

USED TO BRIBE POLICE, HE SAYS

Michael Douglass Explains Why He Called on Chief Cox.

Michael Douglass, a Russian, conducting a saloon at Third and Flinders streets, was arrested this afternoon for attempting to bribe Chief of Police Cox. In the day, the saloonkeeper tendered the chief $50 in gold if he would allow him to operate a disorderly house without molestation from the police department.

In explaining his offer, Douglass said that he meant no wrong in making the tender to the head of the department, as he understood it was necessary to first "fix" the chief before starting business. He further said that he operated an immoral house in Washington, and that it was necessary to pay out a certain amount of money there each month, and that he thought the same methods prevailed here. Another version of his explanation is that he regarded the offer of $50 as a part payment for fines that might be imposed upon him should he be arrested.

The man has been in Portland seven months and appears to take the matter unconcerned. He could not understand why he should be arrested for attempting to make everything right before starting the house. He was arrested at his place of business upon a warrant signed by Chief Cox, charging bribery, and his bail placed at $500, which could not be furnished, and he was remanded to jail.

SEMINARY GETS ROBE OF FIGHTING PARSON

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—Three notable gifts were presented to the Lutheran Theological seminary, at Mount Airy, at the annual "Seminary day" celebration, which marked the beginning of the 46th year of that institution. Two of these were portraits of Charles F. Norton, founder of the Northern Presbyterian denomination in the United States, and of the Rev. Dr. William Ashmead, Schaeffer, donor of the Schaeffer-Ashmead Memorial chapel, on the school grounds.

Most interesting of the three, perhaps, was the clerical robe which General Peter Muhlenberg, the "fighting parson" of the revolution, wore in the church at Woodstock, Va., the day he led the pulpits to enter the Continental army in the fight for independence. This was the gift of the Hon. H. C. family, of New Market, Va., a member of the Muhlenberg family, the successor in the pulpit.

The Rev. Dr. Henry B. Jacobs, dean of the faculty of the seminary, presented the gifts, representing the donors. They were accepted in the presence of several thousand persons gathered on the lawn by the Rev. Dr. T. E. Schmauk, president of the general council of the Lutheran church of America.

The morning services were held in the chapel, where the sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. F. A. Kahler of Buffalo. The Rev. W. H. Greener of Columbia, S. C., made an address in the afternoon, and at night services were held, at which the vested choir of the Church of the Incarnation sang. The seminary begins the year with 25 new students.

300 POUND CANDLE IN MONSTER PARADE

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 9.—A candle of five men, was the principal feature of the procession of 3000 parishioners of the Italian Catholic church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, Christian street, above Eighth, which took place in this city. The procession was in honor of the feast of St. Michael, or St. Borrows, and the great candle was burned at the feast of the church for the last three years.

The procession was preceded by services in the church, conducted by the priest, the Rev. Angelo Caruso, and the Rev. A. R. Rella. In the procession there were many children, and the children, there were several large floral pieces, which were borne by girls, dressed in white. The most noteworthy of these pieces was one representing a church, made of pink and white carnations.

Gumption means "common sense" when needed most.

Under no circumstances is it needed more than in the selection of right food.

The one reliable food which supplies material for rebuilding the important gray substance of brain and nerve cells, is

Grape-Nuts

This food is made of wheat and barley by a process which changes the starchy part of the grains into predigested food material so that it is quickly absorbed and promptly begins repairing and building up waste tissue throughout the body.

Grape-Nuts is a "common sense" food.

Portman, Conn. Oct. 9.—A Byrnes Jackson turbine pump, with a capacity of 750 gallons per minute, is being installed this week by the city council. It is under a 250 foot head pressure at the reservoir. The motive power is furnished by a Fairbanks-Morse motor of 50 horsepower. The plant is being put in by A. D. Daily. The water supply has been very short for the past few months on account of the dry weather, and so one has for the past month been allowed to use water on farms or for any other purpose that absolutely necessary. But with the present system, enough water will be supplied for all purposes.

WIDOW OF FAMOUS SOLDIER

Elderly Countess of Cardigan, widow of the dashing commander of the Light Brigade in the Crimean war, whose recent book, which is said to reveal the "family skeletons" of several of the British aristocracy, has caused a ferment in upper British society. The countess wears bright colors, displays many a wrinkle and deports herself as a lively young matron. She sings, paints and rides and fences. Two clubs she belongs to are not women's organizations, but a yacht club and a river-side coterie.

NOW TEACHERS PLAN PENSION SYSTEM

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 9.—Teachers in the Scranton schools will come together within the next two weeks and form an organization preparatory to the establishment of a pension system. Committees will be appointed to draft rules and by-laws and it is expected that the system will be in full operation by the first of the new school year. At the institute held last week the teachers decided unanimously in favor of establishing the pension and, if the board of control does not object, an effort will be made to have 3 per cent of the state appropriation received here set aside for the fund. The system will be modeled after the one in use in New York, where the length of service is fixed at 25 years and the assessment is 1 per cent per annum. The limit here will probably be 30 years.

FIND BURIED WHISKEY 86 YEARS OF AGE

Spencer, Ind., Oct. 9.—Workmen engaged in tearing down the old Owen county courthouse found a gallon jug of whiskey buried in a crevice in the foundation stones under the northeast corner of the building. The jug was sealed with sealing wax and bore on one side a discolored paper label inscribed as follows: "Deposited by Joseph Freeman, 1834; distilled in Owen county, 1834." About half the contents had evaporated. The liquor is now in the possession of the county auditor, who has purchased it for $100. NEWSPAPER READERS GIVE IT TO COOK

(United Press Special Wire.) Pittsburgh, Oct. 9.—Newspaper readers, having been asked to decide who shall be considered the actual discoverer of the North Pole, have overwhelmingly bestowed the palm upon Dr. Frederick A. Cook at least so far as Pittsburgh is concerned. Further, the result indicates that many are bethel content with the discovery of the North Pole, a distance from scientific societies, investigations, etc.

A poll conducted by a local paper developed a lively interest. The result was announced tonight as follows: Cook discovered the North Pole in 1908, 73-100; Peary discovered the North Pole in 1909, 28-14. Peary reached the North Pole in 1909, 18-04. Cook did not reach the North Pole, 28-14. Peary did not reach the North Pole, 18-04.

GIVE TESTIMONIAL BENEFIT OCTOBER 18

An affair in which a number of society people are interested is the Glenwood Memorial benefit to take place at the Baker theatre, Monday evening, October 18. William L. WILL BE SNARK IN NORTHERN OREGON

Graham A. Griswold, manager of the Falls City Lumber company, of this city, was unanimously recommended for the office of vice regent snark of the northern Oregon district of the order of the Commercial club, Friday evening. Mr. Griswold signified his acceptance and the formal announcement of his appointment is expected from headquarters in the east any day. Retiring snark Sam P. Owen was host and toastmaster at the dinner.

SHEEP CONDITIONS GOOD IN UMATILLA

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Pendleton, Or., Oct. 9.—In accordance with the rules of the United States forest service the sheep of Umatilla county are being brought out of the mountains at a rapid rate. Many sheepmen have already brought their flocks out of the foothills and 10 days more will see the last sheep out of the reserves.

According to the rules all sheep must be out of the Wenatchee forest by October 10. Those growers who range their sheep in the Whitman reserve, which was formerly the eastern division of the Blue mountain forest, are expected to get their flocks out by October 15 to get their flocks out.

MET AT DALLAS MONDAY, OCT. 4

The Presbytery of Willamette met at Dallas, Monday evening, October 4. The session was presided over by the Rev. A. M. Williams of McMinnville. The Presbytery was organized, Dr. H. F. Nave, of Albany, was elected moderator, Rev. Charles F. Koehler of Brownsville temporary clerk and Rev. F. H. Geselbracht, of Albany, reporting clerk. Thirty-six ministers and elders were in attendance and enrolled. Tuesday was spent in hearing reports and lengthy discussions. Rev. C. F. Koehler spoke in the evening on "What the Churchman Owe to the Church," and Rev. S. C. Adams, of Cottage Grove, on "What the Church Owe to the Community."

3 ROADS THROUGH INDIAN RESERVATION

Pendleton, Or., Oct. 9.—Major Swartzlander, agent and superintendent of the Umatilla reservation, has been asked by the Indian bureau to assess damages and benefits which will result to the allottees from the opening of three roads across the reservation. The major is now engaged in looking up land through which the roads are to pass.

TROUBLE OVER PATENT RIGHT

George K. Rogers, Inventor of Propeller, Brings Action.

Alleging that A. L. Crosby, after selling his patent right in a ship propeller to a corporation to be formed by George K. Rogers, is now attempting to deal with other persons and convey his patent to them, Rogers has secured a restraining order in the circuit court to restrain any sale or assignment of others.

In addition to this Rogers wants $1000 he claims to have paid out in office expense, $3000 for losses in the sale of stock of the new corporation, $1000 damages and $250 special damages $2250 in all. The letters patent are now in Rogers' hands, but he says Crosby has threatened to replevin them, so he has also secured a restraining order to prevent a replevin suit. To secure Crosby against damage Rogers has filed a $1000 bond.

PEARY READY WITH HIS ANSWER

sulted in the discovery that Dr. Cook never went out of sight of land and that his assertion of polar success was a mere fabrication. Commander Peary's brief against Dr. Cook is said to contain not only the statements of the two Eskimo companions of Cook that the Brooklyn explorer did not venture far from land, but also the assertions of still other Eskimos, who are said to have seen Cook camping on the western coast of Grant Land at a time when he said he was at the pole.

The bulk of the Peary document, however, is said to be argumentative. It points what Peary characterizes as "the improbabilities" in Cook's story. It bases most of its deductions on the results of former expeditions.

ESKIMO TESTIMONY. The official statement is said to hinge largely on the testimony of Iook-kashoo and Apeelah, the two Eskimo men whom Dr. Cook said accompanied him to the pole. This testimony was obtained by Peary at Etah. It was also said to have been vouched for by Captain Bartlett, Professor McMillan, George Borup and Mat Henson, all of whom were members of the Peary expedition.

The statements of the two Eskimos were taken during the summer of 1911, according to Peary. The two Eskimos stated that they had seen Cook and his party on the coast of Grant Land, but that they did not venture far from land. They also stated that they had seen Cook and his party on the coast of Grant Land, but that they did not venture far from land.

Alleged Demands. The Eskimo companions of Cook were partly civilized as to whether he crossed any open lanes of water in the ice, and they answered positively in the negative. They also denied that he had killed any seals or bears while on the northward of Cape Thomas Hubbard. Neither did they admit that they had not used up much of their food while on the ice.

On another trip Cook is said to have sledged over the ice to an island not far distant from the land, on the shore of which they camped. From there they journeyed later to another island. From what could be obtained from the Eskimo in describing the islands, one of them was believed to be Amund Ringes Land. Before leaving this bit of isolated ground one of the Eskimos killed a seal. At the time which Cook's Eskimo companions said their master was roaming around at no great distance from the mainland in the same period in which Cook claims that he made his dash to the pole. Peary also is said to point that even if Cook had tried to make the trip, it was practically impossible for him to have accomplished such a feat with the supplies which were at his disposal in his position.

The retreat of Dr. Cook is stated in great detail. He is said to have swung much farther to the southward on his return than when he left Etah to the westward.

SAY YERKES CHANGED WILL UNDER DELUSION

Chicago, Oct. 9.—That Charles T. Yerkes at the time of his death labored under the delusion that his servants were conspiring to poison him will be the argument advanced when the latest chapter in the litigation over the estate of Chicago's one-time traction magnate comes to a court hearing.

Suspicion directed at members of his immediate household is said to have been so acute that he compelled his butler, and frequently the housemaid, to partake of food set for him while he drank only what was unbottled or prepared before him.

tion situation in the hollow of his hand. Before Judge Cutting, in probate court, Attorney Walter W. Ross, representing Louis S. Owsley, executor of the Yerkes estate, filed the codicil which acts to strike from the will a bequest of $15,000 to six of his servants. It is dated London, August 13, 1904. Mr. Yerkes died in New York the following December. Reference is made to the fact that he bequeathed $5000 to Arnold Held, his chauffeur, and $2000 to servants, but there is no explanation why the gifts were revoked.

William Mannhardt, a Chicago attorney, has been retained to fight the validity of the codicil and uphold Held's claim to $1500. Four Philadelphians are among those named in the will whom the codicil may affect and whom Judge Cutting directed should be notified of the litigation. They are: Benet L.
