IN SOCIETY

Wedding bells have rung happily for Miss Mabel Howe and Dwight Thompson Farnham of Seattle, whose marriage took place at 8:30 last night in the bride's home on North Twenty-fourth street. In the presence of 35 guests, pink roses and honeysuckle were used in the drawing room, where they were effectively massed. The background of the altar was backed with the pretty flowers, while a beautiful Japanese altar cloth was draped over the altar. In the reception hall, behind a screen of English ivy and pink roses, a stringed orchestra was stationed, which played "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" during the service. The room was lighted entirely by candle light and pink candles added to the decorations. The stairway where the bride made her entrance was banked with pink roses and honeysuckle, and lighted with myriads of tiny pink lights. The Misses Josephine and Elizabeth Richardson marked the pathway of the bridal party with an aisle of white ribbons. The marriage service was read by the Rev. Roy Edgar Remington, and the bride was given into the keeping of the groom by her mother, Mrs. C. L. Howe. Miss Gail Hetherington, of Atchison, Kas., was the maid of honor, and Pierce Butler Reynolds of Wilkesbarre, Pa., acted as best man. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white satin cut on princess lines with a bodice of real duchesse lace. A long court train and tulle veil finished the costume. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, and wore a magnificent string of pearls. Miss Hetherington wore in a lovely creation of creamy white chiffon over white satin, embellished with a pretty design of embroidered pink rose buds. Her flowers were baby roses. Following the ceremony, an informal reception was held. In the receiving line were Mrs. Howe, Dr. and Mrs. L. D. Farnham of Binghamton, N. Y.; Mrs. E. K. Blair, Mrs. W. W. Hetherington, Mrs. Louis Stoppa, Mrs. Jennette Stiles and Miss Helen Mackenzie of Atchison, Kas. In the dining room pink roses were used with pretty effect, centering the table, which was presided over by Miss Genevieve Thompson and Miss Helen Mackenzie. Among the out of town guests were Lieutenant and Mrs. Arthur Davis of the barracks, Dr. Edmund Bradford Burwell of Seattle and Miss Margaretta A. Frank of Washington, D. C. Mr. and Mrs. Farnham left last night, amid a shower of rose petals, for their honeymoon and will be at home within 10 days at Van Asselt station, Seattle, where a bungalow has been prepared for them.

Many beautiful gowns were worn. Mrs. Howe was in white satin-velvet with bustle, passementerie and elaborated with seed pearls. Mrs. Hetherington wore sage green satin with an overdress of black net, dotted with green jewels. Mrs. Hetherington wore beautiful diamonds. Mrs. Farnham was in gray and white silk, trimmed with crystal beading. Her costume was completed with a handsome pearl necklace. Miss Frank's gown was black messaline with Perlan trimmings. Mrs. Blair was in gray satin. Miss Mackenzie wore a lovely gown of lavender silk. Miss Stiles wore white satin with pale blue trimmings. Mrs. Stoppa was in white satin and old lace. Miss Genevieve Thompson wore a beautiful creation of white satin with an overdress of crystals and pearls.

Mrs. Wallace McCamant was hostess yesterday afternoon in her King street home when she asked some 50 guests for a reading. Miss Edith Coburn, Noyes of Boston was the reader, and her subject, was the Lady Deadlock story of Charles Dickens' "Black House." The version used was the one made so famous by Madame Jannechek. The home was filled with crimson ramblers and white Sweet William. Pouring tea and coffee in the dining room were Mrs. Equest F. Tucker and Mrs. Harrison Corbett. At the punch table were Mrs. J. C. Robinson and Mrs. William Brewster. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. William C. Alford, Mrs. Ralph Wilbur, Miss Grace Warren, Miss Mary Livingstone, Miss Isabella Gauld, Miss Olive Failing and Mrs. Frederick Wheeler.

Mrs. J. H. Hart entertained with a tea Wednesday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. O. J. Shirley, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. G. Wandrey.

Mrs. Laura E. Newton left last night for a visit at her old home in Shingletown, Pa., and was accompanied by Mrs. Arthur L. Canfield, who will visit in Alfred, N. Y. Mrs. Newton is the mother of A. Jones, the famous Chicago baseball manager, and has been making her home in Portland for the last year.

Miss Helen Harmon entertained at luncheon yesterday, complimentary to Miss Evelyn Rigler, a bride-elect. The table carried a centerpiece of yellow flowers and covers were laid for 10. The Apollo club gave a reception and complimentary concert to the associate members last night on the roof garden of the Northonia. This was the last concert of the season and was held a little earlier than usual owing to W. H. Edwards' leaving for Europe on the twenty-fourth. Between 400 and 600 guests were present, and after a delightful program tea was served in the garden.

A wedding of interest which took place last night in Greenville, Ohio, was that of Miss Ethel Louise Garton of Greenville to Penton Earl Grigsby of Portland. Mr. Grigsby is a '06 graduate of the law department of the University of Michigan, and is at present in the law offices of W. C. Bristol. He is a Delta Upsilon man and a member of the University club. Mr. and Mrs. Grigsby will return to Portland in about 10 days and be at home at 713 East Couch street.

Defense of the Conventionalities

By Arthur L. Salmon.

THERE is often a tendency with young people to be drawn away from the virtues and duties that appear commonplace into paths of doubtful propriety that seem more original.

The ways of duty appear tame and ordinary; they lack excitement. So much that is really worthless and more pretense passes under the garb of everyday propriety that those who wish to escape from it are prone to rush to the opposite extreme.

In artistic circles this drives men to the manners of Bohemia and the Latin quarter—not always bad manners by any means, though sometimes rather perilous; while in literature it leads them to assume any kind of mannerism or grotesque absurdity, rather than to confine themselves to sober simplicity. The same impulse leads young men either to be entirely negligent of their attire or to dress themselves with extravagance. Just as the average person prefers to be in the very vigor of fashion, with no touch of distinction or originality, these other spirits affect an opposed liberty—they resent any trammels of the fashionable, they scorn what is merely popular, they claim to be dissatisfied with anything that pleases the many.

The same claim guides them in all their actions and influences all their conduct; they avoid the beaten track, they fly from the common pathway, they seek what is unusual, exceptional, bizarre.

The tendency is natural and at bottom it is not an ignoble one; yet its dangers are not to be ignored.

It is always easy to deprecate virtues that appear conventional in favor of vices that are picturesque. There are some natures with which this is a special temptation, but they should learn that this avoidance of the commonplace, this shunning of the things that others do and say, may not always be a sign of superiority. It may be a simple manifestation of vanity and altogether ignominious.

Samaritan hospital was read from which is taken the following:

"Patients under treatment during the year by religious faith: Episcopalian, 18; Presbyterians, 344; Methodists, 548; Baptists, 28; Christian, 18; Lutherans, 45; Roman Catholics, 55; Universal-

They fall to realize that it may be far harder, and therefore more noble, to keep on commonplace lines of decency and correct actions than it is to wander off in paths of eccentricity and vagabondage. Those who endeavor to live good lives and who find themselves assisted rather than impeded by keeping to ways that may be called conventional have too often been made the butts of facile ribes and sneer. But the laugh need not be all on one side and the end of things is to be considered before their character is judged.

Those who are inclined to be turned by ridicule from the ways that they know to be those of duty should remember that the approval of a man's own conscience is better than the approval of his companions, and that no comradeship, no praise of kindred spirits can heal the wrong done to one's own self by neglect or shirking of the very tasks that possibly appear most ordinary and even conventional.

The same counsel may be given to those who are setting forth on any special career—artistic, literary, professional, even commercial. The despised conventionalities are usually the result of long centuries of the world's experience, an experience that has not been cheaply bought; it is almost always best to acknowledge the weight of precedent and example, rather than to break into new lines, adopt original methods that seem more showy, more alluring.

We cannot afford to despise the result of generations, we cannot afford to cut the cords that bind us to our fellows; even the one person in many thousands who might safely venture on originality of procedure is nearly always most happy and successful when he reverences the accumulated wisdom of the past.

Society as a whole is generally wiser than any single member of it. This does not mean that majorities must always be right, the very reverse of which is often true; but it means that the conjoint wisdom of the world's best on any given point is always to be regarded with respect and usually should be followed with obedience.

When the hair becomes oily and does not need washing get 5 cents' worth of powdered orris root and shake loosely through the hair. In half an hour brush the hair with a good stiff brush and it will be as bright, clean and fluffy as when first washed, besides being delicately perfumed.

When you buy face powder be sure to select the tint best suited to your complexion. The reason some women look ghastly white is because they use white powder when they should use flesh tint. A woman with a normal complexion should always use flesh-tinted powder.

If every man and woman in town walked two miles a day in the open air we doctors would lose more than half our practice," declared a physician. "One third of the drug stores would be put out of business, the agents for aids to the complexion would pass through the city instead of stopping, and the beauty doctors would starve to death."

After a long walk or ride in the sun rub your face with a little almond oil instead of washing it. Almond oil is excellent for the skin, and used in this way will prevent that burned, uncomfortable feeling that so often follows exposure to the sun. Leave on the oil for 10 minutes and then wipe off with a soft rag. The oil will remove any dirt there may be as well as washing, will do.

Sweet almond oil is the blandest fatty material one can use. None of the other oils quite equals it in this regard.

People who suffer from heat in the hands and feet can obtain speedy and easy relief from the same by putting inside their stockings and gloves a small portion of fine oatmeal.

After a fatiguing day a woman may soon restore her good humor and dispel her weariness by taking a hot aromatic bath, or follow the usual cleansing one with a rinsing of water made fragrant with a toilet water.

Can You Solve It? The CELEBRATED 26 PUZZLE

How to Solve It

The puzzle is to take the numbers running from 1 to 12, inclusive, and so arrange them in the squares that each column of figures up and down and crosswise will total 26. To point the way we have set down the figures from the correct solution in one of the columns. The other numbers—not to be placed so that they will total 26 in each column. Few will get all four columns; some will possibly get but one or two in addition to the column already given.

Bear in mind, neatness counts as well as correctness, and will be left to disinterested parties.

Our recent advertising contest, in which we featured the APOLLO PLAYER PIANO, demonstrated to us that this means of advertising is the most satisfactory and cheapest, besides it makes it possible for a large number to possess a piano that could not otherwise do so. With this end in view, we have concluded to give another opportunity in which all may share in the above distribution.

Replies should be sent in at once, as this contest closes Wednesday, June 23, 6 o'clock P. M.
