Land of Opportunities
SONORA, MEXICO

430,000 acres of fine agricultural, fruit and grazing land has just been opened up for settlement. The soil is rich and deep, decomposed granite; no better, stronger, or easily worked soil can be found in North America; no alkali or salt.

Climate is superb; elevation on average 2300 feet above sea level; cool nights and pleasant days; average rainfall 23 inches; this comes principally during the months of June, July, August and September, assuring fine crops.

Eighty per cent of this land is level, with a fall of from 3 to 5 feet per mile; fine drinking water 20 to 30 feet below surface. This tract is covered with natural nutritious grasses the year round and scattering mesquite trees for fuel, fences and shade.

This land lies from 17 to 20 miles from the S. P. R. R. and only 30 miles from deep sea harbor; another road is building from Tucson, Ariz., passing through this tract to deep sea harbor, and, according to the concession from the Mexican government, this road must be completed and in operation within 12 months.
