LARGE AUDIENCE WITH AFFINITY

Concert by Apollo Club One
Round of Pleasure for Music Lovers.

By G. I. W.
The Apollo club gave a delightful concert last night at the Masonic temple to open its season. Only complete things can be said. The club has improved remarkably since last year and when it is remembered that it was then the best trained chorus ever heard here, that is a good deal to say. The balance is better preserved this year and the notes are taken up and dropped with more precision. The shading is a little finer and more delicate and more confidence is shown throughout the work. The club is one that might be heard to advantage anywhere.

Aggregation Does Work.
It is customary but not polite to speak of the soloist first at a choral or an orchestral concert. The preponderance of work is done by the aggregation and their work represents more hard, untiring effort than does the solo work, yet the soloist is almost always given the star position of mention. One cannot well say that H. W. Newton of Spokane, tenor, was the only point of interest at last night's concert, for, as already hinted, the choral work was well nigh perfect. However, Mr. Newton was storming with enthusiasm and applause and might have taken any number of encores had he wished, for his voice offered a rare combination. It is of the beautiful mellow quality and he sings in the high tenor register and the low baritone with equal ease and sweetness. There is no straining and the flexibility with which he can pass from a soft, low note to a high forte command admiration. His voice is under perfect command, smooth and sweet, yet powerful and dramatic.

Soloists Sing Appreciated.
Landon Ronald's four songs of the hill were dainty bits exquisitely given, but his best work was shown in his second group. The Rubenstein "Sine First I Met Thee" was superbly given with a ringing note of pathos. "Four Seasons" (Winter) was a charming thing in grace and daintiness and the favorite "My Love is Like the Red, Red Rose" (MacDermid) could hardly have been given with a more bewitching lilt. The commanding number of the evening was easily Dudley Buck's "Chorus of Spirits and Hours" which is a big dramatic number with words from Shelley's "Prometheus Unbound." The music is weirdly beautiful at the beginning and rather realistic in type. It ends with a splendid flourish of triumph and gorgeous climactic effect. Mr. Newton sang the solo parts and he must have been proud of the support he received from the chorus. Such beautiful swelling crescendos, such faintly shaded diminuendos, such dignified tone and volume, fairly swept the audience off its feet and demanded a repetition of the latter part of the number.

Chorus Number an Opener.
Of the other chorus numbers "A Song of the West," with words by John Gill and music by Strauss, adapted by Mr. Boyer, made a good opening number with lots of spirit and beauty. There is beautiful melody in the song and the bass section has some fine low work. "The Birth of the Opal" (Naidinger) was a beautiful number, with words by the composer. The lesser work included "Absent," "De Sandman," with a pretty humming accompaniment effectively done, "Silent Recollection" (Pache) and southern melodies in pretty harmony. A vocal number, "Stratus," adapted by You'll Remember Me" and "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" gave a touch of humor at the same time that it showed the comparative strength of the tenor and bass sections.

Policeman Caught
Taking Nice Snooze
Another policeman was found asleep on his beat last night. B. R. Everett, member of the second night relief, was the man. Chief Coy asked him for his star and keys this morning and directed him to explain before the police committee. He was suspended pending the hearing. Sergeant Keller found Patrolman Everett asleep in the office of the Sunny-side Wood yard. It appears he would report on time, and return to the wood yard mid take a nap. Everett forgot, however, to report from 3 o'clock until 5 o'clock this morning.

FOR YOUR SLUGGISH LIVER

There is nothing quite so good as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters; at least this is the statement made by thousands of satisfied users, and they ought to know. When the liver is inactive the symptoms are easily noticed—coated tongue, bad taste and breath, yellow complexion, severe headaches. If you will only think for a moment, you can soon locate the cause—an overloaded stomach and constipated bowels. Why not assist these organs back to their normal condition today by the aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters? The liver will then be greatly benefited also, and your "bilious spells" quickly disappear. Guard against their return by taking the Bitters regularly. It is for Poor Appetite, Belching, Heartburn, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Risings, Costiveness, Biliousness, Kidney Ills, Colds, Grippe, General Weakness and Malaria.

It was a quarrel with wife No. 2 that started an investigation which revealed John Ross, 24 years old, an electrician for the Oregon Electric company, to be a bigamist. He has been living at 148 Park street, and wife No. 1 is in San Francisco. The second wife caused the arrest and he is held in the county jail under bail of $1000.

Eloped With No. 2.
Ross was married December 23, 1909, to Helen Jenkins, with whom he eloped from California. They were married by Judge Gantenbein. One evening last week Ross and his wife became engaged in a quarrel. She threatened to leave him, whereupon he replied that he did not need a divorce from her. She asked him to explain what he meant. This aroused the suspicion of wife No. 2 and she took the matter up with the marriage license clerk of San Francisco. She received word that John Ross had been married, but the question was then one of identity.

Explains Second Marriage.
"What are you going to do with your Portland wife?" asked Fitzgerald. "I cannot well say that," as he saw the trap. Then he explained the marriage between himself and wife No. 2 was not legal, as she had been married under a fictitious name. He said, however, he had deserted his first wife because she had threatened his life and struck him several times with a butcher knife. He left her and eloped.

OREGON SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., Feb. 8.—C. Sam Smith, who was convicted in the circuit court for Crook county of arson largely on the testimony of Larkin Elliott, a self-confessed accomplice, who swore that he and Smith had burned the sheep shed and wool packing house of ex-Congressman J. N. Williamson, as part of a well conceived plan to injure the ex-congressman's property, was granted a new trial by the supreme court today.

GUEST CRAWLS DOWN FIRE ESCAPE

T. J. Ryan, who registered at the Imperial hotel about 7 o'clock last night from Eugene, Or., and was given room No. 728, on the seventh floor, got an idea toward midnight that burglars were trying to get in his apartment. He thought he heard thieves try his door, and got out of his bed and piled all the movable furniture, including the bed, against it. Ryan dressed and wandered about in his room until 8 o'clock this morning. He thought he heard the door-knob rattle again, so he climbed out the window and along the ledge to the fire escape. Then he went building the iron stairway, which runs down the Seventh-street front of the hotel building, as fast as he could go.

DETECTIVE DIES MYSTERIOUSLY

Pistol Shot Ends Life of A. T. Barnes — Coroner Will Hold Inquest.

A. T. Barnes, 108 East Thirty-second street, employed by the Thiel Detective agency, room 203 of the Chamber of Commerce building, was killed yesterday evening by a pistol shot through the head. The intention of the shot is a question in the minds of the authorities, but all indications point to suicide. Some are inclined to a theory of accident. Charles Mapes, another member of the agency, was the only man in the room at the time of the shooting.

Had Been Playing Cards.
According to Mapes they had been playing cards in the office of the agency. Barnes was considerably under the influence of liquor. The two men had been playing for small sums of money, and Barnes lost until the last game, when he won what he had lost. At the close of the game he stepped to a closet, took his gun from a holster, and stepped to the center of the room. Mapes was shuffling the cards and did not look up. He heard Barnes say: "This is the way it's done." The gun's report immediately followed, and when Mapes looked up, Barnes was sinking to the floor.

COOS BAY GETS THOSE LOBSTERS

Hawley Asks for Better Public Building at Salem—Chamberlain to New York.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)
Washington, Feb. 8.—Coos Bay gets the lobsters. President Lovett of the Union Pacific has informed Senator Bourne that he will order the free transportation of a carload from Chicago to Coos Bay. From here to Chicago the fish commission will pay the charges. Representative Hawley introduced a bill providing that the federal building at Salem be enlarged and repaired, and Senator Chamberlain went to New York today to speak in Dr. S. S. Wise's synagogue on "The Jew in American Politics."

RIGHT LEG FRACTURED; WANTS $5000 DAMAGES

Buried under a cave-in while excavating for the Silverfield apartments on Locust street, near Washington, last Erickson has begun suit in the circuit court for $5000 damages against Carl Shuhlm and E. A. Freiberg, doing business as the Advance Construction company. He says his right leg was fractured and he was badly bruised. The accident took place on October 21, Erickson says and don't cure. Don't place of danger in the trench by his employers. Journal picture coupons are appearing on page 2 every day. The first one was printed Monday. Don't fail to cut them out.

Imagines He Hears Burglar at Door, but Examination Shows He Is Insane.
T. J. Ryan, who registered at the Imperial hotel about 7 o'clock last night from Eugene, Or., and was given room No. 728, on the seventh floor, got an idea toward midnight that burglars were trying to get in his apartment. He thought he heard thieves try his door, and got out of his bed and piled all the movable furniture, including the bed, against it. Then he went building the iron stairway, which runs down the Seventh-street front of the hotel building, as fast as he could go.

Wound Shows Accident.
Those who advance the accident theory say the nature of the wound, and the fact that the eyeballs were powder marked, show Barnes did not purposely do the act. Had he intended shooting himself, they say, the man would have closed his eyes when he fired the shot. It is further asserted that the suicide motives were not sufficiently strong to cause such a desperate act. The widow of the dead man also regards the case as accidental, and declares there had been no domestic trouble. Josselyn is opposed to this move. He says a bridge can easily be built at Barton and it would give the farmers in Clackamas county easy access to the Estacada line on the opposite bank of the river. He admits that under existing conditions the Clackamas farmers have to make a roundabout drive to get to the electric line.

JOSSELYN WOULD HELP BUILD RIVER BRIDGE
President E. S. Josselyn of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company has announced that the company will pay half the cost of the construction of a wagon bridge across Clackamas river at the station of Barton if the county or taxpayers will pay the other half.
