SAM JOHNSON'S MEMORY HONORED

England and America Celebrate at Autocrat's Birthplace.

London, Sept. 16.—To mark the beginning of the three days' celebration by the city of Lichfield of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Dr. Samuel Johnson, next to Shakespeare probably the most popular of British authors, the venerable house in Market square, Lichfield, where the grouchy old philosopher and writer first saw the light of day on September 18, 1709, was thrown open to the public. All day long the picturesque old house, which contains numerous relics of the famous man, was thronged with visitors from all parts of Great Britain and a fair percentage of tourists from the United States and Canada.

There is no doubt about the authenticity of Dr. Johnson's birthplace. Luckily the quaint, two-storied house with pillars, where old Michael Johnson kept his bookshop, became the property of the corporation of Lichfield a few years ago. It has been carefully restored and it is now in as good condition as when Samuel Johnson lived in it. Part of the relics which the house contains are in a permanent collection which has been formed and placed in the building by the corporation, which is not a little proud of its famous citizen.

In Johnson's Old Haunts.

The second day of the Lichfield celebration will be devoted mainly to visits to places of interest associated with Johnson and his friends. One of them will be the "Three Crowns" inn, which was the favorite haunt of the Johnson household, and regarding whose claim of having housed the choleric scholar and his famous biographer, James Boswell, there is no question. Johnson almost invariably "put up" at the "Three Crowns" when he came down to Lichfield from London, and he first brought Boswell with him in the historic year of 1776. The old inn is said to be practically just as it was when Johnson and Boswell drank innumerable cups of tea there.

Other points of interest are St. Mary's church, where Dr. Johnson was baptized; St. Chad's church, which the philosopher never failed to visit on his occasional trips to Lichfield, and St. Michael's church, where Johnson's father and mother are buried under a gravestone erected by the doctor when he was 75 years old.

Reminders of Great Associates.

In the afternoon there will be a lecture on "The Life and Influence of the Marquis of Boscawen," a pupil at that time where Johnson was a pupil under Hunter, Garrick also attended that school before he became Johnson's pupil. Another famous man once a pupil at that school was Joseph Addison. In the evening there will be a performance by the Lichfield choral society, which is called "The Stoops to Conquer," which was dedicated to Johnson.

The main celebration will be on Saturday, the centennial anniversary day of Johnson's birth. On that day there will be a great gathering on Market square, with addresses and singing by a chorus. Later the mayor of Lichfield will hold a reception at the Guild hall and the Johnson club will hold its annual meeting. In the evening there will be a Johnson supper at the old George hotel.

THE STRANGER WITHIN OUR GATES

Arthur A. Metcalf, Beaver, Pa.: "Why is it one is compelled to pay such exorbitant prices for laundry in Portland? I have paid laundry bills in cities of nearly every state in the union, but I have yet to find the place where one is forced to pay such bills as have been handed to me here.

"What a blessing it would be," said Dr. J. A. Madison, Bracy, Va., at the Oregon today, "if parents would only realize the importance of teaching their children to properly care for their eyes, yet how few there are who give this matter any serious thought. I firmly believe, that were every child taught the ill effects of improper treatment of the eyes from the beginning of his school life, the cases of spectacle wearing, now so common among students, would be greatly diminished, and blindness caused by such carelessness would be very rare."

Until some means are provided whereby campers can be induced to put out their fires before leaving the forests, we can expect no advance in the fire situation, said Marvin Althouse, California. "I have seen many of the valuable timber being destroyed by forest fires, but many tent houses and cottages were burned, and even cities were barely saved from destruction. I dread to return home and witness the change that has been wrought in our section in the past few days."

James R. Overton, Canby, Or.: "Even though the crop was very light this year, owing to the cool weather, I expect to realize a neat little profit from my yard. With only half a crop and the present advance in the market we are regretting that we did away with so many of our yards last year."

"Since seeing Oregon with all its opportunities for the live farmer there'll be no more Iowa farming for me," said S. W. Watkins, Soldier City, Iowa, at the St. Charles today. "After spending a season of hard work and careful manging I will realize barely enough from my corn crop to pay expenses, and I have decided to sell all my holdings with a view to investing in Willamette valley lands."

"I see that the fraternities in the schools of Portland are making a bold stand," said Ira A. Townsend, Denver, Col., at the Oregon today. "Members of fraternities in the Denver high school have enlisted the aid of their parents in their fight against the Denver board of education because of its order suspending from the school all members of secret societies. When the schools endeavor to compel the students to sign a card severing their connections with and pledging their honor to join no secret society in the future, the students went on a strike and refused to sign the card. Since the strike's inception a few days ago almost all of the warring students have returned to school and signed the pledge."

INTERURBAN LINES FOR NORTH YAKIMA

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
North Yakima, Wash., Sept. 16.—The local street railway company has just given an order for $20,000 worth of equipment which is expected to be in place by the time the present extension of the line is completed. The company is pushing the line west up the Astoria, eight miles of which is to be finished this fall.
