

RAILROADLESS DOMAIN HOLDS UNOLD RICHES

Homesteads Await Coming of Settlers in the Chewauken Valley, Lake County, Oregon.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Lakeview, Or., Feb. 10.—The Chewauken valley, comprising an area starting north of Lakeview and extending to about a mile north of the town of Paisley, a distance of 22 miles, with a width of from three to five miles, is one of the sections of Lake county offering many opportunities to the settler and homesteader. The largest stream in the county, the Chewauken river, flows through the valley, and empties into Albert lake. This stream, according to the report of the United States geological survey, is capable of irrigating several times the area now ready for cultivation in the valley.

The altitude of the Chewauken valley is about 500 feet lower than that of Lakeview. The climate is much milder and it is seldom that snow remains on the ground more than two days, while the seasons for growing crops are several weeks earlier in the spring and later in the fall than in the Chewauken valley. The Chewauken valley still sparsely settled and the ranches are nearly all owned by stockmen, though many thousands of acres remain open to entry. Productive ranches can be purchased at from $19 to $25 an acre, according to the improvement.

The Chewauken river flows through the Chewauken marsh, which has been under water much of the time until the last year, when canals were cut through. The larger part of the marsh is drained enough so excellent crops of hay are raised by the farmer who owns the larger part of the marsh.

The lands open to entry are mostly level or slightly rolling and are above the marsh. The soil is very fertile and of great depth in places. It is generally covered with large sagebrush which is an indication of good soil, for while poor land has been known to grow small sagebrush, large sagebrush has never been known to grow on poor land. There are springs in places and a considerable number of small streams that either go to form the Chewauken or flow into the marsh. Many of these can be used for irrigation purposes, if it is found necessary to irrigate for the ordinary crops.

Segregation of 30,000 Acres.
The Portland Land & Irrigation company has a segregation of 30,000 acres in the Chewauken valley that has been withdrawn from entry for several years. The company has failed in its contract and the settlers and prospective settlers have been attempting to get the state land board to refuse the company further extension of time, but, as yet, the state land board has not responded to the settlers' request. Irrigation is not required in the Chewauken valley to raise hay and grain. It has been demonstrated that with proper tillage the soil will easily retain sufficient moisture to insure a healthy growth of grains and vegetables.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Detroit, Mich., Feb. 10.—Judge Swan, sitting in the United States circuit court for the Southern district of Michigan, in Detroit, yesterday handed down his decision in the case of Studebaker vs. E. F. company to contract with agents and dealers direct for the sale of E. M. F. Thirty and Flanders Twenty automobiles and confirms the exclusive rights of the dealers and agents who have contracted with the E. M. F. company since December 9, when the Studebaker sales contract was rescinded by President Flanders.

from 80 to 35 feet in depth, with water of a high degree of purity. Lake Albert, into which the Chewauken flows, is about 17 miles in length and from five to six miles in width. Its waters are heavily charged with deposits of soda and borax. It is said by the geological survey of the government that the largest lake deposits of borax in the United States outside of Owens lake in California are here. This lake will never be of value for irrigation purposes, but as the natural evaporation reduces the lake level, it will eventually dry up, leaving exposed the valuable deposits of borax.

That Lame Back Means Kidney Disease

And To Relieve The Lame And Aching Back, You Must First Relieve The Kidneys

There is no question about that at all — for the lame and aching back is caused by a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder. It is only common sense, any way — that you must cure a condition by removing the cause of the condition. And lame and aching back are not by any means the only symptoms of derangement of the kidneys and bladder. There are a multitude of well-known and unmistakable indications of a more or less dangerous condition. Some of these are, for instance: extreme and unnatural lassitude and weakness, nervous irritability, sleep irregularly, "nerves on edge," sleeplessness and inability to secure rest, scalding sensation and sediment in the urine, inflammation of the bladder and passages etc.

They can always be depended upon to do just exactly what is claimed for them. As an illustration, Mr. David Burgh of Gasconade, Mo., states: "Your Kidney and Bladder Pills have done wonders, when I had Bright's Disease, and diabetes in the worst form."

Again It Is the Kimball!

America's Greatest Pianiste Selects the Kimball Above All Others for Her Personal and Concert Use.

Concert Tomorrow Evening the Musical Event of the Season.

SEATS NOW SELLING AT THE BUNGALOW

Miss Myrtle Elvyn, the beautiful pianiste, who appears in recital at the Bungalow Theatre on tomorrow evening, February 11, is proclaimed by the greatest eastern musical critics as America's foremost pianiste. Her talent was discovered early, and she was given all advantages to attain artistic triumphs never before known in the realm of music. She studied under Carl Wittsohn, the musical instructor who died recently. She also studied composition under Adolph Weidig. Subsequently she went to Berlin, where she received further development under the guidance of Leopold Godowsky. During her tour of Europe Miss Elvyn appeared before Kaiser Wilhelm and members of the royal family. The German monarch was so pleased with her performance that he publicly complimented her and presented her with a diamond brooch pendant.

Miss Elvyn created a profound impression here last May, when she appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The concert this Friday evening promises to be the musical and social event of the season.

The Kimball piano was destined to lead from its inception. Its makers, then, as now, were imbued with but one standard—to make the world's best piano! Steadily, year by year, its position has been strengthened. One great artist after another found in the Kimball the first perfect instrument to express their art—resulting in more Kimball pianos being made and sold than any other high-grade make, and gaining for itself the slogan—"The National Piano."

At the Seattle Exposition last year the international jury of awards (the greatest body of musical experts ever assembled) bestowed on the Kimball the Grand Prix—the highest possible award. The Kimball was the only piano so honored.
