SAYS CONTRACTOR HAS SKIPPED OUT
C. Aerne Jr. Wants Bonds-men to Settle Bills Held Against Residence.

Because a contractor who built his house has jumped out, leaving him to hold the sack, C. Aerne Jr. has begun suit in the circuit court against A. E. Goslow and the Union Guarantee association to recover $2430 that he paid out to prevent the foreclosure and sale of his place under liens for labor and material.

While Goslow, the contractor, is named as a defendant, he has disappeared and the suit is really against the guarantee association, which put up a $4000 bond to secure Aerne against loss on liens against the contractor.

Aerne says he engaged Goslow to construct a two-story residence for $6800, the contractor furnishing all the material. But he says the contractor skipped and so many suits were threatened that he paid claims to the amount of $2430 to keep the property free from execution.

OREGON TAKES DEEP INTEREST
All Communities Seem to Be Willing to Help Advertise.

Daily letters received from Tom Richardson, manager of the Portland Commercial club and secretary of the Oregon Development league, indicate that his trip over the eastern and southern parts of the state has been an undoubted success.

Under the direction of the league, Oregon has never taken a more decided move forward in community publicity than now. During the past week, Mr. Richardson has held well attended meetings. Great interest has been shown everywhere.

Lebanon raised a publicity fund of $2500, and the money will be expended immediately on advertising, setting forth the advantages of the city and surrounding country.

Corvallis has organized a women's auxiliary to the commercial organization. Silverton business and professional men have raised an advertising fund of $2000. Forty residents have formed a commercial club. Within the month the membership is expected to jump to 100.

Lafayette and Glendale residents are much interested in the publicity movement, and are at work raising a publicity fund. Other cities are being heard from daily.
