

PROBABLE DATE KING'S FUNERAL SET AS MAY 14TH

Services for Late Monarch Delayed That Visiting Royal Personages May Be Able to Arrive.

(United Press Local Wire.) London, May 7.—King George won the hearts of the pleasure loving lower class Englishmen tonight by the semi-official announcement that the funeral of his father, King Edward VII, would probably be held May 14, instead of May 17, as planned. The new monarch, sensible to the fact that Whit Monday, a great national holiday, falls on the 14th, desires to hold the funeral before that date so that Englishmen may enjoy their holiday. As the theatres are closed and all forms of sport abandoned until after the funeral, this would be a great concession to the middle classes.

For Royalty's Convenience.
The main obstacle in holding the funeral on the 14th, however, will be the convenience of the members of the foreign royal families who wish to attend. Many of them fear they will be unable to reach London by the 14th. This date is, therefore, tentative.

Among the members of the foreign royal families who are scheduled to attend the funeral are the German kaiser, the king of Norway, King Manuel, King Albert of Belgium and probably King Alfonso and Queen Ena of Spain.

Other royal members who may attend the funeral will probably be the kings of Denmark and Greece, brothers of Queen Alexandra.

The Duke D'Aosta will represent the king of Italy. The sultan of Rumania, who is on his way to London, has also signified his intention of taking part in the obsequies.

The king, queen and royal court will move into the royal palace of Windsor on Tuesday.

Burial will be at Frogmore, close to the royal Windsor palace, about 35 miles from London. The body of the king will lie in state at that of the late Queen Victoria, his mother, though in a separate mausoleum from that containing the bodies of Victoria and her consort. All work throughout the United Kingdom will be suspended on the day of the funeral.

The court will be in mourning 12 months for the late king and the public six months. The coronation of King George, however, will come most likely at the end of six months, as the last six months of the court's mourning is not strictly adhered to.

There was widespread disappointment today when it was announced that the king's body would not lie in state. The disappointment is particularly keen from the fact that the king's illness was a brief and his death an unexpected one. Thousands are yet hardly cognizant of the fact that the ruler is no more. These were particularly anxious to view the king's face in death.

The only one to whom this privilege was allowed were the palace of officials and the household employees of the king. Many of the employees had grown from childhood to old age in the king's service and their grief at the passing was one of the glowing tributes to the love in which Edward was held.

Problem for Police.
The funeral will likely draw one of the greatest crowds ever seen in London and the authorities are now at work on the problem of caring for the expected multitudes.

One of the most depressing features in connection with the king's death is the gloomy financial outlook. The mourning period will practically kill the retail trade of Great Britain for at least six months. Merchants generally fear that their trade will suffer owing to the puritanical court that is likely to take the place of the brilliant one maintained by King Edward VII.

The heavy liquidation of stocks, it is predicted, will continue for several weeks. Insurance companies will have to pay out about $50,000,000 in insurance on the death of the king. Thousands of people carried policies on him. These big payments will further complicate the financial situation.

THIRTY BODIES ARE RECOVERED

(United Press Local Wire.) Birmingham, Ala., May 7.—By nightfall 30 bodies had been recovered from the mines at Pales and Entry number 4 to the left had been reached. In which 20 more were expected to be recovered. This afternoon a special train was operated out of Birmingham carrying equipment for the digging of graves and this task will be undertaken tomorrow. Eighty graves will be dug in a day and as soon as dug, the bodies will be lowered into the earth. It is still impossible to tell positively just how many victims are in the mine.

ANOTHER GOLD FIND IS MADE AT MADRAS
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Madras, Or., May 7.—Another prospect of gold was found near Madras this week. The find having just been made public, the time the prospect is made public. This time the prospect is about six miles from the location where the nugget, as reported in The Journal, was picked up.

A. S. Phillips of this place, who has formerly mined extensively, is the discoverer of the ledge, composed of yellowish red rock, which can be traced for a considerable distance.

A party of the prospect is a Portland money office was reported to run $2.75 to the ton. About 15 claims have been staked out by residents of this locality. Phillips is at present working the prospect. It is not known whether or not it is extensive enough to permit of installing a stamp mill.

KING EDWARD'S DEATH
FREES PRISONERS
(United Press Local Wire.) London, May 7.—The death of King Edward VII has freed all prisoners of war who were held in the United Kingdom. The king's death has freed all prisoners of war who were held in the United Kingdom.

WOODMEN TO GIVE COMBINATION PARTY
Portland team, W. O. W., will give a combination of woodmen and dancing party at the Woodmen Temple, 125 Broadway street, next Wednesday evening. Ice cream and cake will be served. Dancing will begin at 8 o'clock.

BRITAIN'S NEW MONARCH

King George V from a recent photograph.

KING GEORGE TO CARRY OUT HIS SIRE'S POLICIES

England's New Monarch Delivers Maiden Speech; Believes Wife Will Be His Constant Helpmate.

(United Press Local Wire.) London, May 7.—The following is the text of King George's speech today accepting the throne and declaring his purpose as the English monarch:

"My lords and gentlemen: My heart is too full for me to address you today in more than a few words. It is my sorrowful duty to announce to you and to the nation the death of my dear beloved father, your king. In the irreparable loss which suddenly has fallen upon me and the whole empire, I am comforted in the feeling that I have the sympathy of all my future subjects. I know my mournful time with me for their beloved sovereign whose own true happiness was found in promoting and sharing the happiness of others.

George's Great Loss.
I have lost not only a father's love, but an affectionate and intimate relation of a dear friend and adviser. I am no less comforted in the universal and loving sympathy which has been assured to my dearest mother in this hour of her overwhelming grief.

Standing here on this very spot little more than nine years ago, our beloved king declared for the good and for the amelioration of his people. I am sure that the opinion of the whole nation will be that this declaration made by my father was fully carried out.

To endeavor to follow in his footsteps and at the same time to uphold the constitutional government of these islands will be the earnest object of my future life.

I am deeply sensible to the very heavy responsibilities that have fallen upon me, but I know I can rely upon parliament and the people of these islands and my dominions beyond the seas for their help in the discharge of my arduous duties and for their prayers that God will grant me strength and guidance.

I am encouraged by the knowledge that I have in my dear wife one who will be a constant helpmate to me in every endeavor for my people's good."

REV. BANDY SUCCEEDS DR. PERRIN IN PASTORATE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Boston, May 7.—Rev. J. Van Nels Band of Hood River, a student taking a post-graduate course at Harvard divinity school, has been unanimously elected pastor of the Brooklyn Universalist church, succeeding Rev. George L. Perrin, who will retire in September.

Rev. Mr. Bandy is a native of Kentucky, but has spent most of his life in Oregon. He is a graduate of the University of California and of Pacific Theological seminary.

Dr. Perrin is a graduate of Williams college, and has been pastor of the same since 1885. He is a native of Kentucky, but has spent most of his life in Oregon. He is a graduate of the University of California and of Pacific Theological seminary.

AUTOIST RUNS DOWN BOY AND GIRL
(United Press Local Wire.) New York, May 7.—After leaving a hospital where he had just left one child he had run over in his automobile Frederick W. Sparks, a lawyer, tonight ran over another child. Sparks' automobile first knocked down Louis V. (Lucky) and then started off to square things up with the boy's parents. On the way he ran over Millie Rosenberg, who will die. Sparks was arrested twice.

WOODMEN TO GIVE COMBINATION PARTY
Portland team, W. O. W., will give a combination of woodmen and dancing party at the Woodmen Temple, 125 Broadway street, next Wednesday evening. Ice cream and cake will be served. Dancing will begin at 8 o'clock.

KING IN MIND AND REALITY ARE TWO SEPARATE BEINGS

Can Do No Wrong, Surcharged With Grace of God, Perfect; But Must Sign Death Warrant if Ordered.

By William T. Stead.
(By the International News Service.) London, May 7.—King Edward had not been 12 hours dead and all the papers of the world are busy discussing his 10 years' reign just ended.

A curious computation was made in 1901 that a prayer prescribed to be said for the royal family must have been said in the hearing of congregations at home and abroad at least 100,000,000 times between the birth of the Prince of Wales and his fiftieth birthday.

In 1901 the nation ceased to pray for Edward Prince of Wales. The moment the queen died he was prayed for in the terms of "prayer" duly set forth and prescribed in "the prayer book for the king's majesties," where the invocation of the king of Kings and Lord of Lords are more explicit, as is fitting, considering that the personage prayed for had then ascended the throne.

King Can Do No Wrong.
A sovereign so surcharged with the grace of God that he always does God's will and walks in his way weighed down with heavenly gifts, healthy, wealthy, and so strong that he can vanquish every foe—is the king for whom the pious folks of the national church pray twice a day. That is the ideal king of the prayers of the church, the ideal of the ideal king of the constitution is almost as far removed from the real.

The king is never an infant in the law. Neither can he ever die. The king can do no wrong.

Blackstone, in his famous Commentaries, lays it down as the law of England that "the king is not only incapable of doing wrong, but even of thinking wrong. He can never mean to do an improper thing. In him there is no folly or weakness."

According to Sir Brinkley May, "His Majesty cannot be supposed to have a private opinion apart from that of his responsible advisers."

But according to Walter Bagehot, the sovereign possesses such executive powers as to be virtually omnipotent. Parliament is powerless to pass laws of any kind, on any subject without the king's consent. Yet since the days of Queen Anne no sovereign has refused his consent to any bill sent up from the two houses of parliament.

"He must sign his own death warrant," says Walter Bagehot, "if the two houses unanimously send it up to him." Such is the king in church and state. In the former a vessel filled full of the brim with divine grace, whose abiding delight is to do the will of God and to walk in his ways; in the latter an omnipotent, inflexible omnipotent, immortal figure of the constitution, who, despite all his immense prerogatives, cannot even have a private opinion of his own apart from that of his minister.

Now let us turn to see the king as he was when Edward VII was on the throne.

The first outstanding characteristic of the real king, who has just died, was his redoubtable good nature, which was at once his chief characteristic and his besetting sin. He was so anxious to please that he did not always remember the duties of the constitution, who, despite all his immense prerogatives, cannot even have a private opinion of his own apart from that of his minister.

Now let us turn to see the king as he was when Edward VII was on the throne.

The first outstanding characteristic of the real king, who has just died, was his redoubtable good nature, which was at once his chief characteristic and his besetting sin. He was so anxious to please that he did not always remember the duties of the constitution, who, despite all his immense prerogatives, cannot even have a private opinion of his own apart from that of his minister.

Now let us turn to see the king as he was when Edward VII was on the throne.

The first outstanding characteristic of the real king, who has just died, was his redoubtable good nature, which was at once his chief characteristic and his besetting sin. He was so anxious to please that he did not always remember the duties of the constitution, who, despite all his immense prerogatives, cannot even have a private opinion of his own apart from that of his minister.

Now let us turn to see the king as he was when Edward VII was on the throne.

The first outstanding characteristic of the real king, who has just died, was his redoubtable good nature, which was at once his chief characteristic and his besetting sin. He was so anxious to please that he did not always remember the duties of the constitution, who, despite all his immense prerogatives, cannot even have a private opinion of his own apart from that of his minister.

Now let us turn to see the king as he was when Edward VII was on the throne.

The first outstanding characteristic of the real king, who has just died, was his redoubtable good nature, which was at once his chief characteristic and his besetting sin. He was so anxious to please that he did not always remember the duties of the constitution, who, despite all his immense prerogatives, cannot even have a private opinion of his own apart from that of his minister.

Now let us turn to see the king as he was when Edward VII was on the throne.

FUTURE MASTERS OF GREAT WEALTH

Mrs. Field and her two sons, Marshall and Henry, the grandsons of the great merchant Marshall Field, who have just been officially notified that their share in the Field estate is $54,000,000. They will not come into full possession until they are 40 years old, however, and it is estimated that the estate by that time will be worth $200,000,000. Marshall is now 16 and Henry 14 years old.

JEFF DOES BIT OF HEAVY WORK

Boilermaker Goes Nine Rounds With Papke and Choyinski and Wants More.

(United Press Local Wire.) Rowardennan, Cal., May 7.—Did some one murmur "Poor old Jeff"? If that person had been in camp this afternoon and witnessed what the "old has been" did to Billy Papke and Jos Choyinski in nine rounds of an hard milling as usually seen in the ring, he would have retired to his rightful seat, which is far from the proscenium arch.

Jeff did just a little light work. Oh, yes, "light." He took on Papke for six rounds, and the "Thunderbolt" was blowing like a bawler when he finished. Billy swung on him with his right, and the big fellow ate them up just as though he liked them. It was some mauling, but not for a minute was the big boilermaker fazed.

When the "mild" bout with the stanch, middleweight was finished Jeff felt so cockish that he decided to take on Choyinski for a few taps. The pair went three rounds and the light heavy was "in" after three rounds of the ex-champion's favors.

Jeff Needs Help.
Although he put in the heaviest day since he has been in training, Jeff did not show any ill effects from his work, and his trainers are greatly excited over his condition. His performance today, however, strengthened the general public's belief that the big fellow must get men who are able to give him more strenuous opposition than now falls to his lot.

As was pointed out some time ago, there is not a man in camp who can really make the boilermaker "go." He needs red-hot work, and if Jim Corbett does not provide it when he arrives within the next few days there will be deep gloom over Rowardennan.

The report circulated at San Francisco that Berger and Johnson, at a conference last night, decided to fight Jack Welch as referee for the July 4 fight was emphatically denied tonight by Berger, whose statement was confirmed by Jeffries. Both stated that no conference of any kind was held.

Joseph Reese, a laborer who lives at 27 East Fifteenth street, was knocked down and run over by an automobile last night a few minutes before 12 o'clock. He was stepping off the curb on Front street near the corner of Morrison street. No serious injury resulted, although the victim of the accident was badly shaken up.

G. H. Smith, 175 Birch street, the owner of the car, was driving it when Reese was struck. Mr. Smith says he was going along at about three miles an hour when he turned the corner of Front and Morrison, coming from the east side.

"Just before I swung around the corner I saw a woman coming down Morrison street," said Mr. Smith. "I sounded the horn, but she did not stop. As I passed her I saw a man on the point of stepping off the sidewalk a few feet away from the corner. I blew the horn again and thought the man would stop. He did not, however, and as soon as I realized that he would not I threw out the clutch but could not possibly bring the car to a stop before striking the man. I think the wheel ran over his head. He was pulled out from under the foot-board."

A bystander who saw the accident, says the motorist was not proceeding at a very rapid rate. Another says it was traveling at a rate of about eight miles an hour, and that no warning was given. The automobile suffered a broken lamp when its victim thrust his elbow into the light.

Near the spot on which Reese was picked up a broken whiskey bottle was the only other evidence of a wreck after the car had been taken to the police station. At the station Reese did not appear to be seriously injured. He was able to walk and talk at his ease. He told the police officials that he did not see the auto when he stepped off the curb.

John F. Hill, the present chairman of the Republican national committee, is mentioned as a probable candidate for the seat of Eugene Hale in the United States senate.

William T. Cobb, who served two terms as governor of Maine, has announced his candidacy for United States senator, to succeed Eugene Hale.

John Nord, foreman of the Oregon Steel company of Beaverton, Oregon, was arrested last night at Rainier by Deputy Sheriff Amos Leonard of Multnomah county, on a charge of forgery. Nord is charged with having forged four checks last Saturday night.

As forgers of the company for which he works he secured the checks of the employees under him and, coming to Portland, endorsed four of the slips with names of the men to whom they were made payable. He obtained $18, and left the same night for Rainier, at which place he was traced by Otto H. Culper, of the Bureau and Sheridan National Detective Agency, local representatives of the American Bankers Association.

Detective Kulper called in the aid of Sheriff E. L. Stevens of this county and the official dispatched Deputy Leonard to Rainier to assist Kulper. Nord was picked up on the street, being easily recognized by the description of him obtained by Detective Kulper. The accused man was brought to Portland and is now occupying a cell in the county jail.

BEAVERTON MAN ALLEGED FORGER
John Nord, foreman of the Oregon Steel company of Beaverton, Oregon, was arrested last night at Rainier by Deputy Sheriff Amos Leonard of Multnomah county, on a charge of forgery. Nord is charged with having forged four checks last Saturday night.

As forgers of the company for which he works he secured the checks of the employees under him and, coming to Portland, endorsed four of the slips with names of the men to whom they were made payable. He obtained $18, and left the same night for Rainier, at which place he was traced by Otto H. Culper, of the Bureau and Sheridan National Detective Agency, local representatives of the American Bankers Association.

Detective Kulper called in the aid of Sheriff E. L. Stevens of this county and the official dispatched Deputy Leonard to Rainier to assist Kulper. Nord was picked up on the street, being easily recognized by the description of him obtained by Detective Kulper. The accused man was brought to Portland and is now occupying a cell in the county jail.

ROOSEVELT'S RANK RAISES QUESTION

Attendance of ex-President at Funeral of King Edward Creates Problem.

(United Press Local Wire.) London, May 7.—Officials of the court tonight expressed much concern over the proposition to have ex-President Roosevelt attend the funeral obsequies of the late King Edward. As a private citizen Colonel Roosevelt would not be permitted by royal usages to mingle with the royalty gathered for the services, whereas as an ex-president of the United States it would be impossible to relegate him to the tail end of the procession, yet that is where he would have to go. English and foreign nobles and officials are as jealous of their rights of precedence as of their honor, and they would never permit a civilian foreigner, such as Colonel Roosevelt is, to precede them. It is probable that, to avoid possible conflict and injured feelings, Colonel Roosevelt, in the event he attends the funeral, will be asked not to participate in the procession, but to go at once to a place that would be reserved for him at the church.

Some Fine Distinctions.
France is just now racked with important questions. The navy is split into factions over the case of a petty officer who wants to wear a long beard, and has not left his ship nor shaved for eight months. His beard is now 14 inches long. In Paris the ministry of marine is hard at work preparing decrees that all beards in the navy shall not be one fraction over two and one fifth inches in length. Court martial and dismissal will probably attend the man growing two inches and a quarter of hair upon his chin. The duty of measuring beards every morning with micrometer tested rulers will no doubt fall upon commanders.

This is not all. The Socialists have adopted the Latin quarter cap, and there is consternation among the students. The latter have formed a police corps to meet the Socialists, who are wearing a cap without the accredited badge of a faculty will be well, the students have not decided what they will do to him, but the uncertainty surrounding his fate does not necessarily make it less alarming.

An Elaborate Hoax.
A most elaborate hoax has been played by a group of six young Bohemians on a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in having one of his plays produced at an outlying theatre. Since then he has been overwhelmed by complimentary notices from the leading lights of literature, who wanted to make his acquaintance. He was introduced to every poet and playwright, novelist and critic of any note in the French capital, and was induced to give a big banquet at the Cafe de Paris. These notabilities were impressed by journalists in the secret. Newspaper editors were secured to find coincidences between the man whose slight resemblance to celebrities was pointed out by the group of six young Bohemians and a hair dresser carrying on his trade in the Palais National, and succeeded in