PROFESSOR M'MILLAN SAYS MARS HAS NO PLACE TO LIVE; BOOSTS VENUS

(United Press Leased Wire.) Chicago, Aug. 29.—Atmospheric changes surrounding the planet of Venus are similar to those surrounding the earth, according to Professor Duncan McMillan of the University of Chicago, who declares that it is his opinion that on earth is to be found anywhere, it is on Venus, and not on Mars, Professor McMillan is sure that intelligent beings inhabit Venus. Professor McMillan ridicules the theory of Professor See of the naval observatory at Mars Island, that the planets revolving about the fixed stars are inhabited. Since there are 100,000,000 of these planets, he says, to state that they are inhabited is mere guesswork.

THE DAY OF THE SPINSTER

By Darra Mora. MANDA says it is about time for something to be said about what is known as an old maid. She further says that the strangest part of it to us (Amanda is one of the spinsterhood) is that we never meant to be here, but here we are. It isn't because we do not care for those things that every womanly woman should care for or because we wish to shirk responsibilities. We dearly love children and we like men.

We are the old-fashioned type of woman. We never stepped over the line to run after any man, and we did not think it our business to hang on to him, if he did not seem to want us. About the only kind of man that ever cared for us was the kind that needs reforming, and we do not believe we can make a man out of nothing. But we have our compensations, in that we seem to fit in with the needs of so many people. Instead of belonging to one man, every one tries to make us his happiness. So we just go on trying to fill in the chinks of life by doing the things that other people leave undone or do not care to do.

Don't you think Amanda is rather a sweet sort of person? I do. But, what about Hubert, who writes to ask why men ever marry? "I can understand," he says, "why girls marry. They want a home and to be able to prefix the intensive 'Mrs.' on their visiting cards, and then the wedding presents and the newspaper notices also influence the glib sex to keep on dreaming of trosses, but with a man it's different. He cares nothing for ventilated oyster forks and the pressed glass pickle dishes that mark the red-letter day in a girl's life. Why, oh tell me why, does the mail continue to bring us wedding invitations duly attesting that our presence is desired?" Have you room in your drawing room

MISCHIEVOUS RATS RING BELL AND PLAY JOKE ON SALOONMAN

Another mystery has been solved by Special Officer J. J. Fitzsimmons and on the last occasion when he used his deductive qualities with remarkable success the miscreants were found to be rats. This time Fitzsimmons' mental energies were concentrated on the mysterious ringing of bells in the saloon of R. E. Pomeroy at West Park and Morrison streets. Pomeroy had heard of Fitzsimmons' exploit in unravelling the mystery of the fire in the Kantong restaurant at Thirtieth and Washington streets, when the officer demonstrated that the incendiaries were rodents. Yesterday he called him to the saloon and with the doors locked they stood outside and listened to the confounding rattle of the bells. Pomeroy told the officers that his bartenders had been mystified during all hours of the day and evening by the bells, which were supposed to respond to buttons on the tables in the grills in the rear of the saloon.

Fitzsimmons traced the wires from the tables to the indicators and found holes where the wires came up from the floor near the bar. The insulation had been cut from the wires by rats and Fitzsimmons demonstrated that when the rats tried to get out of their holes they pressed the wires together, formed a connection and rang the bells. Pomeroy passed out the cigars after the explanation had been made and promised to buy a rat-trap.

HIT AND MISS

It takes three generations to make a gentleman—and one chorus girl to unmake him.

Inviting a celebrity to come and display himself at your pink tea is about as audacious as inviting a stock broker to come and give your guests tips on the market in return for his dinner.

A woman seldom bothers about looking for her ideal man after she has found a real one who looks like a possible catch.

Drying and sighing for love are entirely out of fashion; lying is about the greatest proof of a grand passion that the average man indulges in nowadays.

The great financial problem which confronts the modern business girl is how to save enough out of an ordinary weekly salary to pay for a husband in her old age.

Plum Preserves. An old recipe for inexpensive plum preserves is well worth recalling in these days when economy must be the watchword. Skin the fruit or not, as desired. If you do not skin, prick the skin to prevent bursting. Make a syrup of three fourths pound of sugar to each pound of fruit. Add a cup of water to each cup of sugar. Boil syrup and plums, a few at a time. Remove with a skimmer and put in glass jars. Boil the syrup 10 or 15 minutes longer or until it thickens. Fill the jars to overflowing with the hot syrup and seal.

Plum Jam. Take equal quantities of sugar and fruit. Prepare a hot syrup as in preserves. Peel fruit and mash. Add to syrup. Cook until thickens and put away in glass jars.

To Keep Linen. Linen that is laid away becomes like lace and silk, yellowish in time, which may be partly removed in the washing, but it may also be avoided by wrapping the linen in dark blue tissue paper after it has been washed and dried as usual. An old sheet answers the same purpose if heavily blueed.

Garments which are being washed in flour must be treated exactly as if they were in the wash tub. They must be lifted out with as much flour in the folds as possible and rolled in a clean towel for a day. A good shaking and ironing will then restore them.

Artichoke Omelet—Break four fresh eggs into a bowl, add four tablespoonfuls of water, and beat until whites and yolks are thoroughly blended. Season with salt and pepper.

Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan or use the same amount of olive oil, and when hot turn in the omelet. Shake pan for a few moments, then slip a flexible knife around the edge of the pan, lifting the cooked portion to let the uncooked run under.

When ready to turn out have another hot pan at hand with a half a cupful of cooked artichoke in slices. Season them with a little onion juice, parsley, salt, pepper and nutmeg, then place a layer of the chokes over the omelet, fold over and slip onto a heated platter.

Big Sum for Apples. (Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Hood River, Or., Aug. 29.—E. R. Manning has received a check for the sum of $400 in payment for one half the Gravenstein apples picked from seven plants of an acre. This is the largest amount of money ever received by a Hood River grower for Gravenstein apples. This figure would bring Manning at the rate of $1000 per acre for this variety. Many of the growers will have close to $2000 per acre from their Gravenstein and Spitzenberg this season.

CITY COUNCIL REFUSES FIGHT SHOW PERCENTAGE

(United Press Leased Wire.) Hilliard, Wash., Aug. 29.—The city council today notified the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures that it would not accept ten per cent of the proceeds of the show that the company wanted to give here. When the show was first asked for it was turned down, and then the promoters offered to split receipts with the council, and this was rejected.
