AUTOISTS WILL SEE SCENIC ESTACADA

Invited to Dine With Fruit Growers Tomorrow; Hundred in Party.

A party of 100, consisting of members of the Portland Automobile club and their families, in 50 machines, will make a run to Estacada tomorrow afternoon at the invitation of the Estacada Fruitgrowers' association. They will be treated there to the evening to a dinner prepared by the Grange and the citizens of Estacada.

The object of the Estacada people in inviting the Portlanders is to make them acquainted with the conditions in the Estacada district, and to impress them with the fact that it is one of the finest fruit raising sections in the northwest.

W. R. Stokes, president of the Estacada Fruitgrowers' association, said this morning: "We have invited the Portland people to make the run along the scenic road to Estacada and partake of a dinner in order to impress them with the ideal conditions surrounding the Estacada district as regards its scenery, its fruit raising possibilities and its advantages as a residence community. Few Portland residents realize just what we have at this place, with easy reach of Portland, in two hours' time, either by the electric line or by automobile.

The dinner will be given in the Grange hall, about 8 o'clock in the evening. The party will leave Portland at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and the trip out will be a comfortable ride of two or three hours' duration, through the scenic spots well known to many Portland autoists.

Some of the party will return to Portland in the evening, while others will remain over till Sunday and continue the run beyond Estacada.

The Hobbling Craze

By Jean Dore.
A LETTER from a prominent matron having her ring at Atlantic City to her husband in Chicago is self-explanatory: "Old Daddy Boy—My hobble dress with the yellow bow made a terrible sensation. It is the noblest dress that is here. You'd have a fit if you'd see me in it. I was out wheel-chairing the first evening I wore it and something was doing in one of those foolish pier places, and I jumped out and tried to step up the least little bit of a step, and I couldn't. A perfectly dandy looking man came and said, 'Can I assist you?' and I said, 'I think not, thank you,' and fell into the chair again. The only way to walk in them is to lift them above the knees, and I didn't want to get my name in the papers."

The other day in a Portland street car, a young woman in a "hobble" creation of most extreme design, attempted to alight as usual on Fifth street. Had it not been for the kindness of on-lookers, who had foretold the result of her efforts in the strangely fashioned garb, little Miss Feather-Head would have come to grief. It is not only that people make monkeys of themselves in the eyes of the community by foolishly following extreme fashions or fads, but in this latest of outrageous dressings, there is the added possibility of a painful and serious accident. We all know what happens when animals are hobbled or manacled or their progress otherwise impeded by the machinations of man. If our young women must wear these Apache-dance contrivances, let us hope they will confine their exhibitions to their own homes, and behind closed doors.

Little girls may be forgiven for following others in seeking the bizarre and fantastical, but their mothers, never. Don't try to do things that other little girls do, don't be swayed always by other people's ideas and opinions. If you have an inspiration about dress or trimmings, work it out on your own lines. Just because Marie Louise in the next block wears a coy little bonnet, all well-mannered and the charming woman preserves her own individuality at whatever cost. Exclusive women never follow the herd; they are themselves, not faint replicas of others.

One of the surest indexes to character is the mode of dress. If our women would advertise themselves indifferently as silly geese and shatter-pated simpletons, let them persist in the wearing of such grotesque abnormalities as the "hobble" dress. Such creations might well be left to the declassés women abroad.

To Remove Coffee Stains.
EVEN when there is cream in the coffee, stains can be removed from the most delicate silk or woolen fabrics by brushing the spots with pure glycerine, rinsing in lukewarm water. Afterward press on the wrong side with a warm iron.

Inexpensive Curtains

From the Chicago Tribune.
DAINTY and inexpensive curtains can be made at home. For two windows I purchased 1 1/2 yards of white cheesecloth at a cent a yard, and 1 1/4 yards of flowered silkoline containing pink sweet peas and yellow morning glories. For one window I cut two lengths 76 inches long, and for a short curtain between the two side lengths 28 inches long. I put a two inch hem on the sides and bottom of the side lengths and two inch hem on the bottom of the short curtains. At the top of the three lengths I made a three inch casing. I cut the silkoline crosswise in strips two and three quarters inches wide, finished side lengths by putting a border of the silkoline two inches from the outer edge. I put a border above hem of short curtains. White enamel poles can be obtained for 15 cents each. Ten and one half yards cheesecloth at 5 cents.....$.50
Two and one quarter yards of silkoline at 12 1/2 cents.....$.25
One and one half poles at 10 cents.....$.15
Total for two pairs of curtains.....$.90
Thirty-five cents for one pair of curtains and 10 cents for the pole. I made mine for the dining room. Every one who has seen them thinks they are so pretty and dainty.

New Glove Hints.
Tucked long gloves are in again, and will stay for the summer.
Pink silk gloves are reversible to yellow, and just match the tea rose gowns.
White kid gloves are stitched in colors to match the frock; lavender and pink are especially favored.
Yellow lace gloves are cool and washable, and look like the fashionable but heavy chamois.
Thin brown cloth gauntlets are good for the horsewoman.
Chanteclair gloves have come to match the chanteclair handkerchiefs. A tiny rooster or a golden pheasant is embroidered at the elbow.

Dress Accessories.
BLACK, white and ecru Dutch collars and jabots of Brussels net are among the newcomers.
Pleated net, with Valenciennes insertion, also appears in stock collars and in the new frills for coat collars and cuffs.
Chiffon and thin satin or silk shoulder capes, trimmed with puffed bands, fringes, quilling or marabou, and with or without a stole, are a Victorian revival.
Silk moire cloth handbags, with cord handles, may be found by the woman by covering over her old smooth leather bag.
Large silk and velvet flowers, usually in black, are used as rosettes on gathered skirts and low V-necked waists.
Spangle-trimmed afternoon and evening gowns now have neck and head-scars of chiffon in the same shade and trimmed with the same sort of spangles.

Pineapple Cream.
SELECT one ripe pineapple, pare, remove the "eyes," grate, add sugar (pound for pound, or a little less, but it must be sweet, as freezing destroys some of the effects of the sugar). Allow one pint of cream to each pint of pulp and sugar, and freeze. Be sure and have all the ingredients icy cold before combining them.

Ten Life Mistakes.
SOME of us may be glad to be told that there are only 10 life mistakes that there needs to be so many more, but a recent writer has catalogued them. Perhaps these are only the 10 leading ones from which the smaller errors arise. Let's look over the list and see how many of them are ours: First, to set up our own standard of right and wrong and judge people accordingly; second, to measure the enjoyment of others by our own; third, to expect uniformity of opinion in this world; fourth, to look for judgment and experience in youth; fifth, to endeavor to mold all dispositions alike; sixth, to look for perfection in our own actions; seventh, to worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied; eighth, to refuse to yield in unimportant matters; ninth, to refuse to alleviate, so far as it lies in our power, all which needs alleviation; tenth, to refuse to make allowance for the infirmities of others.

Pineapple and Rhubarb Jelly.

The pineapple season is here and every good housewife is always figuring how she can get the best results, and to accomplish this with pineapples, and to make the work as easy as possible, peel your pineapple, if so desired, rather thick. Instead of throwing the peeling away, put them in a kettle to boil with about two quarts of water to one dozen of pineapple peel. Be careful that you do not burn them. Boil them about 20 minutes, then throw them into a colander, and press with a potato masher until juice is all out. And also take the cores of the pineapple and run them through a meat grinder and the juice that you get from them put in the other ingredients. To one quart of juice add one pound of rhubarb, which has been sliced the same as for pies (but do not skin them); do not mix the rhubarb with the juice until you have boiled it five minutes. Add equal parts of sugar and boil until it thickens.

the gravy. Thicken with browned flour worked up with a spoonful of butter, and when it boils up color with as much saffron as you can take upon the tip of a penknife. The saffron should be soaked in a tablespoonful of cold water for an hour before it is used. Boil up the gravy again, pour back upon meat and vegetables and simmer half an hour. The spartlers drain off the liquid to serve as a soup. The fowl, beef and cabbage are arranged in separate basins upon a hot dish for the more substantial part of the dinner.
