

BIG SALMON RUN AND HIGH PRICES

And Sound Packers Report
the Record Year of the Industry.

(United Press Special Wire.)
Bellingham, Wash., Oct. 19.—According to a statement made by George M. Bowers, United States fish commissioner, who is here in connection with the selection of sites for government hatcheries, the total salmon pack on Puget sound this season will bring the catch between $12,000,000 and $12,500,000. This is greater than the receipts for any previous year in the history of the pack industry here, and to the big run of salmon and high prices is attributed the immense total value of the pack.

PORTOLA BACK IN THE OLD TOWN

Gaspar de Portola upon his "discovery" of the new San Francisco.

When the modern impersonator of the old Spaniard who discovered the peninsula stepped ashore at the Mission street wharf this morning, his arrival was the signal for the beginning of five days of carnival and merriment.

His arrival was proclaimed with the booming of cannon, the shrieking and roaring of steam whistles and the lusty, triumphant shouting of the sons of the new city.

With the city decorated profusely with the brilliant red and yellow of the Spanish emblem, no citizen of people ever was more ready and prepared for a wholesale frolic.

The City That Enjoys.

"Dull care" has been expelled absolutely by official and popular edict and the city is given over to the pursuit of happiness.

After the three and a half long years of labor against terrific odds, through which the city has been lifted up from utter physical ruin and reestablished on a larger and better scale than before its disaster, the time for the celebration has been set aside and is at hand.

"It's like the old town," is the affectionate expression of appreciation heard everywhere about the streets, and that is the highest compliment a native born San Franciscan can utter.

Don Gaspar de Portola seems to have brought back the spirit of old San Francisco, the city that was famed throughout the world for its love of frivolity and its ability to enjoy itself. Event by no means local.

With the official recognition of the rehabilitation of the city from the nations of the world, expressed by the presence of war vessels of Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Holland and Japan, riding at anchor in the bay; with the toast offered by President Taft, drunk by officials of all countries around the world at noon, San Francisco time, today, with expressions of praise, admiration and congratulations received from the official bodies of most of the great cities of America, the festival which opened this morning has taken on a world wide significance.

The spirit that prompted the government of France to send Ambassador Jusserand to present to the city a gold medal in commemoration of its reconstruction, is manifest throughout the world and San Francisco is receiving congratulations from all the peoples of the earth upon the heroic, herculean task which has been accomplished against difficulties which seemed insurmountable.

The Foreign "Invaders."

American soil was trod today by armed soldiers of Great Britain, Japan, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands, when the great military parade escorted Don Gaspar de Portola upon his arrival in the city for the opening of the week's festival.

The line of troops, representing the six nations, included approximately 7500 men. Every branch of the American service—marines, artillery, signal corps, cavalry, infantry and all—was represented in the parade.

The American soldiers were in command of Colonel Lundeen, commandant of the Presidio. He rode at the head of the American division, with his staff.

The procession was headed by the foreign troops, the first armed host of a foreign power that have marched in California since its evacuation by the Spaniards.

There were many bands interspersed throughout the line of march. Behind the foreigners, came the state troops.

and then followed Uncle Sam's regulars.

Greatest Military Display.

After the troops marched the Portola dragons, resplendent in magnificent uniforms, and in the place of honor rode Don Gaspar de Portola, on a jet black steed, with the $5000 Spanish saddle made by Garcia.

Portola after passing in through the Golden Gate was greeted by the foreign ships in the bay, and then landed at the Mission street wharf, where the procession had formed.

The line of march was out Market street to Van Ness, and through various counter-marches to Union square. The streets, which are ablaze with the brilliant carnival decorations, were solid with people who cheered and blew horns and rattled all sorts of noise making contrivances and in general let go for the carnival celebration.

The parade was the most imposing military pageant that San Francisco ever saw and, with the uniforms of the men from the foreign ships, the flags and the decorations, it offered a most appropriate opening for the week of festivities.

The afternoon will be taken up with numerous meetings, athletic events and various attractions.

This evening the city will be illuminated with countless incandescent lights, giving it the appearance of a vast exposition. The main feature of the evening will be the reception at the St. Francis to the officers of the visiting warships.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S
TOAST IS HONORED
THE WORLD OVER

(United Press Special Wire.)

San Francisco, Oct. 19.—The most interesting and solemn feature of the Portola festival was the drinking of the Taft toast at noon today. Wherever Americans are, throughout the world, at noon, San Francisco time, the president's toast was drunk and San Francisco pledged.

In the old world, receptions and dinners had been arranged for in all the American embassies and clubs. When the sun reached the meridian in San Francisco it was evening in the capitals of Europe and midnight in the orient. Cabinet ministers and diplomats then proposed the Taft toast amid the cheers of the Americans.

In this country the opening of the Portola festival was marked generally by the drinking of the president's toast. Californians were gathered at a monster banquet in New York. In Chicago, a big business men and merchants gave a luncheon at which the pledge of the president was repeated. Millions of school children throughout the United States stood and cheered San Francisco at noon, San Francisco time.

The president's toast was on the printed menu of every hotel in New York. It was prearranged that the event should be announced by the ringing of a gong and that every guest would be asked to stand and pledge the new city.

In San Francisco as the hands of the clock reached 12, a hush fell over the city. Bombs exploding at a great height announced the coming of noon. At the St. Francis hotel, where Queen Virginia, Don Gaspar de Portola, the foreign diplomats and naval officers were gathered at luncheon, the Taft toast was proposed and echoed at 100 points in the city.

At one minute past 12 the great guns of the coast defenses fired a salute to the new city of San Francisco, and the cannons of the great international armada in the harbor replied. Hundreds of thousands cheered and the festival was officially inaugurated.

As soon as the idea for the Portola festival was launched, President Taft expressed the greatest interest in the celebration. He visited the city a few months after the great disaster in April, 1906, and as secretary of war at that time, did much to aid the stricken inhabitants.

The president did not see the city again until his visit at the beginning of this month. He was amazed at the work of rebuilding and expressed his wonder constantly during his stay.

Early last spring, President Taft promised a toast to the city on the occasion of the Portola festival. A few days ago he wired it to the festival committee as his train was speeding through Arizona.

DR. MATSON WILL TEST MILK SAMPLES FREE OF EXPENSE

Many milk samples have been submitted to the state bacteriologist, Dr. Ralph C. Matson, tenth floor of the Cowett building, by the kind of milk delivered by the majority of dairies in the city. It is of urgent necessity that the housewives of Portland submit these samples and learn whether they are giving their babies food or poison. The bacteriological test makes no mistakes. If the milk is clean it will not be shown to be dirty; if it is dirty it will not seem to be clean unless it has been mixed with powerful preservatives. Milk containing 100,000 bacteria or less to the cubic centimeter, or quarter teaspoonful, if preservatives have not been used, is deemed good for food by the government. Milk containing more than 1,000,000 bacteria is without them. For Chills, Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Headache they work wonders. 25c. Woodward, Clarke & Co.

Delicious Doughnuts.
If you like crisp, flaky doughnuts, richly browned, and yet with not a suspicion of greasiness, try the following recipe by Mrs. Mary J. Lincoln:
Beat one cup sugar and two eggs very light, add one teaspoon melted Cottage cheese, one cup milk, and one-fourth level teaspoon each of cinnamon and salt. Mix one-half level teaspoon soda and one scant teaspoon of baking powder with one cup flour, stir it in and add more flour till stiff enough to roll out. Have as soft as possible to roll, one-third inch thick. Cut into rings and cook in hot, deep fat. The fat should be hot enough for the doughnuts to rise in the oil immediately. Doughnuts fried in lard are like lead on the stomach; lard is indigestible. Cottage cheese, on the contrary, makes food that even an infant can digest with ease.
