

HARDWARE FOR GOOD ROADS

WAREHOUSE HERE

The Pacific Hardware & Steel Company will begin construction of a large warehouse in this city in a few days, authority to that effect having been received today by Arthur C. Callan, manager of the company's large rolling mill in North Portland. The proposed warehouse will be devoted to the carrying of a general hardware stock, such as tools, building hardware, sporting goods and utensils.

The building will cover a ground space of 290x200 feet and will occupy a site in the vicinity of the large rolling mill at Nicolai and the foot of Twenty-second streets, options having been secured a few days ago on the property. The building will be of mill construction, four stories in height and in addition to the warehouse will have large salesrooms. It will be much of the same style of architecture as the company's buildings recently erected in Los Angeles and of about the same size as the company's main building in San Francisco which covers a ground space of 275x275 feet but is only three stories in height.

Building Will Cost $175,000.
The building will be erected at a cost of approximately $175,000. The work will be done by day labor and it is estimated to have the structure completed within four months. Selection of the site will be made next week and the construction will be commenced immediately thereafter.

With the new warehouse and salesrooms and stocks and the rolling mills, the company will have about $1,000,000 invested in its Portland branch, according to Manager Callan.

Adding to Portland's Field.
The building of the warehouse will mean much to this city, not only because of its giving employment to a number of persons, but also because it will increase Portland's position as a distributing point in hardware lines as much of the territory now covered by the San Francisco house will in all probability be turned over to Portland. It will also mean an extension of the city into the northern territory, the bulk of which is now largely controlled by the Marshall-Wells company, which has operated a large branch with salesrooms and warehouses here for several years with a constantly increasing volume of trade.

The building of new railroads and the opening of new fields of trade is attracting the attention of the large manufacturers and it is predicted that other concerns will soon make preparations for further facilitating their connections with dealers throughout the entire Pacific northwest by selecting Portland for the distributing center.

IMPLEMENT THE RETAIL ASSOCIATION WORKS HARD ON VERY IMPORTANT PROBLEMS.

The Oregon Retail Hardware and Implement Dealers' association will go on record this afternoon in favor of the Good Roads movement, along the lines suggested by J. N. Teal, when he spoke at the banquet given at the Commercial club last night. The committee on resolutions this morning embodied this feature in the report drawn up. The report will come to a vote this afternoon.

The hardware men are much in favor of better roads, because better roads, it is conceded, will mean better business, especially for the retailer. With good means of reaching the towns and stores, it is held there will be an increase, and the hardware men are not losing sight of this fact. It is, therefore, believed that the resolution will be adopted unanimously, and having the effect that every delegate will return to his home town or city to take up the matter before its local government or the commercial, push or improvement club which may be working for the upbuilding of the community.

Against Parcel Post.
Another resolution that will undoubtedly carry will be that opposing legislation providing for parcel post delivery. The retailers are opposed to this, because they fear it would divert much of their business to the large mail-order houses.

The morning session of the convention, which is being held in assembly hall of the Commercial club, was devoted largely to trade talk, the reading of reports and reports and other routine matters. This afternoon considerable attention will be given to complaints, not a few of which it is understood will refer to the methods of dealing of certain jobbers.

The intention is to conclude the convention this evening, but it is possible that it may have to be carried over another day.

Mahon obtained judgment for $42,606. The place was sold to J. P. Porter for $10,321 and the time for redemption will expire on July 21. The estate has not the money on hand to save the place, but upon the statement that the money can be obtained from Merritt C. Griswold on the credit of the estate, payable in one year, County Judge Webster authorized the borrowing of the money.
