British Columbia Farm Lands on the Line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway

How would you like to own a nice little farm in thise great undeveloped country within two or three miles of the coming second largest city in the Province of British Columbia, which will in a few years time be one of the most important railroad centers in the Dominion of Canada? Think of this country with its vast areas of unimproved natura' resources, its fairly limited amount of good agricultural lands; its climate, its laws and not overlooking its wonderful possibilities. You may be discontented with city life, you may want to get back close to dear old Mother Earth, for she does not neglect her children—Look at the modern farmer of today, he is one of the most independent beings on earth, And why not? He gets good prices for his crope, and usually has a nice fat bank account. We Own Our Lands and Are Prepared to Give Clear Titles,

Guaranteed by the Government of British Columbia:

We know about the gold, silver, iron and coal of Central British Columbia, but we have heard very little of the real wealth of this section—the fertile valleys sun kissed and silent, sleeping between the chinook-fanned hills.

Probably the richest and most interesting of the valleys that are being settled, as a result of the construction of the transcontinental line are the Nechacco and Fraser valleys. In this country it is not necessary to experiment. One glance at the heavy growth of wild grasses and peavine, of wild berries of almost every kind, convinces even the city-bred man that this is an agricultural country. this is an agricultural counments.
