

CHOP SUY? NOT FOR ME TO EAT. SAYS WIFE

"I Want Bread and Butter, Not Noodles," Declares Spouse of Chinese Doctor; Will Get Them.

The white wife of a Chinaman does not have to live on rice, chop suey and noodles.

She may eat bread, butter, meat and other Caucasian foods if she desires, and the Chinese husband must pay for them.

These propositions were laid down by County Judge Cleston this morning, when he rendered a decision ordering Dr. Wong Lee, a Chinese physician, to support his Norwegian wife, to whom he has been married six years. He had contended he was not obliged to buy butter and other articles that Chinese do not eat so long as he keeps on hand a stock of Chinese foods.

Testimony in the case began yesterday afternoon and not until after noon today was it finished. Mrs. Lee declared her husband has tried to starve her out of the house for the last three weeks. At that time she was arrested on a complaint of another Chinaman, charged with stealing $200 from the bed where he had slept during the night. Mrs. Lee, after spending five days in jail, was acquitted in the municipal court. Her husband took sides against her and since her release, so she says, he has refused to provide for her.

Dr. Lee at great length explained his side of the case. He said his wife had interfered with his patients until he no longer able to make collections from them to give his wife the money she wants. He said she was always calling on him for money, but he has none. He admitted having many patients and paying $55 per month rent. He said when he was married he did not know the wife had a child, but when he found it he sent to Norway for the child, a girl now 13 years of age. He has since supported the girl, he said, and provided music lessons for her.

The defense also attempted to show that Lee had troubles with his wife several years ago because a full-blooded Chinese girl of the doctor's by a former wife ran away with a negro, and Mrs. Lee took the part of the runaway girl. He is 73 years of age and his wife is 41.

Judge Cleston said the testimony was sufficient to convince him that Lee is able to provide for his wife, but the court was powerless to make any order as to the woman's child by her Norwegian husband.

Lee furnished substantial food such as white people eat to his wife, or else to pay her $4 per week. She will continue to live in the doctor's home above his drug store, but was directed by the court not to interfere with his patients.

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE PREMIER MAURA OF SPAIN

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Barcelona, Spain, July 23.—Antonio Maura, ex-Spanish premier, was wounded last night when he was shot by a woman.

His assailant was arrested. His name is Manuel Posa, and he is a native of Barcelona.

Maura was in the Francis station preparatory to leaving for Palma, in the Balearic isles, for the summer. His assistant, Pons Roca, a driver, and leader of the ladies, were also present, one of which struck the former premier in the leg. As Maura fell to the ground, friends and police sprang upon Roca. A woman, a cousin of Maura, was the first person to reach the would-be assassin. She seized his arm, but was unable to prevent him firing the second shot, which went into the chest, and which wounded Senator Oliviera, a friend of Maura.

Republican members of the cortes met at midnight following rumors of Maura's death. Later, when it was learned that he was only slightly wounded and would recover, they intended shall throw open to investigation the charges that Maura was responsible for the Barcelona massacre last year.

Without doubt Maura is the most hated man in Spain and since his retirement from the ministry he has been guarded by government agents. From those who have sworn to have his life in payment for the wrongs he is alleged to have inflicted upon the people.

Senator Iglesias, leader of the Republicans in the cortes, recently declared from the floor that Maura should be shot. The event for a second time dared not accept Iglesias' defiant challenge to arrest him, fearing that a subsequent inquiry might involve the crown. The same fear is again brought to the surface by the attack on Maura.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Pittsburg, Pa., July 23.—Mrs. Alice Longworth, daughter of ex-President Roosevelt, has to thank an elderly lady, whose name is withheld for defending her before a meeting of the Pittsburgh Players' club last night when the question of whether or not Mrs. Longworth smoked cigarettes came up.

The club's membership is confined to Pittsburgh society leaders. The cigarette question was launched incidentally, but before it had been under discussion long the meeting was turned into a debating society.

When Mrs. Longworth's name was mentioned, the unknown elderly lady pointed to the fact that many of our grandmothers smoked.

"Alice might do worse things than smoke—if she does smoke," she said. "But supposing she does smoke, why not let her get a clay pipe and smoke as our grandmothers did?"

Pendleton, Or., July 23.—The recent celebration of Indians of the northwest at Cayuse on the Umatilla Indian reservation is now over and the visiting redskins are departing for their homes, the majority being somewhat poorer in personal possessions as a result of the incessant gambling which was kept up for three weeks. WOULD MAKE RAILWAY PAY FOR PROPERTY

(United Press Leased Wire.)

L. R. Fairchild and Will Wuraweller, owners of the block bounded by Golden Gate and East Twelfth, have taken a temporary injunction in the circuit court to stop the construction of the new line of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company on East Twelfth street between Hawthorne and Harrison avenues.

The plaintiffs allege the plans of the streetcar company involve the appropriation of part of the cement walk at the corner of East Twelfth and Hawthorne, and say only six inches would be left between the streetcar rails and the proposed new walk. This amounts to an appropriation of property without compensation or consent, they say, and they allege the line could be constructed without damage to their property.

RECEIVER'S CASE NEARLY FINISHED

Last of Testimony Will Be Taken by Court Early Next Week.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

The last stage of taking testimony in the trial of Receiver Devlin's suit against the officers of the Oregon Trust & Savings bank was reached this morning in Judge Gatens' department of the circuit court, when the defense rested its case and A. E. Clark began calling witnesses in rebuttal for the plaintiff.

Major Joseph Simon was the first witness in rebuttal, and J. V. Beach, who is to contest the seat of Judge Gatens as Republican assembly nominee, was the second. Both were called to give evidence as to the Board of Trade building deal. In this the defense alleges the receiver made a serious mistake and with ordinary business judgment would have held onto the building until he could have made a good profit for the bank, instead of selling it at a loss.

Beach, who acted for Gay Lombard in negotiations for taking over the building, late in 1907, said Lombard naturally wanted to buy it as cheap as possible. The witness said he had considered taking a one fourth interest in the building. He did not because he was seized with an attack of "cold feet."

On cross-examination by C. W. Fulton, counsel for W. H. Moore, Beach said the building proved a good investment and he has since been sorry he did not take an interest in it. Asked if the building had not paid 25 to 40 percent on the investment, Beach said he understood it had not paid that much. He added that he had not a prophetic vision in 1907 to enable him to see how Portland would grow and prosper.

At noon Judge Gatens adjourned the case until Monday. In an hour or two the plaintiff expects to close, and this will end the testimony. The case may be set for final argument after court and lawyers have had a few days for rest.

The revision is in conformity to the change in the line determined upon by the Natron some time ago. The line at present passes a mile and a half south of Crescent, but the new line will swing into the town, it is understood, to form a junction point with the Oregon Trunk.

Grading on the Southern Pacific line from Klamath Falls toward Crescent, has progressed to a point six miles south of here. The Oregon Trunk line, which is rushing its survey work, this week placed another party in the field near the agency. It is in charge of Engineer Kelly.

HOUGHMAN GAVE SMITH A HA-HA IN STATE CONVENTION

Doctor Who Wanted Old Time Republicans to Indorse His Candidacy for Governor Feels Sting.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Friends of Dr. Andrew C. Smith are rapidly learning that they were bamboozled into taking their candidate for governor into the convention of Thursday last. They were made to believe that Dr. Smith had a chance for the nomination for governor before the convention and, allowing the bait, then marched to certain slaughter. Now they are being given the horse laugh for their innocence, and the laugh stings.

"We fixed Dr. Smith," is the way one of the delegates, who had a great deal to do with the convention, explains it. "We induced him to come into the convention, got him tied up so that he could not come out as a candidate for governor, and then we voted for Bowerman." And it was a Multnomah man who told of the little game.

Dr. Smith seems to have been fooled all around. He was told that the convention was not like the old time gatherings; that it was a place where a large number of delegates were going to meet to consider the capabilities of all candidates for office and, unbound by pledges or uninfluenced in any way, pick out the strongest and most available man for the position.

They Fooled Smith.

Relying on this belief, on the promises that had been made to him a year ago when he laid down in his candidacy for mayor of Portland, and on the advice of a number of his friends, he decided to go before the convention. Then he found that Bowerman was gathering up the delegates, even in Multnomah county, and he almost decided to go out before the people as an anti-assembly candidate.

When this became noised about the Bowerman forces showed evidences of a panic and at one strong pressure was brought to bear upon Dr. Smith to stay in the convention and take his chances. It was represented to him that he had a most excellent opportunity to win the nomination, and accordingly he determined to stay with the convention. When the convention did to him needs no comment.

Before the convention Dr. Smith's friends held various meetings and the situation was canvassed thoroughly. Dr. Henry Waldo Coe and David M. Dunne, who was who was managing Bowerman's campaign, Beach told his visitor that he was for Bowerman, that Smith had no chance and that he could not have the nomination under any circumstances.

By that time it was too late, however, for Dr. Smith had already committed himself to a candidacy before the convention, and he had to go through with the game.

And besides Smith there are others who went into the convention and came out again with a sore. One of these is O. W. Eastman of Clackamas county, who was a candidate for the nomination for joint senator from Multnomah, Clackamas and Columbia counties. Eastman claims that he is entitled to the nomination which went to Louis J. Clark, and that he will make the race anyway, irrespective of the action of the convention.

In addition, there are many in the southern Oregon and in the Willamette valley delegations who are not feeling any too good over the outcome of the two day of work on the part of the convention.

PRESIDENT HURT WHILE PLAYING GOLF

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Bangor, Maine, July 23.—Limping slightly as a result of an ankle wrench while golfing today, President Taft arrived here this afternoon. Smiling, although the ankle evidently gave him some pain, the president was helped into an automobile and was whirled about the town to the various points of interest. Later he spoke from the Bangor Hotel.

"The truth is," said Taft, "that Maine has exerted more influence in congress than she is entitled to, because of the care with which she has selected her senators and representatives and kept them in congress until the country knew their strength and bowed to their influence. Hale, Frye, Blaine, Fairbank, Reed and Dingley have made their mark in history."

He then talked generalities, praising the climate of Maine and the hospitality of its people.

He urged the advance of agricultural education and the re-development of abandoned farms. Later he took a special train for Ellsworth.

HONEYMAN HARDWARE TEAM WINS PENNANT

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Oregon City, July 23.—The last scheduled game of the Clackamas league was played yesterday between the Honeyman Hardware and Clackamas, and was won by the former team by a score of 6 to 5. As it happened this game was played between the leading teams, neither of which had lost a game, and yesterday's game decided the pennant. It had been the rule for the last game, to be played on the last Saturday of Clackamas between the two leading teams to decide the pennant.

Clackamas got her first bats, but was unable to connect with the ball. Honeyman squeezed in one run in her half. Three more runs for the Portland boys in the second. For three innings the Clackamas bunch was unable to locate Hough's curves, and a good game was not ended until the fifth canto, when the Clackamas boys made out a Texas leaguer in the fourth, that should have been fielded. By hard playing Clackamas passed one man over the plate in the fifth, but stopped there.

Although Honeyman landed on the ball every inning or so for a few safe ones, more scores were made until seventh, when one more came in.

The game opened in the ninth with the score 5 to 1 in favor of Honeyman. The Clackamas boys were on their mettle and a hit and two errors filled the bases with one down. Hough had been pitching grand ball, but the strain was too much and after striking out the next man up, he walked one, forcing in a run. The Portland boys could not settle down, and another error let in one more run. The center fielder muffed a high fly and two more came in, tying the score. Hough struck out the next man.

Honeyman went to the bat with blood in their eyes, and they were not to be denied a run, for with two men on bases and two down, Catcher Hargreaves let one through him, and Manager Harrison came racing over the plate with the winning run.

The feature of the game was the work of Pitcher Hough for Honeyman. Men were knocked out a Texas leaguer in the fourth, that should have been fielded. By hard playing Clackamas passed one man over the plate in the fifth, but stopped there.

Clackamas—Robinson, shortstop; Batten, center field; J. Hargreaves, catcher; Aklin, pitcher; A. Hargreaves, first base; J. Landis, second base; A. Landis, third base; Hough, right field; H. Hargreaves, third base.

SUMMARY.

GREATEST PARADE OF SEERAGETTES

Half Million Women Thus Manifest Indignation at Vote in Parliament.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

London, July 23.—The greatest suffragette parade that ever marched through the streets of London was seen today when more than half a million women showed their indignation at the shelving of the Shackleton bill giving the right of franchise to women in parliamentary elections.

The great column was headed by 617 "prison martyrs" in the correction house uniforms worn by suffragettes imprisoned for disturbances in London's streets and public halls.

Women in every profession were represented by brigades. Three hundred women artists carried palaces and brushes, formed one division. More than a thousand professional nurses were in another.

The actresses, including practically all those prominent on the English stage, formed a detachment 300 strong. They were women doctors, women lawyers, thousands of housewives and housewives and working women.

A regiment of suffragettes cavalry, superbly mounted, acted as escort to prominent suffragette leaders, including Mrs. Belmont. In the column were many floats and scores of beautifully woven banners.

Forty mass meetings were held in the course of the day in Hyde Park, at which 150 suffragette orators spoke.
