

WORLD'S GREATEST INDEXING SYSTEM

A GIGANTIC WORK

Every Scientific Publication in World Digested, Requiring Seventeen Volumes Yearly—More Funds Needed.

By Frederic J. Haskin.
Washington, Jan. 19.—Without any fanfare of publicity or other ostentation that would attract the attention of the general public, there is being carried to successful culmination the greatest indexing work of the ages. This great index is the International Catalogue of Scientific Literature, starting with the beginning of the present century. Each year there is published 17 volumes, in which are catalogued every contribution to scientific knowledge made in every country of the world. Twelve thousand pages are required to list these according to authors and subjects.

Ingenious Plan.
To have one consolidated index of all the doings of mankind in the field of science is to possess one of the most valuable aids to human endeavor. And that is what the International Catalogue is aimed to be. It aims not only to cite the title and the author of every scientific book and paper, but briefly to supply an analytical digest of the subject-matter of each. This is accomplished by means of representative heads and figures subheads, and by these symbols the user of the index can determine at once what subjects are treated in each contribution cited.

This great publication, growing at a rate that will make 1700 volumes by the end of the present century, is not in existence as a money making scheme. In fact, there is no provision whatever for the use of any surplus that might accrue from its publication and sale. It is purely a permanent establishment of world cooperation, with no other aim than to support itself and become invaluable to the race. It has commanded the active cooperation of nearly every civilized government, and is the product of the leading scientific minds of the globe.

Smithsonian Institution in Charge.
The task of its preparation is divided into three sections. First comes the gathering of the material. This is done by each nation which supports the catalogue, through what is known as the regional bureaus. The Smithsonian Institution has charge of the bureau for this country. Nearly every scientific publication in the United States is sent to the Smithsonian, and everything that comes there is indexed. Then recourse is had to every index published in this country. Every stone of literature that may cover some scientific truth is turned in the patient search for new matter. Five experts are busily engaged throughout the year, and they index as accurately as a bloodhound can scent the hunted criminal. When New Year comes they are ready to offer a reward for the article they have missed.

Sent to London.
When the index for the United States is finished it is sent to London, where it meets the indexes made in a similar way by other nations. The central bureau there, following prescribed rules, then proceeds to consolidate all of the contributions into one. This is a great labor, and largely accounts for the delay in the appearance of the volumes of the finished index. As there are hundreds of thousands of entries to be classified properly, and a great deal of careful editing to be done, the wonder is that the printed volumes are not even more tardy in their appearance. Furthermore, some of the regional bureaus are inclined to be slow in getting up their indexes, which seriously delays the central bureau in its work.

Printing a Task.
The third task is the printing. To publish 17 volumes a year, containing 15,000 pages of matter, with accuracy is the first essential, is a task worthy of the best printer. It is slow and tedious work. Made up of so much of symbols, in which one sign is not a guide to the one that follows, the printer and proof-reader must be all attention. When the work is published the price is $5 per set. Unfortunately the scientists who are ever adding to the world's wealth seldom accumulate much money for themselves, and many of them find the price prohibitive. The sponsors of the catalogue have been anxious to lower the price, but they have not succeeded in doing so up to this time. However, they are still hoping and praying that some philanthropic person will endow the work, so that the catalogue may be more widely distributed and hence of more general use.

The catalogue has been running since 1900. The regional bureaus are pro-

Passengers Riding on Running-board Mangled in Collision at San Francisco.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Jan. 19.—One man is dead, several others are injured and seven others are in various hospitals with more or less serious injuries, as results of a collision of two cars on the Castro street line last night in which the victims were maimed.

From accounts of eye witnesses, the men who were injured were on the inside footrail of a Castro car bound up the hill from Eighteenth street. The rear end of a downward bound car on the parallel track, in some unaccountable manner, scraped along the upward bound car, crushing and injuring its passengers on the running board.

All of those injured were ground into the mass of wreckage caused by the collision and none escaped serious hurt. The injured are:
John F. Scully, fractured pelvis, had fracture of both legs and crushed foot; may die.
Joseph Foley, both legs crushed below the knees.
Archie Jordan, compound fracture of right arm, right foot crushed.
Gripman C. W. Drummond of the downward bound car was arrested, but he claimed he could not account for the accident.

Exhibitors Play Hide and Seek with Cars
Strenuous efforts are being made by the management of the automobile show of the Portland Automobile club to get track of the cars which are on the road in the neighborhood of 12 carloads of automobiles, most of them intended for use at the show, on the road to the city, but little trace of them has been found.

The Oregon Railroad & Navigation company handles the cars with all possible haste whenever they find them, but the trouble lies largely with the eastern roads which seem to be nearly paralyzed by snow and strike troubles. Some of the cars have been on the road close to 45 days. The Oregon Railroad & Navigation company has promised that if necessary a special train will be made up and the cars rushed through. They may be called upon to do this.

One change in the personnel of exhibitors was made this morning when it was found that the Willamette Auto Supply company, agents for the McIntyre, would be forced to give up its space. It was promptly taken up by the Smith Motor Car company, the Harvey agent, and C. W. Vaughn, the Carter car agent.

MOTHER SAYS VACCINE VIRUS KILLED CHILD
(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Jan. 19.—Alleging that the death of her little son, Harvey, was due to tainted vaccine virus supplied by the city health authorities, Mrs. Alma Iserman is plaintiff in a superior court action to recover damages in the sum of $25,000. In the suit she filed she named as defendants the board of health and the H. K. Mulford company of Pennsylvania, manufacturers of the virus.

According to Mrs. Iserman's complaint her son was vaccinated in July, 1909, by Dr. J. F. Watkins, city physician, because she could not afford to send him to a private physician. She alleged that the vaccine virus contained tetanus germs, and blood poisoning was caused.
She is represented by Attorney Carroll Cook.

He will leave for Oxford next October to continue the study of medicine which he began here.

WANT UNIFORM INSURANCE LAWS

A. Johnson, Rich, Or.—The cattle raising industry in Oregon will be a thing of the past ere long. The small farms are taking the big ranches and ranges are fast disappearing. We will be paying 50 cents a pound for beef within 20 years, in my prediction, while pork will be reasonably cheap. But the cattle must surely go.

G. W. Terwilliger, Medbury, Idaho—We are going to make Medbury the model and best city in Idaho. It is so situated that all that is required to make a city surrounds it—the finest land in the state, the best climate, plenty of water, small acreages, and the population will reach the 100,000 mark on the farms alone, because there is enough land to go around. It is situated on the main line of railroad and also on the great Snake river, so that there is really nothing lacking. We will be able to raise any kind of fruit that the great northwest produces. And it is backed by men who have the determination to do things as they ought to be done.

Frank Lazarus, Hayden, Colo.—This country certainly looks better to me than Colorado. I find that the opportunities are away better here than elsewhere and the difference in climate is worth all it costs to get here. I've been freighting for the past 20 years in Colorado and now I am going to stay here in Oregon and try to get thawed out by the time I am too old to enjoy life. What makes me sore is that I didn't come here 20 years ago.

Life Insurance Presidents, in Session, Would Prolong Life of Man.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Presidents of life insurance companies, representing more than 15,000,000 out of a total of 20,000,000 in the United States and Canada, are in attendance at the third annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, which opened at the New Willard hotel today for a two days' session. One of the principal subjects to be discussed by the meeting being "The Problems Arising from the Dissimilarity of State Laws and Conflict of State Practices," the holding of it here and at this time makes it particularly opportune in view of the fact that the National Civic Federation, now in session here, has for its principal aim to bring about greater uniformity in the state laws on various important subjects.

Taft and Hughes on Program.
The meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents which opened today, promises to be exceptionally important, and President Taft as well as Governor Hughes of New York have consented to deliver addresses. The program has been divided into three sections. The first section will deal with the various problems arising from the dissimilarity of state laws, and papers on the subject will be delivered by L. G. Foye, president of the Fidelity Mutual Life of Philadelphia, Judge George H. Noyes, general counsel of the Northwestern Mutual Life of Milwaukee, and John A. Hartigan of St. Paul.

Opposes Assembly Plan.
Cottage Grove, Or., Jan. 19.—At its last meeting Coast Fort grange of the Patrons of Husbandry adopted resolutions opposing the "assembly plan" and endorsing the direct primary law, opposing the raising of the salary of any officer of Oregon for any cause whatever, unless by the initiative, and demanding the repeal of the sawdust and game law.

SOUTH HONORS MEMORY OF GENERAL R. E. LEE
Richmond, Va., Jan. 19.—The one hundred and third anniversary of the birth of General Robert E. Lee was celebrated throughout the south today. In Virginia as well as in Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Alabama and Arkansas the day is observed as a legal holiday. Business was practically suspended in many cities, and the schools were opened only in the morning to allow commemorative exercises to be held.

Particularly elaborate were the celebrations in Alabama, where the Confederates established their first capital. The Confederate Veterans and the Daughters of the Confederacy conducted the memorial exercises.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 19.—General Lee's birthday was generally observed throughout the state today, and many societies in this city held commemorative services with music, speeches and singing of old Confederate songs.
