

TRAITORS CHEER MEN WATERWAYS

Chamberlain Cheers Them Up Again—Teal's Oregon Apples Make a Hit.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, Dec. 9.—President Taft's position on rivers and harbors improvement is distinct disapproval of the National Rivers and Harbors Association. This is indicated in the determination of the resolutions committee to report resolutions favoring the bond policy which has been insisted on by that association for several years past.

In his address President Taft maintained his policy of remaining on the fence regarding the advisability of the government's issuing bonds to make waterway improvements. He declared that he favored securing a declaration from congress in favor of the improvement of the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers, leaving the matter of bonds for consideration later.

The president's speech threw cold water upon the proceedings. The convention, however, regained its wonted enthusiasm when Senator Chamberlain spoke and insisted on a liberal bond policy and expedition in the improvement of the waterways. He declared that he favored securing a declaration from congress in favor of the improvement of the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers, leaving the matter of bonds for consideration later.

BANKER NEWHOUSE IN RACE WITH DEATH

(United Press Special Wire.) New York, Dec. 9.—Entering upon the last lap of the race against death to the bedridden, Samuel Newhouse, a banker of Salt Lake City, embarked yesterday on the liner Lusitania.

Newhouse left Salt Lake City on the Los Angeles limited train of the Salt Lake line two hours after the receipt of a cable from his brother's physician, probably fatal illness. His train was delayed seven hours by blizzards in the middle west and he missed the train in Chicago that would have brought him to New York in time for the sailing of the Lusitania, on which he had engaged passage by telegram.

The determined man immediately chartered a special train on the Lake Shore line, and continued his journey. Despite the fact that he lost 45 minutes because of a disabled engine at Hudson, N. Y., he completed the Chicago-New York run in 17 hours, 46 minutes, shattering the eastbound record over that road by 14 minutes.

PORTLAND NEEDS MORE LIBRARIES

Association Brings Matter Up for Discussion at Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting of the Library association last night the two most important questions to come before the association in reports and discussion were the establishment of branch libraries and the establishment of school-room libraries.

There are at present only three branch libraries, and with the Library building now taxed to the maximum, the association feels that the time has come to take definite steps to better the conditions. Although the establishment of branches would not do much toward relieving the congested conditions of books in the main building, it would do much toward taking care of the people.

The branches now established are in Sellwood, Albina and on the east side. In each of these cases the accommodations are wholly inadequate. On the east side the building is attractive but temporary, and will not last much longer. In Albina and Sellwood the branches are in cheap store rooms, which have been rented for the purpose, and which are not at all adequate. The library extension committee recommended the expenditure of $20,000 each year for the erection of suitable and dignified branch libraries.

If such an arrangement can be made it was further recommended that the first building be erected in Albina. This last recommendation was made because of the great activity in this district, which contains people of many nationalities, and of all walks of life. There has been an increase of 25 per cent in this branch during the last year.

Branches would answer. However, it is urged that the next best plan be followed, and that branches such as those already in use be established as fast as possible. In that case Mount Tabor and the Peninsula districts would be given the first consideration.

All of the reports showed that Portland is way behind other cities in the matter of establishing branches with their own collection of books, attractive reading rooms and convenient lecture halls.

Although Miss Ieom's report dealt with all phases of the work, her chief concern was for the establishment of schoolroom libraries. She pointed out the great need for existing circumstances, there are thousands of children in Portland who do not know where the library is, and if they do know, they live so far away that their parents will not allow them to visit it. She further urged that the next best plan be followed, and that branches such as those already in use be established as fast as possible.

Portland stands almost alone among cities of its size in the doubtful glory of not having a library supervisor and neglect. Surely during the coming year some plan of cooperation with the school board can be devised which will permit at least the beginning of this most important work.

Suggests Plan

So said Miss Ieom, and this is her plan, which would cost all call for an expenditure of about $10,000 by the school board. Given the money, the library association would buy the books, establish the libraries in the various rooms, and change the books when necessary, and appoint a supervisor to see that the books are suited to the needs of the rooms and properly cared for. The library would maintain all expense except the original purchase, and the supervisor would of course expect to cooperate with the teachers in such a work.

Early last fall committees were appointed by the school board and library association to confer on this subject, but so far no definite steps have been taken.

All of the reports showed great increase in every department of the library work. Some discussion was entered into upon the question of the crowded condition of the library and the advisability of selling the present building and erecting a new library on a different site. Such a move, however, is considered a little premature at this time, and more importance is attached to the establishment of branches in the schools and over the city.
