

GASOLINE TRACTION ENGINE TO BE MANUFACTURED IN PORTLAND

Robert Hendrickson, Engineer, Standing.

A gasoline traction engine weighing less than two tons, with an engine as fine as is in the best of motor cars, with the strength of 40 horses and which develops a strength of 50 mechanical horsepower, will be manufactured in Portland by the Pacific Gas Traction company, a newly organized company. Temporarily the engine is to be manufactured by the Willamette Iron & Steel works, but as soon as the factory at Kenton can be constructed the work will be done there.

This gasoline engine, according to its makers, is a wonder of mechanical construction and saving power. It can be bought for $2000 and can be run for $4 a day. It can pull a plow, harrow or scuder through the roughest ground without sinking more than 3 inches into the soft soil and can do plowing at the rate of 25 cents an acre. It is also used to haul the heaviest of combined harvesters, headers and binders. Engineer Robert Hendrickson, shown in the above picture is now demonstrating with the engine on the Ladd farm east of the city.

HONOR MEMORY OF HANNIBAL HAMLIN

Paris Hill, Maine, Aug. 27.—The tribute of his native town was paid to Hannibal Hamlin today. The memory of Maine's distinguished son, statesman, diplomat and vice president of the United States was honored in a way to be remembered by the thousands who gathered to witness the dedication of a memorial tablet marking his birthplace. The time for the dedication was fittingly chosen, as today was the one hundredth anniversary of Hamlin's birth.

General Joshua L. Chamberlain of Portland, Maine, presided over the exercises attending the dedication. He represented the military order of the Loyal Legion, to which organization belongs the credit for the erection of the memorial. Eloquent addresses eulogistic of Hannibal Hamlin's life and work were delivered by a trio of distinguished New Englanders, Honorable John D. Long, former secretary of the navy; Governor Bert M. Fernald of Maine, and United States Senator Eugene Hale. The honor of unveiling the memorial was accorded to Miss Julia Frances Carter, a lineal descendant of Hannibal Hamlin. Hannibal Hamlin will ever be remembered as one of the strongest men that ever occupied the vice presidential chair. He was elected to the high office on the ticket with Abraham Lincoln. His abandonment of the Democratic party on the slavery issue, and the great celebrity he attained as a successful campaigner in subsequent political battles in his native state of Maine, rendered him a conspicuous candidate for the presidential nomination in 1860. He advised his friends and well wishers, however, not to permit the use of his name in connection with the nomination for the presidency of the vice presidency, but he was named, nevertheless, for the latter office, and forced to accept.

Before they met as president and vice president-elect, Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Hamlin were not even speaking acquaintances. But Hamlin, as a member of the United States senate, had seen Mr. Lincoln in the house, and Lincoln had heard Hamlin in the senate. From the hour of their meeting after the election of 1860 Lincoln and Hamlin were the most cordial friends. In 1854 it was Mr. Lincoln's earnest wish that Hamlin should be renominated on the ticket with him, but circumstances prevailed to defeat this, and Andrew Johnson was chosen vice president.

Hamlin was appointed collector of the port of Boston, but resigned that office when he no longer felt himself in harmony with the policy of President Johnson. He returned to the United States senate for a short time, and for a while afterward occupied the post of minister to Spain.

He had been in office continuously for nearly 50 years, and no public man of his time had a more distinctive political personality. He went to congress in his early manhood as a Democrat, but he soon identified himself with the anti-slavery movement, which made him many enemies in his own party. The most sensational episode of his legislative career was his presentation in the house of the Wilmot proviso, when Wilmet was detained by President Polk at the White House. The consequences of this political act influenced Hamlin's whole subsequent career. As the candidate of the Republicans and the opponents of anti-slavery, he was elected governor of Maine sent to the United States senate and eventually chosen vice president. After quitting public life he lived for many years in quiet retirement near the town of his birth. He died in Bangor, July 4, 1891.

Anty Drudge's Recipe for Removing Stains

Anty Drudge—"Well, well! What's the matter, little girl?"

Mrs. Youngwife—"Charley's covered the table-cloth with fruit and coffee stains, and it's my very best cloth, and because I spoke of it at breakfast, he slammed the door when he went to work, and he—he didn't kiss me good-bye."

Anty Drudge—"Never mind, dearie, don't cry. Get a cake of Fels-Naptha soap. It'll take every stain away with a little cold or lukewarm water."

It isn't the wearing, but the washing that sends light clothes to the rag-bag before their time. The way to stop that is to wash them with Fels-Naptha soap in cold or lukewarm water. No boiling to weaken their fabric; no hard-rubbing to wear and tear them. And Fels-Naptha won't harm the most delicate lawns or laces.

Say you have a lot of white shirtwaists and things to wash. Just wet them, soap with Fels-Naptha, roll and soak for a few minutes in cold or lukewarm water. Then rub lightly, rinse and hang on the line. Easy, isn't it? And the clothes will be cleaner and whiter and sweeter than you can get them any other way.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper for using Fels-Naptha.

Fels-Naptha does all kinds of housecleaning quicker and better than anything else.
