

WILL FEAST ON BAKED SALMON

Portland Delegates to Entertain 1200 Eastern Letter Carriers.

Six delegates will leave Portland Tuesday for the seventeenth annual convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers, which is to be held at St. Paul, Minn., August 24 to September 4. Besides the six, J. S. Roark, chairman of the national committee on laws, will also go from here to attend the session.

The Portland delegates have planned to give the 1200 members of the convention an Oregon luncheon at which will be served whole baked Columbia river salmon and Hood River apples. The salmon is furnished by courtesy of Master Fish Warden H. C. McAllister and the apples have been presented by I. A. Mason of the Hood River Fruit-growers' association.

As the Portland Commercial club has helped the delegates in this affair, the boys will take pains to distribute among all in attendance the new Commercial club booklet and the Hood River booklet, besides boasting the state in every possible way.

The six delegates of the Portland letter carriers are these: John G. Francis, H. E. Coleman, W. P. Lyman, W. F. Brown, Charles H. Dunnigan, A. C. Kraus.

The convention will be addressed by Governor John A. Johnson and Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock and it is expected that such important business will be transacted.

GOES TO HUNT HIS BROTHER'S SCORPSE

O. Callaghan of Philomath, Or., Leaves Seattle for Mount Rainier.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Seattle, Aug. 21.—O. Callaghan of Philomath, Or., brother of T. L. Callaghan of West Seattle, who is believed to have lost his life with J. W. Stevens in a blizzard on Mount Rainier Saturday, has arrived in Seattle.

After consulting with Sidney Sherman and Miss Nellie Sherman of 1608 Forty-sixth avenue, southwest, with whom his brother resided, and Louis M. Sterling, a clerk in the United States customs office, who last saw the missing men alive, Callaghan announced that he would leave for Mount Rainier and there prosecute a determined search for the unfortunate mountaineers. He left this morning.

The latest reports from the mountain say that Joe Stampfer and the other guides who searched for the missing men believe them to be lying in a crevasse at the bottom of some great crevasse.

DR. BROUGHER WILL CONSIDER INVITATION

Dr. Brougher, when asked yesterday concerning the report that his services were to be secured by the Temple Baptist church of Los Angeles, in lieu of those of the Rev. Dr. Burdette, who has recently been forced to resign on account of ill health, stated that the people of Los Angeles have asked for a conference and he will go there to meet the Temple committee.

Dr. Brougher and Dr. Burdette are personal friends. Dr. Brougher supplied the Auditorium pulpit for three Sundays two years ago, as soon as it was known that Dr. Burdette must resign. Dr. Brougher's name was mentioned as the most logical to succeed to that pulpit.

Dr. Brougher will not say what the outcome of the conference will be, nor what he may do in the matter. He is thoroughly satisfied with his church here and he has recently declined offers from important eastern churches.

WORTH A MILLION: HE TOILS IN SHOPS

Omaha, Aug. 21.—Born lucky as well as rich, is the way James P. Stillman figures it out. He is a young man who wears a blue jumper and overalls six days a week in the Union Pacific shops here, earning railroading, and is a nephew of James P. Stillman, said to be worth $50,000,000. He has $1,000,000 of his own and his father is reported to be worth 10 times this sum.

Three weeks ago young Stillman took his vacation, going west. In returning he registered for a claim on the Flathead Indian reservation. Later he received a telegram announcing that he had drawn a claim and that his number is under 3000, which will entitle him to a quarter section of land worth at least $8000.

Asked if he would farm and live on the land for five years, the length of time required, Stillman replied that his job in the shops pays him $60 a month, and that he can hardly afford to give it up.

SEARCHERS RECOVER AUTO VICTIM'S BODY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Seattle, Aug. 21.—The body of Miss Margaret Paul, the last of the victims to be recovered from the tide flats, was recovered about 1 o'clock this morning, 10 feet from where the wrecked automobile lies. A member of one of the searching parties that has been at work since Friday morning made the find. The body of Mrs. J. Colvin was found early this morning.

On account of inability to secure the attendance of necessary witnesses this afternoon, the inquest into the cause of death of the five persons killed Thursday night in the automobile accident at Fourth and Anover streets was postponed indefinitely. It was to have been held at 1 o'clock this afternoon, but probably will take place Monday or Tuesday night in Butterworth's morgue.

GRAND OPERA TO ENTERTAIN PORTLAND

SIGNOR OTERI, BASSO

SIGNOR PELUSO DIRECTOR

The coming engagement of the International Grand-Opera company at the Bungalow the week of September 5 is creating a great deal of interest. The soloists with the company are singers who have made their mark with other companies, and are experienced singers and actors. Undoubtedly this week of grand opera will be one of the greatest treats Portland has had in a long time.

The productions given by the company are declared artistic and complete in every detail. The operas are well staged, the scenery is good, the chorus is well costumed and sings well, and the orchestra does good work. Much of this artistic ensemble is due to the indefatigable efforts of Signor Peluso, the artistic director or general director of the International Grand-Opera company. Signor Peluso was formerly with Hammerstein at the Manhattan in the same capacity, and has amply proved his thorough acquaintance with operatic affairs. He is a good musician as well as a clever business man, and his artistic understanding, coupled with his practical mind, make him a valuable man in this position.

Signor Peluso comes from the same little town in northern Italy from which the famous Bonci came, and he remembers when the great tenor was a youthful clerk in a shoe store, singing in the little church on Sundays that have been his on both sides of the Atlantic. He remembers when Bonci's voice began to attract more than local fame, and finally how he went forth into the great world of opera and won his way to the very top. The friendship began in Casana has never been broken, and Bonci has no warmer partisan than the director of the famous International Grand-Opera company, who says, "I do not think it possible for the human intellect to know more of the art than Bonci possesses."

Pelusi has all possible sympathy with the singer who is willing to work, and there is nothing that he won't do to help the earnest beginner, but he will neither waste his time nor take the money of the first-act singer who wishes to be made into a prima donna in three seasons. With him singing is an art that was painstakingly acquired, and he maintains that no one can become really great who will not work, work, work. His old Italian teacher kept him peering away at solfeggio and other exercises for two years before he let him sing a word of song. And in this way he was started right, and the perfection of his art today rests on the firm foundation of the hard working days of his musical youth.

MISS STRAUSS, MEZZO SOPRANO

DISCONTINUES OIL SPRINKLING

City Street Cleaning Department Gratified With Results This Year.

Superintendent Alex Donaldson of the city street cleaning department has discontinued the use of oil sprinklers for this season. He says he is extremely gratified by the results obtained by his experimenters in dust laying. Three oil sprinklers are now owned by the city, and upwards of 2000 miles of dusty thoroughfares were treated with a coat of oil during the summer.

After experiments extending over a period of two years, Donaldson is at last determined upon the most efficient method of rendering streets dustless.

Where the street is hard and compact, having a sandy or rocky surface the oil is spread upon it while the surface is perfectly dry, and one sprinkling has been found to be adequate during a season.

But where the street is soft and covered with a deep layer of dust the most satisfactory method is to wet the surface thoroughly with the water sprinklers first. The oil then finds a foundation and is not washed away with the first rain as it would be if mixed with the dry dust, which absorbs the oleaginous fluid before it can sink into the firm ground underneath.

FORMER IOWANS HOLD SUCCESSFUL REUNION

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Hood River, Or., Aug. 21.—A most successful Hawkeye picnic closed yesterday evening. The day's festivities opened with a splendid literary program. Rev. J. Van Nieuw Bandy, Rev. W. P. McCormack and E. N. Hendricks delivered stirring addresses appropriate to the occasion. A splendid essay on "Iowa," written by Mrs. W. F. Laraway was read by Mrs. Amy Gove.

One of the leading features of the day was a barbecue at which roasted meat together with coffee, bread and beans constituted the menu.

Steps were taken to form a permanent organization and to secure park grounds in which to hold annual picnics. The officers of last year were re-elected to serve another term. It is estimated that between 700 and 800 people participated in the fifth annual picnic given by former residents of the Hawkeye state.

OWNER MEETS NEW WAGE SCALE ASKED

T. B. Wilcox, owner of the new Imperial Hotel annex, is said to have agreed to pay carpenters working on his building the $4 a day demanded by them. Forty men, first class mechanics, union and non-union, engaged in laying the hardwood floors in the building threatened to strike unless their demands as to wages were met. Whidden & Lewis, architects, refused to accept the advance, but when a committee of carpenters visited Mr. Wilcox he is said to have agreed to the raise.

HE WALKED IN HIS NIGHTIE

Mrs. C. H. Jensen Seeks Divorce From Erratic Husband.

In white habiliments, consisting principally or solely of his "nightie," Ole A. Jensen paraded the parlor in the presence of his wife and her guests, is the charge in a divorce complaint filed by Mrs. Christine H. Jensen in the circuit court.

Mrs. Jensen says she was humiliated by this ghostly visitation, and by the remarks made by the man in white. This is not her sole complaint, as she also charges that Jensen is of a jealous turn of mind, and has unjustly accused her of flirting with other men. She also tells of an occasion at 562 Union avenue north, when they gave an evening party and Jensen is alleged to have become Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you. In digestive ailments, Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. Every tablespoonful will digest 3 1/2 pounds of food.
