Charges Fall Flat.—The charges preferred by Captain E. W. Spencer against Harbormaster Speier and Patrolman Lillis fell flat yesterday afternoon before the executive board. The report of the police committee recommended these charges be placed on file, and the board unanimously concurred in the request. In the committee the matter was taken up, but no merit found in the charge. Captain Spencer charged that Harbormaster Speier and Patrolman Lillis willfully caused his arrest and detention recently, thereby causing a delay in his steamer that was ready to go down river. The arrest was caused, says the harbormaster, on account of the steamer exceeding the speed limit.

Celebrate Return.—By way of celebrating their return from the annual encampment, 60 members of Battery A, O. N. G., met in the Armory last night and passed away several hours in fun and feasting. Several members of the battery were put on trial before a kangaroo court charged with various misdemeanors, while at the encampment near Stevenson, Wash., Captain H. W. Welch, commanding the battery, made a short talk during which he congratulated the artillerymen upon the splendid showing made at the encampment. Refreshments served consisted of a wagon load of watermelons.

New Firemen on Job.—The recently established volunteer fire department in Portsmouth satisfied the citizens of the suburb that it was worth while when it saved the McCarthy building at Portsmouth and Lombard avenues from destruction by fir ethis morning. Flames were discovered at an early hour in the third floor by John Baldwin, a longshoreman, who was passing, and he gave the alarm. The volunteers prevented the flames from spreading to the lower floors, and the loss will probably not exceed $1000. The fire started in some rubbish in a light well.

Public Theosophical Lectures.—Harry Shepard and Dr. William Kelley, students of Oriental philosophy and practical occultists, will hold a series of public lectures beginning Sunday evening, Aug. 14, 1910, at East hall, third floor Selling-Hirsch building, Washington street, between West Park and Tenth street. Subjects: Aug. 14, "Life Interminable; a Unique Survey of Man." Harry Shepard; Aug. 21, "The Truth of Reincarnation," Harry Shepard; Aug. 28, "Practical Occultism; Mind—Its Powers and Possibilities," Dr. William F. Kelley.

Museum of Art.—The loan collection of pictures, pottery, glass, textiles, laces and furniture, together with reliefs, coins, and bronzes, chiefly from Italian and Graeco-Roman sources, is being enjoyed by many visitors to the museum. This exhibit may be seen every week day from 9 o'clock until 5 and on Sundays from 2 to 5. The free hours are the afternoons of Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The permanent collections of photographs and casts are, also, an unending source of pleasure to visitors.

Old Time Picnic—The Rose City Park Improvement league will hold an old style basket picnic this evening from 5 p. m. till almost any hour in the evening on the bluff just back of O. W. Taylor's place in Rose City Park. There will be good music, refreshments and speeches and a general good time. Everyone is requested to abstain from wearing good clothes. To get to the picnic spot, go to Fifty-second and Alameda streets and follow the trail.

Both Sides Meet—Meetings of both the Draymen's association and the Central Labor council were held last night. The teamster's strike was a chief topic of discussion but plans for settlement of the controversy were formulated. The teamsters' strike has now been going on nearly three months.

Plans for Warehouse—The plans and specifications for the $200,000 new warehouse at Lovejoy and Fourteenth streets were submitted this morning to Building Inspector Plummer. This building is to be of concrete and mill construction. It will be occupied by the Marshall-Wells company.

St. Johns' Cooking School—The first free cooking lesson to be given by Miss Tracy will be Tuesday afternoon, August 16, at 2:30 o'clock, Bickner hall. The subject of the lesson, "Cakes and Salads." It is free and all are welcome. St. Johns Gas company.

Special Services—Special services at the Volunteers of America Mission hall, 328 Burnside street, conducted by Evangelist Tom Mackey from Chicago. The meetings are made especially interesting by music and song service every evening at 8 o'clock.

Roof Burned. — A leaking gas tube this morning set fire to a residence at 265 Eleventh street, burning the roof and one of the rooms. The fire department succeeded in checking the flames shortly after its arrival. The loss was about $500.

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher will preach twice tomorrow at the White Temple. Morning, "Lovers Inseparable"; night, "How to Keep Well and Happy."

Dr. Brougher to Preach.—Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, the former popular pastor at the White Temple, will preach there twice tomorrow. He is now pastor of the Temple Baptist church, Los Angeles, made famous by the noted lecturer and humorist, Bob Burdette. Dr. Brougher and family are spending their vacation at Gearhart, Or., and will be in the city over Sunday. They are receiving a hearty welcome from their many friends, and no doubt the White Temple will be crowded tomorrow to hear Dr. Brougher again. His morning subject is "Lovers Inseparable," and at night he will speak on "How to Keep Well and Happy."

GIRL DISAPPEARS MYSTERIOUSLY IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

Miss Florence Hitt, 18 Years of Age, Leaves Work and Fails to Reach Her Home on the East Side.

Miss Florence Hitt, 576 East Eighteenth street, south, has suddenly disappeared and no trace of the girl can be found. She is 18 years old, and had been employed by Olds, Wortman & King until Thursday noon. At that time she left her work to go home, saying she felt ill. She did not reach home.

The mother began an investigation yesterday and found that the girl had secured permission from her employer to go home. The daughter had complained Wednesday evening of being dizzy, and not feeling well. The mother asked her not to go to work, but Thursday morning Miss Hitt said she was better and went to the store.

None of her friends has seen her or can assign any reason for her disappearance. The mother is equally at a loss to understand the mysterious absence, as the daughter has always been correct in her habits and prompt in reaching home in the evening. Mrs. Hitt is inclined to believe, however, that the dizziness again came upon the daughter, and she has wandered away.

When she left the store, Miss Hitt wore a white dress, straw colored hat with roses upon it, tan collar and cuffs and a tan jacket with large pearl buttons. She had brown hair and blue eyes, and weighs about 130 pounds. The mother is Mrs. V. G. Hitt.

Japanese Bride Elopes.—The fickle bride of Matsutaro Horita, a Japanese, living in Montavilla, has fled and Horita is both mourning and seeking for vengeance. He appeared at the office of Constable Lou Wagner and asked for the apprehension of Mrs. Horita and Yoshitaro Fujii, his friend, who is supposed to have gone with Mrs. Horita. Deputy Constable Kiernan traced the couple to Oregon City and Roseburg, from where they took a train to San Francisco. Horita claims his wife took $75 of his money with her when she left. Horita married the missing woman four months ago.

"Capper" in Trouble.—James Smith, an alleged "capper" for a jewelry auction conducted by Cranwell & Rosenthal at 74 North Sixth street, got into trouble yesterday whe he tried to induce Plainclothesman Humphries to buy a cheap ring at an exorbitant price. Smith told the officer that if he would get the ring at the auction price he would later buy it from him for $8. Humphries overheard Smith make similar propositions to other people and then placed him under arrest. The case was continued in municipal court today.

Says Roommate Took Money.—When Joseph Povonlonich, 24½ Nicolai street, awakened yesterday morning, he found his purse, containing $128.95, had been taken from his trousers. He blamed his roommate, Michael Derkak, for the theft and the latter was taken into custody by Patrolman H. L. Coulter on a larceny charge last night.

Driver Found Dead.—Henry Mack, a driver for Olds, Wortman & King, was found dead on the front porch of his home at 82 East Seventh street north, at an early hour this morning. He had been suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis.

Oregon City Boat.—Sunday trips leave Taylor st. dock 9 a. m., 12, 3 p. m. Leave Oregon City 10:30 a. m., 1:30, 5 p. m. Round trip 45c. Tickets good on O. W. P. cars. This is the only short river ride out of Portland.

Family picnic given by Swedish National league at Rohse's park, Sunday, August 14. Admission 25c; children free. Refreshments served. Dancing until 11 p. m. Come one and all. Good time assured.

DEMONSTRATION BOAT TO TOUR PUGET SOUND

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Pullman, Wash., Aug. 13.—The state agricultural school's demonstration boat, which will tour Puget sound in a unique "better farming" propaganda, will start Monday, making its first stop at Brinnon, at the head of Hood's canal. The boat will cover the Puget sound territory, making side trips up the navigable rivers.

A large staff of lecturers from the faculty of the college will be aboard with a great variety of agricultural, dairy and horticultural paraphernalia. For dairy demonstrations there will be two cows, a milking machine and a full line of separators, milk testers, coolers and sanitary pails.

One of the principal exhibits will be that relating to insect pests, how to control them; what to spray with and when to do it.

BALLINGER GIVES NO HINT HE WILL QUIT HIGH OFFICE

During Talk on Conservation It Was Expected He Would Refer to Persistent Rumors Concerning Resignation.

Closely as his hearers at the Commercial club listened yesterday they heard Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, make no hint that he intends to resign before his term of office expires. On the other hand, he said, in concluding his address:

"Standing securely upon my conscious rectitude in the enforcement of the laws and regulations as laid down by congress, in these particulars, the criticisms of the malicious of the conduct of the interior department are important and will fail of interrupting the regular and orderly course of conduct laid down by the law for the administration of the public domain."

The intimation that the "regular and orderly course of conduct" must be through the agency of Ballinger took on distinctive meaning when the listening business men remembered that Ballinger at no time during his address had given credit whatsoever to the Roosevelt administration for the development of the public domain, but had said in clear terms:

Praises Administration.

"The fact is all substantial progress that has been made in this direction has been enacted by the last congress as the result of recommendations initiated by this administration."

The acts of the administration, as all remembered, beside empowering the president to "temporarily withhold from disposition such of the public domain as may be necessary to secure a better disposition, thereof," had been the decapitation of Pinchot, chief of conservationists, and of Glavis, chief of protestants against the Ballinger regime.

"The hysteria of conservation," was Ballinger's tribute to the accomplishments of conservationists of whom Pinchot is a type.

"Faddists crusading under the banners of conservation," was another of the secretary's descriptions.

He added that "Extreme conservation theories in their last analysis may mean government ownership and operation, not merely that supervising control which will insure proper use. They proceed on the theory that the states are not to be trusted to take care of their natural resources."

Outlines Policy.

Secretary Ballinger outlined what he announced as his policy in this sentence: I am opposed to the withholding of any lands in the public domain, reserved or unreserved, that are capable of giving strength and permanent prosperity to the country in agriculture, commerce or industry."

With a possible remembrance that many who have contested his rigid rectitude in administering his affairs have asserted a belief that the secretary has intended for certain profitable land gobblers to feast on the public domain, Mr. Ballinger added that he did not believe that private ownership necessarily meant fraud or monopolization. He also spoke warmly in favor of developing the Alaska coal lands that the local prices on coal may be reduced.

The secretary declared that he felt friendly toward Oregon, and that he hoped the board of army engineers, which is now investigating, will recommend favorably to the administration the extension of the West Umatilla project and the completion of the Klamath project.

To Investigate Charge.

His announced object in leaving for the Klamath country yesterday evening was, however, to sound the merits of complaints that F. H. Newell, director of reclamation, has failed to keep his promise to the settlers that they should have water from $18 to $20 an acre, and is charging them now $30 an acre.

He will also visit the Crater Lake National Park with a view to determining what should be the amount of aid the development of the park should receive from the government. He was accompanied by E. G. Hopson, chief engineer of the Klamath project, and Oliver P. Morton. He was to be accompanied from Salem by Congressman W. C. Hawley.

Preceding his address yesterday Secretary Ballinger was entertained at luncheon attended by state and government officers.

MAZAMAS REACH SUMMITS OF ALL THREE SISTERS

summit of the Middle Sister, at an altitude of 10,500 feet. After reaching the peak, he rested for an hour, dropped his pack and left a written message for the climbers far below. Then he descended to the ridge below, on the north, and crossed from the Middle to the North Sister. After incredible labor and with great skill and daring he climbed all three of the high pinnacles on the North Sister. The highest pinnacle was reached at 12:33 p. m. In six hours and 28 minutes from camp, he had ascended two peaks, one 10,000 feet in altitude, and had unaided and without even a canteen, reached the highest pinnacle of the North Sister. He reached camp once more at 4:07 p. m., ten hours and two minutes from the starting time. None of the mountaineers in camp knew of any such a record. Mr. Prouty yesterday made a daring hand over hand climb up a steep cliff and was the first Mazama to reach the summit of The Husband.

New Mazama.

Morse Hayward is 7 years and 9 months of age. He is the youngest person to reach the summit of a Pacific snow peak over 10,000 feet high. Morse made the ascent in fine style, and by special vote of the club, proposed by Jack Montague, was elected a Mazama at the summit. Jack Montague had the previous record of being the youngest Mazama.

Have Snowball Fight.

The party making the ascent of the Middle Sister left camp, after an early breakfast, at 6:05 a. m. It was divided in two divisions, led by C. W. Whittlesey and R. W. Montague, with H. H. Riddell bringing up the rear. The ascent was made slowly, and easily, up the western slope. After crossing the gravel flats above the camp, the two divisions followed the snow banks where possible, as going was fairly good early in the morning on the hard snow, and over the rough boulders and shell rock at other points. One large glacier was crossed. At one point the ascent was made up a high, 50 degree snowbank, and ice axes were used to make a footing. On the descent the largest number of the party coasted down this hill on their backs, making the descent in a few seconds where the ascent had required half an hour of hard work. A snowball fight at 9000 feet altitude was an incident.

The last 1000 feet of the ascent was up a steep cone of loose rock and rough lava. It was by all means the most difficult part of the ascent.

Personell of Climbers.

The party making the climb was as follows:

Donald M. Pague, Miss Geraldine Coursen, Professor Edgar E. Coursen, Miss Louisa Almy, John R. Montague, Richard W. Montague, Miss Nettie Farr, Miss Martha O. Goldapp, Dr. David T. Kerr, Miss Sadie L. Settlemeier, Miss Maude B. Halliday, C. W. Whittlesey, Charles Knapton, C. M. Scott, H. H. Riddell, Morse Riddell, Miss Julia Copperthwaite, Leroy E. Anderson, Clyde B. Aitchison, George M. Weister, and C. L. Winter, all of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Groner of Hillsboro; H. E. Ferrin of Forest Grove; W. C. Yoran of Eugene; Professor and Mrs. Ira A. Williams of Ames, Iowa; Miss Hildegarde Plummer of Hillsdale.

Yesterday C. W. Whittlesey and Francis Benefiel ascended the north fistu to the pinnacles but were unsuccessful in making the ascent of the pinnacles themselves. A party of six attacked the Husband, but only Mr. Prouty, W. C. Yoran and Tom Eliot reached the summit. The Husband is an extremely rugged mountain though not of great height.

On the summit of the north pinnacle of the North Sister, Mr. Prouty found the record left by Rodney L. Glisan and E. H. Loomis in July, 1903.

Mule Decamps.

Today a large party left camp with blankets to bivouac at the slope of the South Sister, which will be attacked tomorrow. Billy Thompson, the camp mule, decamped yesterday and in consequence each Mazama is his own pack mule today.

George Currier, who was injured by a fall on the Middle Sister, has recovered so as to be able to take long walks.

WOMAN PLUNGES 4 STORIES FROM BALCONY; DYING

but would say nothing about how she came to get her injuries.

Tenants of the fashionable apartment house are all a-flutter today from excitement over the mysterious manner in which the girl, full-dressed, toppled from off the high balcony, and attendant circumstances that tended to rouse their suspicions. Nerves of several of the women lodgers were so racked that they went to homes of friends today to get away from the gruesome surroundings.

Cooks for Two Men.

Three weeks ago W. A. Kastner, a dyer who has lived in Portland only about two months, met Nettie Curtis. She told him she would arrange to rent an apartment if he and his man friend would take rooms. Delighted with the prospect of eating "home cooking" Kastner and his friend took the apartment with her. Kastner took it for "Mrs. and Mr. W. A. Kastner." He said he knew he could not otherwise rent it.

Kastner said today that they have lived happily during the last, three weeks. She cooked only dinner for them. Apparently she had few friends and passed most of her time at home. She seemed quiet, lady like and perfectly content with conditions. But they never learned of her past life. Varicolored designs tattooed on her forearms attracted their attention, but when they asked about them she went to her room without a word and locked herself in.

Last night the girl left the apartment early. She said she expected letters from her home, although she had never told where her parents and two younger brothers lived. Kastner and his friend retired before she returned.

Falls From Balcony.

They were awakened by the ringing of their door bell about 2 o'clock. It was one of the tenants occupying an apartment on the first floor, for their rooms are on the fourth.

"Is there anyone missing from your apartment?" the man asked.

"My wife's down town," replied Kastner.

"Well," said the other, "a woman has fallen from the public balcony on the fourth floor, and she's pretty badly hurt. She's about 36 years old and has gray hair."

Kastner did not think the description fitted Nettie, and he went back to bed. He was awakened again in a few minutes by Patrolman Bliss, who told Kastner it was his wife who was hurt. Kastner and his friend identified her and went with her in the ambulance to the hospital.

Patrolman Bliss was passing on Fourteenth street when the woman fell into Salmon street, striking squarely on the pavement. The scrape of a chair on the balcony attracted his attention, and while he looked he saw the girl's body hurtling through the branches of a poplar tree that rises in front of the house. She fell on the pavement in a heap. While he was hurrying to her side he heard a moan that told him she still lived.

Tenants Aroused.

Then the apartment house began to disgorge tenants who were awakened by the noise of the fall and the woman's moans. They went out in every stage of dress and undress. Among them was G. Quartmas, janitor of the building, whose apartment fronts on Salmon street, a few feet distant from the spot where the woman lighted when she fell. He recognized her and sent a messenger to find Kastner, or his friend.

Bliss and Quartmas carried the girl into the house and laid her on the floor in the hallway. They could not get a physician and called an ambulance. Then she was speeded to St. Vincent's hospital. She is being attended by Dr. R. E. L. Holt, who is acting as city physician during the absence of City Physician Zeigler. He said at noon that she is in a critical condition. She is injured internally.

The girl was fully dressed when Patrolman Bliss picked her up. She called for "Papa," but while she talked on the way to the hospital, she would not tell how she came to fall. When the officer went to the fourth-floor balcony, which opens into the main hallway and is used by all those holding apartments on the fourth floor, he found two chairs, placed side by side, near the railing and facing the street.

No Signs of Struggle.

There were a number of scratches in the paint on the rail. But because of the arrangement of chairs on the porch the officer did not think there had been a struggle. Holders of fourth-floor apartments said they heard a man and woman talking together on the balcony at a late hour this morning. They did not hear sounds of a struggle. One of them heard some one padding downstairs just an instant after the crash of the girl's body striking the pavement was heard. But that might have been one of the other tenants going downstairs to investigate. Yet he might have used the automatic electric elevator.

Nettie Curtis came to Portland during the Rose Festival. Kastner said he did not know from where she came. He said she has a brother in Oakland, Cal., who owns a barber shop, and a sister somewhere in the northwest. He said that when he met her she told him she had been out of the hospital only a short time. She told him she wanted to be a good woman, and she intended studying stenography and taking a course in bookkeeping. That was about all he knew about her.

NORTON AND HITCHCOCK WIN OUT AT BEVERLY

Ballinger has prepared his resignation and that he will leave office about Sept. 15 and that Senator Aldrich in an interview with Taft yesterday repeated his former assertion that he would not be a candidate for re-election, together with the further report that Speaker Cannon will no longer be retained as a party leader, has given rise to the belief that Crane has taken the place Hitchcock held as chief political adviser to the president.

Want Roosevelt's Aid.

The removal of Ballinger and the retirement of Aldrich and Cannon are only part of a plan, it is believed, which is intended to appease the insurgents and coax an endorsement out of Theodore Roosevelt and insure victory.

Just what the next move will be is a matter of speculation, but those close to the administration here say that others of the regulars who are considered out of touch with progressive ideas may find their leadership slipping from them.

Taft is particularly anxious to have a Republican majority in the next house, so that the rest of his program may be carried out. The decision to make the changes that have been made, it is declared, follows messages carried by Republican leaders from all parts of the country pointing to the necessity of a Republican congress. It is reported that all these leaders have been particularly anxious to have Ballinger deposed.

While there has been no doubt since the first announcement that Crane's mission was to ask Ballinger to resign, it is believed that the reports emanating from the summer capital yesterday were as authoritative as the administration will give until the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee's report is made public.

Again in Favor.

Hitchcock, it is declared, lost standing for a while with the president in political matters because of his loss of prestige for the stand he took in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

It is believed that Aldrich's visit to Beverly yesterday, after his letter to Congressman McKinley denying the Bristow charges, was made in the hope that Taft would endorse the denial. That the president let the Rhode Island president know that he would not endorse the denial and that Aldrich then promised to retire, is the belief of politicians here.
