DOCTORS' ATTITUDE IN GAYNOR'S CASE CAUSE OF DISQUIET

to go to the Adirondack mountains. That will not be for a week, however, as he cannot be moved before then."

Mayor Gaynor this morning asked to see Gertrude, his favorite daughter. The attending physicians sent for her.

When Gaynor's daughter reached Hoboken she was not allowed to see her father. The doctors said they feared her visit might excite the patient.

Rumors that the mayor's condition was not so favorable as reported were revived when this action of the attending physicians became known.

The doctors, it has developed, are not agreed as to the treatment that should be followed. Dr. Stewart opposes an operation for the removal of the bullet, while Dr. Arlitz and others believe it is imperative that the bullet be removed at once.

As a result of this dissension a consultation has been called for tonight. At this conference it will be decided whether or not an operation is to be performed.

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 11.—The following bulletin was issued at St. Mary's hospital at 8 o'clock this morning:

"Mayor Gaynor's temperature is 100 1-5 degrees; pulse 76; respiration 17. He passed a good night and slept well, although he had a few wakeful intervals. He is now sleeping."

Dr. Arlitz supplemented this formal statement by saying the patient's condition was more favorable than it had been since the shooting occurred.

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 11.—The following bulletin was issued at noon from St. Mary's hospital:

"Mayor Gaynor's condition is satisfactory. Temperature, 100 1-5; pulse, 76; respiration, 17.

"W. J. ARLITZ, M. D."

GALLAGHER DISCOURSES OF FAVORITE AUTHORS AND EXCUSES HIS ACT

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 11.—James Gallagher, assailant of Mayor William J. Gaynor of New York, calmly discussed today the viewpoints he took of his treatment by the mayor following his dismissal from the department of docks and ferries. In a statement to newspaper men Gallagher said:

"I intended to kill Gaynor; that's all there was to it. I hope now that he recovers.

"My favorite author is Shakespeare. I read Dickens and Henry George's 'Progress and Poverty.' That is the only modern book I read constantly.

"Neither Henry George nor Shakespeare inspired me to shoot Gaynor.

"I simply felt that I had no other way of remedying my wrong. I had to do something. If I was wrong, I am here to take my punishment. I do not think I was wrong.

"I am a follower of Hearst. When he was candidate for mayor I voted for him and tried to get my friends to vote for him. I believe in him and in what he says.

"Recently I was a Democrat and I stuck to Tammany hall until I found that I was not getting justice. Then I turned to Hearst. I told my friends that I had read Hearst's writings and that his teachings were right. Nothing is too good for a man like Hearst. He tells the truth and should get any reward the people can give him."

GAYNOR OUTRAGE HAS PUT TAFT'S GUARDIANS UPIN SHARPER LOOKOUT

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 11.—Since the attack on Mayor Gaynor of New York secret service men have surrounded President Taft constantly. Vigilance has been redoubled and the president is not out of sight of one or more of his guards at any time.

When the president motors, one guard stands on the step of his car and two others follow in another automobile. They have orders to shoot first and ask questions later. One operative always accompanies the president on the golf links.

The renewed precautions of the secret service men are in line with the theory that the attack on Gaynor may arouse the slumbering insanity of some crank and awake a desire to duplicate the outrage. The notoriety attending an attempted assassination is regarded as one of the features appealing to the weak minded and the suggestion contained in repeated discussions of the crime is added reason the secret service men consider, necessitating additional care in guarding the president.

JUDGE CLEETON AND GODDARD TO STAND BY GUNS

rights of the people crossing the bridges are to be considered together with the rights of those who travel by water, is another of the positions taken by Judge Cleeton and Commissioner Goddard.

"We have no disposition to violate the law or to defy the government," said Judge Cleeton. "We are proud of the United States and try to obey its laws. But we think when the United States government gave authority to build bridges that authority and consent carried the right to regulate the draw bridges to the interests of the people of Portland as well as to the interests of the traffic passing through the bridge.

"We consider that since the city has spent millions in bridge building the government has not for one moment contended that such regulations should be enforced by the war department as would forbid free transportation over the river. It should not be forgotten that the city is the parent of all navigation. It is the creator of business and commerce and the creator is always supreme. To say that people who produce trade and commerce have no rights we think an unreasonable contention. We do not think it longer possible for the government to insist upon a technical observance of law. We believe that in considering the rights of all we are within the spirit of the law. Consequently we consider ourselves justified in standing by the schedule adopted by the county for the closed periods of the draws each week day evening. We will maintain that positon until advised otherwise, either by some action of the government, or by information from some other source, that we have been wrong."

Authority Is Questioned.

Reading from the formal notice of the government regulations allowing draw bridges to be closed during traffic congestion periods of the morning, Judge Cleeton and Commissioner Goddard insisted today that Major McIndoe, corps United States engineers, had passed his authority in holding up enforcement of the regulations when first made, August 4, until this morning.

"We will contend," said Judge Cleeton, "that the government's regulations have been in force since August 4, and that no complaints of delay or obstructed navigation should be considered following that period."

The county officials have also been convinced that the closed periods permitted by the government will not serve so well as those first prescribed by the county court. There is now an open period from 7:45 until 8:05 a. m., when thousands of people are hurrying to work. They were much delayed this morning, and on several preceding mornings. These delayed people are making strenuous complaints.

"We shall hope to have the closed periods changed so that no boats shall pass through the draws between 6:30 and 7 a. m., and between 7:30 and 8 a. m.," said Commissioner Goddard. "This was the first arrangement, and we are convinced from traffic records that it is the most convenient for the greatest number of people who cross the bridges, and most convenient for the navigation interests. We truly desire to serve both."

The county officials believe that by continuing the evening closed periods the government will soon be induced to give official approval to the local schedule. The government's regulations for the morning periods did not come until the county officials acting, as President H. Beckwith of the Commercial club said, "with starch in their backbones," enforced the closed periods. It is now the testimony of all concerned that no harm has been done the navigation interests, while the congestion of transriver traffic has been materially relieved and time and money saved the people.

DEFEATED CANDIDATE WINS IN PUGILISTICS

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Cordova, Alaska, Aug. 11.—William O'Connor, labor candidate for delegate to congress in Tuesday's election, is out on bail awaiting trial for fighting with Nick Walsh, a local contractor. They quarreled over political questions and though defeated at the polls O'Connor won the physical contest with ease.

Killed by Fall From Skyscraper.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 11.—James Truesdale, a stonemason, of San Francisco, was killed by falling from the top of the Empress hotel, yesterday afternoon. Truesdale was one of a gang of men adding a story to the hotel and it is supposed he lost his balance. No one witnessed the accident, but a cry was heard as he fell.
