Has a Bill of Her Own That Would Permit Women to Wear Trousers.

(Publishers' Press Leased Wire.) New York, March 19.—"It is simply an outrage that women cannot dress in men's clothing if they want to," declared Dr. Mary Walker, one of the pioneer exponents of women's suffrage, here today. Dr. Walker has always appeared in trousers, frock coat and silk hat. Dr. Walker has been in Albany for a week in the interests of suffragists and has had the representatives of her district introduce a bill the legislature permitting women to dress as they please. If her bill is enacted into law, any policeman arresting a woman for being dressed in men's clothing will be fined $1000 and be sent to jail for six months.

"I shall stay here and fight for that measure for it is necessary," said Dr. Walker. "However, I presume it will go like all the rest of the measures enacted to uplift the woman."

The sixth day of the trial of Walter H. Moore, former president of the Oregon Trust & Savings bank, on the charge of receiving a deposit after he knew the bank was insolvent, will start tomorrow morning with the most interesting stage of the testimony only a short way ahead.

Friday and Saturday Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald, laid the foundations for what is to come. He has introduced books of the bank revealing the juggling of accounts, particularly the Golden Eagle deal and the creation of a surplus by magic, and he has shown how the bank was organized with only $7000 in cash paid in.

The entry of Moore into the bank has been shown in the testimony of the first president, Lonner O. Raleston, but the testimony to show the insolvent condition of the bank and his knowledge of the fact is yet to come. Showing that the bank had only a mite of its capital stock paid up is part of the testimony showing the condition of the bank, but a mass of testimony will be needed to prove insolvency. Fitzgerald says he expects to convince the jury the bank never was solvent for a day of its existence.

Thus far there has been no showing that Moore knew anything about some of the shady transactions of the bank. When the bookkeepers were questioned concerning mysterious entries in the books, including the Golden Eagle deal and the debt slip through which $50,000 passed out of the bank, the trail led directly to W. Cooper Morris, former cashier of the bank, who is to be tried later on.

No More Against Testimony. The attorneys for Moore made an effort to shut out any of this testimony, and they will contend that there has been an utter failure to show any guilty knowledge on the part of Moore. The state, on the other hand, will argue he must have known of these things because of his position as president of the bank almost daily presence at the bank.

The defense places emphasis on the fact that Moore knows nothing of the science of bookkeeping. He was not able to explain the books or to understand them. It is claimed he is pictured in the role of a guileless country banker, who was possibly misled at times, but intended to do right.

The sacrifice of his personal fortune and the promptness with which he turned over the board of Trade building to the receiver, together with the fact that he had deposited with a view to nationalizing the bank, are pointed to as acts showing honesty of purpose and lack of knowledge of the real condition of the bank's affairs.

When Devlin Takes Stand. One of the interesting days of the trial will be when Receiver Thomas C. Devlin is called to the stand. He is to testify for the state to show the insolvent condition of the bank. Charles W. Fulton and Henry E. McGinn, the chief counsel for Moore, will turn their batteries full upon him to show that he was negligent and astonishingly incompetent in settling the affairs of the failed institution.

They will endeavor to convince the jury that had Devlin used ordinary business prudence the bank would have realized more than its liabilities from the assets on hand.

Experts in real estate and personal values will testify that Devlin should have made a handsome profit out of the Board of Trade building and the Trade lake road. The investment in Home Telephone bonds will be half justified and half excused, on the ground that some of these bonds are worth par and it could not be foreseen that the Omaha issue would not turn out as well.

L. O. Raleston will take the stand again tomorrow morning to complete his testimony. It seems likely that the trial will consume two weeks more.

"WETS" PETITION TO BE TRIED
PEPOON TO BE TRIED
DO IT IN CHICAGO
PORTLAND, WASH.

Chicago, Ill., March 19.—The "Wets" won a victory over the "Drys" today in the first skirmish of the fight to keep off the ballot the question, "Shall Chicago become anti-saloon territory," when the board of election commissioners decided to start an immediate scrutiny of the "Dry" petition. Pleas made by representatives of the Anti-Saloon league for more time to prepare their defense were unavailing and it was ordered that 225 clerks working in three eight-hour shifts, begin the examination today.

The commissioners announced that if, as contended by the United Societies for Social Self Government, nearly half of the signatures to the petition are invalid, Chicago will be given no opportunity on the saloon issue at the April election. The commission announced that the case will be heard Monday morning.

Officers of the county are working in the hope that Ray Wilcox, convict, who is accused of being accessory to the crime, may be captured and forced to serve as a witness against the husband. In a statement made while in jail, Pepon said Wilcox murdered Mrs. Edith Pepon, his first wife. Officers hope that bringing the two together, their conflicting stories will convict them.

Georgia May Pepon, 18 months old, who is the youngest child of the accused homesteader, was Friday made a ward of the juvenile court of Multnomah county and given over to Mrs. D. W. Wolcott, of 111 East Forty-seventh street, her grandmother. She will be cared for by the grandmother, as have been the two older children of the Pepons, who have been wards of the court since last November.

Pepon, it is understood, has been unable to get underfoot.

Mr. Dodge's four-year-old daughter, Rosemary, whose mother was the second Mrs. Dodge, was also in the party with her nurse, Mr. Dodge's valet and a maid.

Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Dodge were communicative. The former said that the idea that he intended to expatriate himself was absurd.

"I have interests in England," he said, "and must attend to them, but I am not going to give up my residence in this country. I am a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and intend to keep my membership."

DON'T KNOW HOW
To Select Food to Rebuild On. "To find that a lack of knowledge of how to properly feed oneself caused me to serve ten long years as a miserable druggist is rather humiliating. I was a sufferer for that length of time and had become a shadow of my natural self. I was taking medicine all the time and dieting the best I knew how."

"One day I heard of Grape-Nuts food, in which the starch was predigestured by natural processes and that the food rebuilt the brain and nerve centers. I knew that if my nervous system could be made strong and perfect I could digest food all right. So I started in on Grape-Nuts, with very little confidence, for I had been disheartened for a long time."

"To my surprise and delight I found I was improving after living on Grape-Nuts a little while, and in three months I had gained 12 pounds and was feeling like a new person. For the past two years I have not had the slightest symptom of indigestion, and am now perfectly well."

"I made a discovery that will be of importance to many mothers. When my infant was two months old it was being fed on the bottle, and was not doing well. I began to water Grape-Nuts at first only the feed poured over—later on I added the whole thing. The child began to improve rapidly, and is now a year old and very fat and healthy and has never been sick. It is unusually bright—has been saying words ever since it was six months old."

"I know from my experience that there is something in Grape-Nuts that brightens up any one, infant or adult, both physically and mentally."

"There's a Reason."

PAPKE BOUNCES
ONE OFF LEWIS

(United Press Leased Wire.) Paris, March 19.—Billy Papke, the Illinois "thunderbolt," knocked out Willie Lewis in the third round of their championship fight at the Cirque de Paris tonight.

It was Papke's battle all the way. The fight was one of the fiercest ever fought in Paris and the two men evinced the bitterness of the feud. Lewis was angry, Papke cool and smiling.

At the very opening of the first round Papke smashed a left hook to Lewis' jaw and floored him for 8 seconds. The second round was bitter, both men assimilating punishment freely. In the third Lewis was plainly weak. Papke came up strong and sent a perfect shower of rights and lefts to the face, scoring a clean knockout.

When Lewis recovered Papke offered to shake hands, but Lewis refused. The latter insisted that he was fouled by Papke.

After the fight Harry Lewis challenged Papke, proving Papke could make his weight. Papke refused to accept the challenge, saying he could not reduce himself and be strong.

He says he will get out of the fighting game as there are no more men in his class.

HAS BYLLESBY CO.
SOLD OPTIONS?

Secretary O'Brien Will Not Discuss Report That They Sold to Bond Co.

J. J. O'Brien, secretary and treasurer of the H. M. Byllesby Co., of Chicago, Ill., said last night he would neither deny nor affirm reports that his company had transferred its options to the Electric Bond & Share company.

"It will be 10 days or more," he said, "before I can make a statement for publication. Then I can tell the whole story of the affair."

He said that the Byllesby company would continue to operate its plants at Everett, Tacoma, Olympia and other cities. They will not be affected. But as to the option he was silent.

"I would like to tell the whole story," said Mr. O'Brien, "but I can not at this time."

Options will be opened in the Lewis building this week by the H. M. Byllesby Co., and C. E. Groesbeck, one of its vice presidents, will take charge. He will superintend the operation of all the Byllesby plants in the west.

Although Mr. O'Brien would not admit their truth, reports received from excellent sources say the Byllesby Co. has transferred its option on gas and electric plants owned by the Northwestern corporation to the Electric Bond & Share company of New York, which owns the Portland Gas company. It held options on gas plants at North Yakima and Lewiston, and on gas and electric systems at Pendleton and Walla Walla. The consideration is reported to be in the neighborhood of $10,000,000 and the profit by the Byllesby company on the deal about $500,000.

But as to whether or not the two great operating companies, which have been fighting for superiority in the northwest, have buried the hatchet and divided the territory, Mr. O'Brien would not say.
