had telegraphed Mr. O'Brien an order to call in the men now at work on the Deschutes and give up the construc-tion of this line. "I cannot understand how the rumor started, but it has gained considerable circulation," said Mr. O'Brien. "How-ever, it is absolutely false. I have received no such instructions and we have between 1100 and 1200 men at work in the Deschutes now."
