Famous Blue Mountain Top Town Hears Knell in Pending Ukase.

La Grande, Or., Oct. 11 .- After existfor 25 years, as the relay station the helper engines which 'boost' overland freight, and passenger trains across the Blue mountains from La Grande to Pendleton, the town of Kamela is to be wiped off the railroad map and the geographical map as well for within a month the summit town Many Loans of School will be no more. According to unofficial but authentic information from railroad circles the town of Gibbon is to become the new relay town, on the west slope of the Blue mountains. Ever since there was a railroad in eastern Oregon there has been the town of Kamela, where helper engines were constantly at work, families of the engine crews living, there month after month until Mr. Engineer or Fireman carned a position on the mainline and could make La Grande his home, leaving a vacancy for some other engineer and train crew to fill.

In the winter Kamela is a town of about 290 people, mostly trainmen and loggers, but summertime sees hundreds going to the summit town for recreation and rest. Pendleton and La Grande especially patronize the place as a summer resort. It is of 4200 feet elevation, the highest station on the Oregon Short Line or Oregon Railroad & Navigation company's line, and tragedy and fond memories alike are firmly cemented to the place in railroad circles. ficial but authentic information from La Grande Payroll Increased.

At present helper engines are sent out from this city with trains and run "light" back. Helper engines are also maintained constantly at Kamela and run down to Gibbon and other towns on the western slope to help trains up. They run down light and come back loaded. In this way they are wasting time and energy just half the time. The present plans are to keep all the helper engines now at Kamela, at La Grande and Gibbon, but principally here. An engine will thus be sent out of here as helper, run down to Gibbon from Kamela and bring a train up the hill to the summit and run empty to La Grande again. It is a saving of time.

It will materially ficrease the payroll of the local point and permit the crew to headquarters in this city, rather than the desolate mountain hamlet on the hill where winter months bring almost unendurable cold.

The announcement has created a considerable stir. For there are families now at Kamela who have lived there off the O. R. & N. for years, making that place their home from sheer necessity, who can now come to a larger place of abode.

LA GRANDE WOMEN PLAN HARVEST WEEK

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

La Grande, Or., Oct. 11.—Commencing Thursday of this week La Grande is to have a harvest basaar as a climax to the successful county fair just completed. The proceeds are to go to the completion of the 14 acre park which is being built almost entirely through the efforts of La Grande women. The land for the park, lying on the bank of the Grand Ronde river with beautiful shade trees and natural park facilities over which larger cities would rave, has been purchased and paid for, and the women promoters are now raising money with which to dam the river, flood the rivuiets and crocked and shaded inlets with water for boating purposes and to provide a large natatorium in the summer months and a purposes and to provide a large hatatorium in the summer months and a skating rink in the winter months.
Four acres of land will be covered with water for these purposes as soon as the dam is built. The bazaar will be run on the usual bazaar plans with several new innovations. Baby shows, auctions and the like are to be features.

Interstate Commerce Commission Will Open Session Here Tomorrow to Hear Case for Lower Distributive Freight Rates.

Interstate Commerce Commissioners Knapp, Cockrell, Lane, Clements, Clarke and Harlan will tomorrow morning begin hearing evidence in the important case of the chamber of commerce of this city against the R. & N. and its connections for lower distributive rates out of Portland. An array of legal talent will appear for the railroads, while J. N. Teal will guard the interests of the manufacturers and shippers.

Mr. Teal returned home this morning after a series of legal battles with railroad counsel before the interstate com-merce commission at Spokane. Tacoma and Seattle, along similar lines, and the commissioners are expected to arrive here this evening from Seattle. At the Seattle hearing the Northern Pacific commissioners are expected to arrive here this evening from Seattle. At the Seattle hearing the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern was the object of attack. At San Francisco the commissioners will hear evidence tending to show why the Southern Pacific and its connections should grant lower distributive rates from Pacific coast points to the interior.

The case to come up here tomorrow morning is of utmost importance, as upon the outcome depends largely the possibility of the Pacific coast ports to develop trade with points east of here in competition with eastern manufacturers, who, it is asserted, have a decided advantage in the way of freight rates. No specific reductions are asked for, but a general readjustment is desired, and which, if obtained, would give manufacturers and jobbers here equal chances with the easterners into territories declared rightly belonging to Portland.

The sought for reduction will affect Portland.

The sought for reduction will affect all class rates and will have a sweeping effect if the reduction is granted.

Mayor E. E. Straw of Marshfield and Wife Precipitated from Trestle.

Marshfield, Or., Oct. 11.-Mayor E E Straw of Marshfield and Mrs. Straw narrowly escaped death in a wild autoobile on north Front street yesterday while speeding along a street which is built of plank out in the bay. The steering gear broke and the machine running at a high rate of speed, ran off the trestle, turning completely over and landing bottom side up on the mud-flat.

Dr. Straw sustained a broken collar bone, dislocated shoulder, dislocated el-bow and a severe back sprain. Mrs. Straw escaped unburt. Had the tide been in both would have been drowned.

Manufacturers here would then not be restrained by prohibitory and what are considered entirely unjust rates from reaching out for trade, awaiting opportunity to drift westward instead of to the more disant inland points east.

Speaking of the coming hearing. Mr. Teal this morning stated that etrang evidence will be presented for the reduction. The hearing will go exiensively into details showing how manufacturers here are deprived of expanding because of favoritism shown the eastern manufacturers by the carriers. It is believed, however, that the houring scane of concluded in two days.

From here the interstate commerce commissioners will go to San Francisco to take up the case against the Southern Pacific, then up to Reno, Nev.

The fight for a general reduction of eastbound rates was inaugurated several months ago by the chambers of commerce of the several leading manufacturing and shipping points on the coast, but each case is separate and with its own individual features.

The hearing is to be taken up at 10 o'clock in the rooms of the United States court in the postoffice building, and Attorney W. W. Cotton, for the railroad company, promised at the conclusion of the hearing at Seattle when the Portland case was brought into action, to throw some light on the O. R. & N. company's earnings, which are said to be enormous.

to throw some light on the O. R. & N. company's earnings, which are said to be enormous.

A number of manufacturers and shippers will testify for the chamber of commerce, their evidence to illustrate how the high distribute rates are instrumental in retarding or totally preventing expansion of trade.

In view of the secrecy and dispatch with which the union was consummated, it is said that the marriage was one of policy only, to bar any testimony on the part of the present Mrs. Rodman. The law will presume that all secrets between husband and wife are sacred, and the state will be compelled to forego one of its witnesses.

By a monial venture than is Mrs. Maddux. Miss Noss, who lives at 874 Savier street, denied this morning that she even knew Mr. and Mrs. Rodman, although she admitted that she had heard of them. "The marriage is a complete surprise to me," said Miss Noss this morning, "but as I do not know either of the parties I cannot say that I am interested in the least. I know nothing of the Real case other than a few things that I have heard, and I have been advised not to say anything about that."

The marriage of Rodman to the 18year-old widow has complicated the Portland who were summoned before the county grand jury. Mrs. Hazel Maddux of 289 East Forty-seventh acting under instructions from her attorney, will not discuss any features of the case. She is well acquainted with Rodman and his wife, but she denied forcibly this morning that she

As far as the public is concerned Mrs. Maddux is as ignorant of all features of the Real case as though she lived at the North Pole. The only thing which she knows, and which is known also by all others, is that she is under indictment, but she cannot understand how such a proceeding could have happened.

Flint Says He Will Retire in Time to Provide for Old Age.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Los Angeles, Oct. 11.—Senator Frank P. Flint of has been traveling with President Taft and made the statement in discussing the political outlook.

"I can retire now from the senate and pick up a good living, but if I waited until the end of another term before taking the step I would probably be too old.

"My associations in the senate are very congenial indeed. I have practicular no opposition for a renomination, and the sole reason for contemplating and the sole reason for contemplating retirement is the urgent necessity of providing for my family."

Even Miss Pearl Thompson, who is living at Rodman's home, is surprised that the wedding of the chauffeur and the young widow has taken place. As Mrs. Rodman did not come to Portland until after the Real tragedy happened, according to Miss Thompson, it is not believed that she is a very important witness. Mr. and Mrs. Rodman are expected to return to Portland tomorrow.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Tampa, Fla., Oct. 11—Advices received here from Havana today convey the information that a terrific huricane is sweeping Cuba, and that already a number of small vessels have gone down in the harbor at Havans.

Trees have been uprooted, and it is reported that a number of buildings have been wrecked.

News is meager, but it is feared many lives have been lost.

The storm is reported to be headed in this direction.

Washington, Oct. 11.—A destructive hurricane is centered 50 miles west of Key West today, according to Director Moore, head of the weather bureau service. Moore predicts that the storm will bring devastation and death. The hurricane is traveling from the equator toward the guif coast, and it is feared it will be a repetition of the recent storm which swept Florida, Louisiana, Alabama and Texas, when 300 lives were lost and millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed.
