

THE JOURNAL AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER. Published every evening (except Sunday) and every Sunday morning at the Journal Building, 225 Fifth Street, Portland, Ore.

Subscription Terms by mail or to any address in the United States, Canada or Mexico: DAILY. One year, $5.00; One month, $0.50; Sunday. One year, $2.50; One month, $0.25.

Some have meat and can't eat, and some would eat that meat. But we have meat, and we can eat it.

WISE CALIFORNIA

PORTLANDERS are flocking to southern California. People from towns all over Oregon are there.

In this exodus there is a topic for Oregon people to ponder over. Most of these travelers are pleasure-seekers, and many of them go to California for one to several weeks of automobiling through the southern part of the state.

It is overwintered in California in the summer. California roads reproduced in Oregon would bring as great or a greater caravan of sight-seers, tourists and others into this state.

But, better than all, there would be smooth roads for our own home folks to travel over. The farmer's products could be brought to town more cheaply.

It is difficult to believe that the hazing he received last October caused the death of young Gore. His malady, according to the news reports, was consumption.

YOUNG GORE

It is difficult to believe that the hazing he received last October caused the death of young Gore. His malady, according to the news reports, was consumption, and that it could have been caused by a cold contracted in a hazing incident is unlikely.

But in the circumstances there is one more powerful warning to students to give up this miserable business of hazing. The mere surmise, remote though it be, that it may have been the hazing that hastened young Gore's death is a reflection that those who participated in the affair can never blot out.

to always be good Americans. To be a true American is to always be fair. It is not fair, and therefore not American, when a group of upper classmen by force of superior numbers capture a few lower classmen and inflict indignities upon them.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS AND PARCELS POST

THE OPPOSITION to postal savings banks springs chiefly from the bankers, principally eastern bankers, who think such a law would keep some money out of their hands.

Many and large portions of the country are not supplied with savings banks. And a great many people hide their money and so keep it out of circulation, or send it abroad, even if savings banks are accessible.

Postal savings banks would draw millions out of stockings and tin cans. The bankers of the country are the last people that should make the argument that this system is paternalistic.

The parcels post bill may fall because the express companies and the railroads want it beaten. It would diminish the business and profits of the express companies.

EDISON'S NEW STORAGE BATTERY

TROLLEY POLES and wires will soon be things of the past. Or so we may reasonably expect from the successful experiments recently made in the use of the Edison storage battery.

Measureless is the debt of the world, and especially this country, owes to this electrical wizard, Edison. All his life he has been wanting to make discoveries, to find out something, and has in large measure succeeded.

WHY FLINT PASSES

UNITED STATES Senator Flint will not be a candidate for reelection in California. He says he could not make the race without having an organization in every county in the state. of the chief lieutenants of Boss Herrin, and with one or two others was always relied on by Herrin to manipulate conventions and primaries throughout the southern portion of the state.

The Spokane Spokesman-Review says that Senator Heyburn misrepresents Idaho. Oh, only the common people of Idaho, the masses, and they don't count.

The big interests always have a panic scare ready to spring on the president if he seems inclined to do or say anything they don't like.

AT LAST

ALL THINGS come to those who wait. The dairy commissioner has at last deputized the city dairy inspectors, clothing them with authority by which they can inspect dairies outside the city limits.

The people of Portland want a completely pure milk supply. Milk has been furnished them by one dairyman who claimed that the "dirtiest dregs in the milk can" were the best with which to fatten children.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 7.—To the Editor of the Journal.—Having read considerable in your valuable paper regarding the lowering of the speed limit on streets, it seems to me that those complaining have no other interest than a few women who lace and pull themselves together until they can neither get on a car or sit down on a seat after they get on.

Letters From the People

The members of this little tribe or family inhabiting the western coast of Greenland from Cape York to Etah are in many ways quite different from the Eskimos of Danish Greenland.

Agreed With the Court

From the Dundee Advertiser. A lawyer came into court drunk, when the judge said to him: "I'm sorry to see you in a situation which is a disgrace to yourself and family and the profession to which you belong."

So far, the price of dog collars hasn't gone up. Senator Aldrich has had the grippe. He always has the grippe.

TANGLEFOOT

Freddy Funnel's Letters. Liverpool, Eng., Jan. 28.—Dear Freddy: Have the Flatiron building heated, Freddy, for I'm coming home and I want to get pressed back into shape.

February 9 in History—Old Tippecanoe's Birthday

William Henry Harrison was so striking a figure in the political and national history of our country, that today, being his birthday, a little look into his character will no doubt be interesting.

Other events of interest occurring on February 9 were: The birthday of William Bartram, the first noted American botanist (1733); Samuel J. Tilden, statesman (1814); General John A. Logan, U.S. Army (1826); and Charles S. Ashburner, who made the survey of the Pennsylvania coal fields (1854); the day upon which General Robert E. Lee was made commander in chief of the Confederate forces (1862), and the day on which Nebraska was admitted into the union in 1857.

William Hanley in New York

The following is only the first part of an article in the New York Sun about a well known Oregon man. What is quoted here is followed by an extended sketch of the great Harney valley, which furnishes a striking contrast to the great metropolis.

Woman's Free Hotel

MRS. BERTHA KRUPP, the richest woman in Germany, runs a first class hotel in Essen. The hotel was built solely for the representatives on official business, and they do not have to pay for their accommodations.

The Foolish Hen

An old black hen with yellow legs once "set" three months on wooden eggs; for three long weeks she held them down, till all the other hens in town were cackling off the famous jest; she wore the feathers off her breast, and saw her blooming youth depart, and broke her fond and foolish heart, and shrunk till thinner than a match—and still the blamed eggs wouldn't hatch.

COMMENT AND NEWS IN BRIEF

SMALL CHANGE. So far, the price of dog collars hasn't gone up. Senator Aldrich has had the grippe. He always has the grippe. Paris is becoming dry again, but not in a prohibition sense. Whatever the fashion otherwise, spring hats will be high.

February 9 in History—Old Tippecanoe's Birthday

William Henry Harrison was so striking a figure in the political and national history of our country, that today, being his birthday, a little look into his character will no doubt be interesting.

William Hanley in New York

The following is only the first part of an article in the New York Sun about a well known Oregon man. What is quoted here is followed by an extended sketch of the great Harney valley, which furnishes a striking contrast to the great metropolis.

Woman's Free Hotel

MRS. BERTHA KRUPP, the richest woman in Germany, runs a first class hotel in Essen. The hotel was built solely for the representatives on official business, and they do not have to pay for their accommodations.

The Foolish Hen

An old black hen with yellow legs once "set" three months on wooden eggs; for three long weeks she held them down, till all the other hens in town were cackling off the famous jest; she wore the feathers off her breast, and saw her blooming youth depart, and broke her fond and foolish heart, and shrunk till thinner than a match—and still the blamed eggs wouldn't hatch.

THE REALM FEMININE

Customs in the Flowery Kingdom. THE suicide of a husband who wished to preserve the honor of the family by giving up his life, the loss of the wife's hair, teeth and nails, which were annually plucked out as a conventional punishment for her sin, legally recognized, and the banishment of an offending male relative were the tragic results following one Chinese bride's monstrous lapse from domestic propriety.

There are still other gentle customs in the land of flowers which we may be thankful to exist in our land of the free. In China it seems that neither young man nor maid is consulted in the arrangements of parents with marriageable offspring.

If she belongs to the mandarin class of girls, for whom labor is, in certain parts of the empire, still a disgrace, she will sew a few stitches upon the work, so badly done, however, as to leave no possibility of the mandarin's mind for his betrothed's fingers having never been soiled by work.

Give the Baby a Drink

MANY babies actually suffer for a drink of cool water. Even the tiniest babies must have water. If your little one frets give him a refreshing drink, then remove his little hands from his face, and wipe with the palms of your hands, putting on fresh clothing.

Fried Beets

BEAT some beets carefully, then skin and cut in neat slices. Rub them over with flour seasoned with salt and pepper; brush over with beaten egg, roll in fine bread crumbs, fry in hot fat, drain and serve hot. Sufficient for the main luncheon dish when served with anything as nutritious as nut bread.

Quick Nut Bread

BEAT one egg well, add one fourth cup of sugar and gradually mix in one cup of milk and two cups of flour and a half cup of chopped nuts. Put two teaspoons of baking soda in a part of the flour and add half a level teaspoon of salt. Put in a single four inch loaf bread pan and let rise 20 minutes. Bake in moderate oven about 40 minutes. This makes one loaf.

The Foolish Hen

An old black hen with yellow legs once "set" three months on wooden eggs; for three long weeks she held them down, till all the other hens in town were cackling off the famous jest; she wore the feathers off her breast, and saw her blooming youth depart, and broke her fond and foolish heart, and shrunk till thinner than a match—and still the blamed eggs wouldn't hatch.

Agreed With the Court

From the Dundee Advertiser. A lawyer came into court drunk, when the judge said to him: "I'm sorry to see you in a situation which is a disgrace to yourself and family and the profession to which you belong."