

DR. FRITCH FACES GREATEST CHARGE

Held for Death of Maybelle Millman, Whose Body Was Found in a Small Creek.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 12.—No criminal trial in years has stirred Detroit to such a high pitch of interest as is manifested at present in the case of Dr. George A. Fritch, who faces a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Maybelle Millman, the Ann Arbor girl whose body was fished from Ecorse creek last October. The prosecuting attorney hopes to have the trial of Dr. Fritch concluded before the end of this week.

Public interest in the case is due largely to the fact that crimes of a character of which Dr. Fritch is accused have been unusually numerous in Detroit of late years and in practically none of the cases has it been possible to secure a conviction. Dr. Fritch, according to the allegations of the police, has long been a foremost disciple of a disreputable class of physicians who make criminal operations their specialty. In the present case the evidence against him appears to be incontrovertible.

On the morning of September 7 last the body of the Millman girl was found sewed in a sack floating in Ecorse creek. The following day the head of the victim was found about 10 yards up stream from the place where the body had been found. The head was sewed in the same kind of a burlap bag as the one containing the trunk. Several days elapsed before the remains were finally identified by Miss Martha Henning as those of her former schoolmate and chum, Maybelle Millman of Ann Arbor. The scene of the investigation was then shifted from Detroit to the university city where the Millman girl had lived with her widowed mother.

Girl Goes to Detroit. The police found that on August 14 the girl had left her home, telling her mother that she was coming to Detroit to visit her former schoolmate, Miss Henning. The latter, when questioned by the police admitted that she knew that Miss Millman had wished to undergo an illegal operation and had mentioned the name of Dr. Fritch.

The physician was well known to the police by reason of his past experiences. In 1907 he had been arrested in connection with the death of Miss Edith Wesley, professor for the state normal school. When the prosecution of a member of the state legislature failed for lack of evidence the doctor was released.

The Millman case promised for a while to take the same turn, as the evidence against Dr. Fritch was wholly of a circumstantial character. He was strongly suspected of having been responsible for the girl's death, but evidence to convict him was lacking. As a consequence he was released on bond within a week after his arrest. Then came a development of a startling nature which, according to the police, supplied the missing link in the evidence against the suspected physician.

Chauffeur Also Arrested. Joseph W. Leach, a chauffeur, was taken into custody and according to his alleged confession he was the man who assisted Dr. Fritch in conveying to the remains of the dead girl from the physician's office to the spot where they were subsequently discovered. In a signed statement he declared that Fritch called him to his office about 3 o'clock the night the Millman girl disappeared, and related in detail how he was shown three sacks and asked to indicate a place where there was a deep body of water into which they might be thrown with no danger of their being found.

Dr. Fritch, according to a member's confession, fearing that the contents of the bags might permit them to float and so be discovered, went to his home and obtained an armful of bricks, which he thrust into the bags to their capacity. The bricks were found on the same premises as other bricks that were found on Dr. Fritch's premises when he was arrested.

Based on the evidence it is said the police formed the theory that Dr. Fritch had performed an illegal operation on the girl and that it had proved fatal, either as its direct effect or through the administration of an anesthetic. Finding himself in this predicament, the physician could see but one safe course. That was secreting the body in a manner that would preclude its discovery. Fearing that a charge of murder would not withstand the legal onslaughts which the accused physician's confession and influence insure, the prosecutor is undertaking to connect the doctor with the crime by charging him with the maximum penalty for manslaughter in 15 years penal servitude.

CHILD'S AFFECTIONS ARE OF NO VALUE

New York, Dec. 12.—The cash value of a daughter's affection, in the eyes of the law, is nothing, according to a decision handed down by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins, in White Plains. John Miles, a wealthy millinery wholesaler at 610 Broadway, Manhattan, has sued his wife and Thomas M. Cuthbert, a New York lawyer, for $100,000 damages, alleging that they had estranged from him his two daughters, Florence, 18, and Marion, 11 years old. Justice Tompkins says the value of a daughter's affection—even if proved—is no ground for a suit for damages.

DO NOT WANT RABBIS APPOINTED TO ARMY

New York, Dec. 12.—A proposal that the United States government be requested to appoint rabbis as chaplains for Hebrew soldiers in the army was voted down at the central conference of rabbis after a spirited debate. Professor G. B. Davis, who declared that the conference was going in the wrong direction. He said the Hebrews objected to a mixture of church and state; they opposed the teaching of the Bible in the schools and for these reasons they should ask congress to do a sectarian act.

JUVENILE COURTS FOR POLITICAL PURPOSES

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 12.—Rapidly Pennsylvania politicians are even preparing to use the project of establishing juvenile courts for the making of places for their henchmen, according to the indictment of Judge Ben B. Lindsey, foremost exponent of the work of saving children. An attack on the Pennsylvania politicians was made in a letter read before the board of managers of the National Congress of Mothers.

"Amendments to the laws concerning juvenile courts are being prepared as amended as a substitute to be introduced into the house of representatives."

BOB CAT COMES TO TOWN FOR CHICKEN AND MEETS WATERLOO

Living in a suburb gave Rex Buzan, a Journal Linotype machine operator, a taste of real frontier life Saturday evening, when a bobcat, apparently driven out of the hills by the snow, raided his chicken house at Milwaukie Heights. Prompt use of a shotgun brought the animal down. Buzan and wife hurried to the chicken house to investigate.

When the electric light was snapped on, standing in the middle of the chicken house with a fluttering rooster in his mouth, stood the bobcat. He was apparently blinded by the bright light turned full in his eyes, and before he had an opportunity to move two shots were fired into his head.
