small, but remember that August is never relied upon in the real estate business to produce any great number of sales, or any great amount of business.

We're going to sell $100,000 worth of ground at WESTMORELAND this month. So far 17 working days have yielded $65,142. Such a record is remarkable for this season, but our unqualified success is simply proof of the unquestionable value of the property we are offering.

Six homes are actually started at WESTMORELAND now, and there's a couple of dozen others in the architects' hands. Solid, substantial proof is being added every day by new and additional activity.

Buy a WESTMORELAND lot and double your money.
