

ARE NAMES HEARD OFTEN?

Investigation of Records Reveals Peculiar Repetition in Selection of Men to Perform Duty of Jurors—Cause for Complaint.

Twenty men were called 81 times in the aggregate for jury service on special venire in the circuit court during the last year, as shown by the jury fee book, an average of nearly seven times for each man. This shows that there is some ground for the recent complaint by lawyers that certain jurors "is called."

Indication of "Professionals."

The figures thus show that 68 men out of the 236 balanced the remaining 220 in the number of times they were summoned. This is what has given rise to the complaint among the lawyers of "professional jurors" for the frequency with which some of the faces appeared at times gave the appearance of a standing list of jurors.

These Are the Names.

- The following list shows those who were called three or more times during the last year, with the number of times they were summoned: I. A. Boskowitz, 11; S. J. Mickley, 10; W. H. ITCHING SCALY PIMPLY HUMOR

On Both His Legs—Scatched Until It Bled—Lasted Nearly Two Years in Spite of Doctor's Prescription and Neighbors' Advice.

EASY, ECONOMICAL CURE BY 2 SETS OF CUTICURA

"Three years ago small pimples appeared on both of my lower limbs. The itching was so severe that I was unable to walk until the blood would flow from a wound. The itching would be more severe towards evening and I would go to bed with my hands on my head. I went to one of the best doctors in my vicinity who gave me a prescription. This would not relieve the itching for a day or so but afterwards it would be still worse. After using several dollars' worth of this salve I tried several other remedies but to no avail. The neighbors advised using sulphur and lard but it was all fruitless.

"A few months afterwards I saw an advertisement in a newspaper of the Cuticura Remedies. I at once sent off for some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, but thinking they would be no better than the other remedies I had used I did not use them. The first order was used the second order was used and the itching ceased and after using another order of the Cuticura Remedies I was completely cured. After suffering for nearly two years I am glad to write to any one who may be interested in my cure. Carl Halderman, Marshall, Wis., October 28, 1908."

The constant use of Cuticura Soap, assisted when necessary by Cuticura Ointment, not only cures itching, but also keeps the skin, scalp, hair and hands, but prevents clogging of the pores, the common cause of pimples, blackheads, inflammation, irritation, redness, roughness and all other skin troubles. Guaranteed absolutely pure.

REAL CROSS STAMPS ARE HEARD OFTEN

Symbol of Fight Against White Plague Purchased by People Out of Town.

People who do not live in Portland where every department store and the postoffice has a Red Cross stamp booth are just as anxious as Portland people to put Red Cross stamps on their Christmas packages. So those who are unable to find a supply in their home towns are writing to Portland for them.

The requests for stamps come accompanied by money in various amounts. A letter from Laurel Bough, Prairie City, contained a dollar for a hundred stamps. In this letter emphatic ideas were expressed in red ink. It is symbolic of the ideal Christmas spirit to help suffering people by such a work as this Mr. Bough's. The idea of purchasing stamps is not so much for the sake of having them as to declare by a money expenditure one's attitude of helpfulness in the fight against the white plague. The stamps went to Portland by return mail as they will go with identical dispatch to all others who wish them enough to ask accompanied by the cash.

The campaign of the week, it is reported, will be attended by renewed and systematic fervor. Every business man who did not get a call from an officer of the army last week may anticipate such a visitation. The occupants of public buildings will not be slighted. The biggest part of the original 1,000,000 stamps and 10,000 postal cards remain yet to be changed for pennies and nickels. The women who do not propose to take any more than Sundays off until Christmas comes and the last stamp or postal has been sold. This means, they say, that they will be very busy.

Wilson's legs were frozen to the knees and the physicians hold out no hope for his recovery.

LUCKY COBS; CLAIMS HE'S GOT THEM FOR FREE

Architect King Alleges His Partners Are Systematically Persecuting Him.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) San Francisco, Dec. 4.—Robert Booth King, the Portland architect, who was arrested on Friday night by Detective Dinan and held at the Key Route Inn, Oakland, where he was spending his honeymoon, on a dispatch from that city, is chafing under his confinement and expects to be released at any moment. Captain Anderson, who Friday night sent a dispatch to the chief of police of Portland asking for instructions but no reply had been received up to this afternoon.

"A plot has been hatched by some people in Portland," said King in the prison this afternoon. "To humiliate me. My partners, Goodrich and Goodrich, have $1000 of my money and I have been pushing them to pay. It is back in view of my marriage, and that I am ready to return to Portland at any moment."
"Not Arrested at the Altar."
"I was not arrested while at the altar. There was a bill due for a launch, and the church with a paper, which he rather than have a disturbance, and I subsequently paid my friend. I borrowed $12.50 about six months ago from Edward Bruns, an art manufacturer, but surely he would not have me arrested for that. When I went to the St. Francis hotel with my wife, I did not register, but showed the management my card, as we were on our honeymoon, and I left there cases had been placed by a reporter for the Associated Press, calling and insisting on seeing me."

Found in King's Pockets.
The police found in King's pockets pawn tickets for a diamond brooch on which he got, in Portland, $108 and for old jewelry and an overcoat, on which he raised $11. The brooch they had been advised had been bought from a jeweler by King to present to his bride, but he had pawned it.
When King was asked about the brooch he explained that it would be returned to him when he returned to Portland. He denied that he had ever been in trouble before.

The proprietor of the Key Route Inn told the police he would keep King for several days until her friends could make arrangements to take her back home. When searched, King had $31 in his pockets.

GOING TO THE EAST

Final Action on Chicago Lines' Refusal to Grant Increase Is Deferred—Switchmen Impatient—Dec. 11 Crucial Date.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Chicago, Dec. 4.—Upon the attitude which the eastern railroads will take toward the great railway brotherhoods when their employees present their formal demands for an increase in New York, Dec. 11, will probably determine the question whether there will be a general railway strike in this country. This statement is based upon information tonight following a series of conferences today between Grand Master Lee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, President Garretson of the Order of Railway Conductors and a joint committee representing those two orders. President Garretson left tonight for his home at Cedar Rapids, but will return Monday, when the conference will be resumed.

Grand Master Lee remains in the city. He was uncommunicative tonight and declined to attend today's conference, but the progress of the conference was learned from other sources. Lee and Garretson have decided that the whole situation lies with the eastern railroads. Consequently, it has been practically decided that the trainmen and conductors will not press for the present their demands for a wage increase on the 21 railroads centering in Chicago. The railroads have definitely refused to grant the demands of the trainmen and conductors for higher wages, but Garretson and Lee decided today that their organizations will not take any definite action looking to a strike and will issue no ultimatum until the eastern railroads have announced their attitude.

On December 11, the employees of practically all the eastern roads will present their demands for higher wages. Lee and Garretson, representing the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors, will go to New York in a few days to conduct the negotiations. They believe the western railroads will agree their own ultimatum in the controversy by the course taken by easterners. Hence, the big orders will shape their course in the same way. Inasmuch as there is believed to be a general understanding of the four big brotherhoods, the action to be taken following the eastern negotiations will determine the immediate future of the railway employees of the country.

Chicago Switchmen Restless. Meanwhile, the acute situation in regard to the switchmen of Chicago has not abated. Many of these men are eager to go on strike in sympathy with the switchmen on the northwestern roads. A meeting of representatives of the union and conductors of the switchmen of North America was held here tonight to get an expression from the rank and file as to the advisability of striking. Fiery speeches and the definite promise rapidly growing throughout the city, and every effort must be made to suppress it. You will instruct all patrolmen to notify all proprietors of places where this evil is practiced, and refresh their minds on the law which prohibits the dice-throwing evil. In the event the warning given does not prove effective, arrest all persons violating this law, and charge them with gambling. A. M. COX, chief of Police."

LEAVES WITH CASH AND BOOKS

W. M. Conklin Disappears in Mysterious Manner and Criminal Proceedings May Follow—Receiver Wanted for Company.

W. M. Conklin, president of W. M. Conklin & Co., a real estate firm with central offices in the Wells-Fargo building and two branch offices on Grand avenue, left the city three or four days ago, and criminal proceedings are threatened against him as a result of the Grand jury action in which his books were left. Minority stockholders allege that some of the books are missing and say that he took all of the available cash when he departed.
A suit to wind up the affairs of the company was begun yesterday in the circuit court by F. H. Whitfield, as attorney for Mrs. Nellie L. Price, a minority stockholder and one of the three directors of the company. The other two directors are Conklin and his wife, Mrs. Vera C. Conklin. Mrs. Conklin was the secretary of the company and she is also missing. She is supposed to be with her husband.
As a result of the allegations made in the complaint of Mrs. Price, Presiding Judge Brown promptly appointed A. D. Widney as receiver for the company. He has been acting as the general manager. He will take charge of the books and try to determine how the affairs of the company stand. Attorney Whitfield said last night that he is unable to give a clear statement of the affair, as some of the books of the company are missing and the remaining books are in a confused state. A statement for the press in a few days. He said that he is ignorant of the whereabouts of Conklin.
"Money that ought to be on hand is missing," said Mr. Whitfield. "How much we do not know. I cannot say much beyond the facts stated in the complaint. It was this inability to learn how we stand that forced us to ask for a receiver. Mr. Conklin is gone, we do not know where, and Mrs. Conklin, the secretary, is gone. Mrs. Price is the only director left in the city, and it became impossible to carry on the affairs of the company. We may take steps to prosecute Mr. Conklin and to apprehend him, but have not determined our action in that regard as yet." In the complaint it is alleged that the assets of the company amount to about $17,000. The concern is said to be indebted $3000 on open accounts, $5100 on real estate mortgages, $3000 on notes, and an unknown amount on outstanding contracts. It is stated that the flight of Conklin from the state has made it impossible to carry on the business, and a receivership is declared necessary.

ADRIFT IN LIFE BOAT 40 HOURS

Millionaire and Guests Suffer When Yacht Goes on Rocks.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Paris, Dec. 4.—Eugene Higgins of New York, worth $100,000, arrived here today from Madeira, where, on November 16, his magnificent steam yacht, the Varuna, was dashed ashore and lost.
The story told today by the survivors of the party shows that Higgins and his wife were in dire peril, both when the ship went on the rocks and when, in a terrific gale, they put to sea in a lifeboat, without knowing even approximately where they were. Captain Oliver de la Maziello, one of Mr. Higgins' guests, told a thrilling story of the shipwreck. The Varuna left Bermuda October 8, and encountered heavy seas all the way across the Atlantic. For several days the skies had been so overcast the navigating officers could not take their bearings. On the night of the wreck the ship was pitching so heavily the guests were compelled to strap themselves to their chairs in the main salon.
At 2 o'clock in the morning, when all had retired, the ship went on uncharted rocks. Dr. Wing, one of the guests, was swept overboard, but managed to reach a lifeboat thrown him. The captain and a number of the crew refused to leave the vessel, so Higgins himself took command. His crew was made up of stokers and engineers, not a sailor in the lot. The waves swept over the deck and those not rowing were kept constantly at work bailing. For nearly 40 hours the boat drifted before sighting land.

Spokane Cooks Threaten Strike. Spokane, Wash., Dec. 4.—Spokane is threatened with a strike among the cooks and kitchen help in all the restaurants operated by members of the Hotel and Restaurant Keepers' Protective association because of new house rules posted in these places. Restaurant men just posted rules stating that no miscellaneous kitchen help need belong to the union. The cooks declare this is a violation of the agreement with them, as it was understood that no non-union help will be employed in the kitchen unless it is impossible to get competent union help, and that even in such cases the help must join the union after a reasonable time.

For some time reports have been current among the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gates that they had quarreled. A short time ago Mrs. Gates went east, although she and her husband had recently moved into an elegant new home. Suit was filed in the circuit court yesterday by Wilbur & Spencer.

One thousand dollars per month alimony in the sum asked for by Mrs. Higgins in her complaint, and she prays for $50 per month additional for the support of their 9-year-old son, whose custody she desires awarded to her. She says her husband has an income of at least $3000 per month, and is therefore amply able to pay the sums named.
Mrs. Gates alleges that her husband frequently came home intoxicated, and that his conduct became unbearable. On October 15, she says, he struck her with his hand and threatened to kill her. She asserts that liquor frequently made him harsh in language and unbearable in his conduct.
Mr. Gates was married in Louisville, Ky., on February 1, 1900. He is manager of G. W. Gates & Co., lumber dealers, and is a large stockholder in the St. Johns Lumber company. His chief real estate holding consists of two blocks of real estate, valued at $100,000. The complaint is to be worth $15,000.

"Money that ought to be on hand is missing," said Mr. Whitfield. "How much we do not know. I cannot say much beyond the facts stated in the complaint. It was this inability to learn how we stand that forced us to ask for a receiver. Mr. Conklin is gone, we do not know where, and Mrs. Conklin, the secretary, is gone. Mrs. Price is the only director left in the city, and it became impossible to carry on the affairs of the company. We may take steps to prosecute Mr. Conklin and to apprehend him, but have not determined our action in that regard as yet." In the complaint it is alleged that the assets of the company amount to about $17,000. The concern is said to be indebted $3000 on open accounts, $5100 on real estate mortgages, $3000 on notes, and an unknown amount on outstanding contracts. It is stated that the flight of Conklin from the state has made it impossible to carry on the business, and a receivership is declared necessary.

WALTER GATES SUED FOR DIVORCE

Clubman Is Charged With Cruelty and Overindulgence in Liquor.

G. Walter Gates, society and clubman, prominent as a lumberman, has here today filed a complaint and suit for divorce by Adeline Meek Gates, who charges him with treating her cruelly and with over indulgence in liquor. She says he struck her and threatened to kill her.
For some time reports have been current among the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gates that they had quarreled. A short time ago Mrs. Gates went east, although she and her husband had recently moved into an elegant new home. Suit was filed in the circuit court yesterday by Wilbur & Spencer.

One thousand dollars per month alimony in the sum asked for by Mrs. Higgins in her complaint, and she prays for $50 per month additional for the support of their 9-year-old son, whose custody she desires awarded to her. She says her husband has an income of at least $3000 per month, and is therefore amply able to pay the sums named.
Mrs. Gates alleges that her husband frequently came home intoxicated, and that his conduct became unbearable. On October 15, she says, he struck her with his hand and threatened to kill her. She asserts that liquor frequently made him harsh in language and unbearable in his conduct.
Mr. Gates was married in Louisville, Ky., on February 1, 1900. He is manager of G. W. Gates & Co., lumber dealers, and is a large stockholder in the St. Johns Lumber company. His chief real estate holding consists of two blocks of real estate, valued at $100,000. The complaint is to be worth $15,000.

ADRIFT IN LIFE BOAT 40 HOURS

Millionaire and Guests Suffer When Yacht Goes on Rocks.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Paris, Dec. 4.—Eugene Higgins of New York, worth $100,000, arrived here today from Madeira, where, on November 16, his magnificent steam yacht, the Varuna, was dashed ashore and lost.
The story told today by the survivors of the party shows that Higgins and his wife were in dire peril, both when the ship went on the rocks and when, in a terrific gale, they put to sea in a lifeboat, without knowing even approximately where they were. Captain Oliver de la Maziello, one of Mr. Higgins' guests, told a thrilling story of the shipwreck. The Varuna left Bermuda October 8, and encountered heavy seas all the way across the Atlantic. For several days the skies had been so overcast the navigating officers could not take their bearings. On the night of the wreck the ship was pitching so heavily the guests were compelled to strap themselves to their chairs in the main salon.
At 2 o'clock in the morning, when all had retired, the ship went on uncharted rocks. Dr. Wing, one of the guests, was swept overboard, but managed to reach a lifeboat thrown him. The captain and a number of the crew refused to leave the vessel, so Higgins himself took command. His crew was made up of stokers and engineers, not a sailor in the lot. The waves swept over the deck and those not rowing were kept constantly at work bailing. For nearly 40 hours the boat drifted before sighting land.
