

ASSEMBLY TALKS HEARD BY CROWD OF 1500 PEOPLE

Assembly Campaign Formally Opened by Meeting at Armory Last Evening, With Many Antis in Attendance.

Before an audience, which at the apex of the meeting did not exceed 1500 people, the assembly campaign was opened in the Armory last evening. Fully one-third of those present were unmistakably anti-assembly in sentiment, apparently attracted to the meeting by curiosity. Conspicuous among the leaders who sat on the platform was Joseph Elmon, one time boss of Oregon politics and now Portland's assembly mayor. With him were Pat McArthur and other legislative nominees of the recent county assembly.

Some time after 8 o'clock and before the chairs downstairs were anything like filled, the meeting was opened by Judge M. C. George, who stated that it was about time for the Republican party to "cuddle up a little closer" and that a quartet would tell them how to do it. The quartet told them, and then they sang "Sleep, Baby, Sleep," winding up very appropriately with the Bowerman campaign song.

Judge George Urges Cooperation.

Judge George continued his remarks by saying that it was time for some people to take the bits in their teeth, and fix up a ticket that had the instrument of somebody. What was wanted was an effective organization, he said. Throughout the evening Pat McArthur, on the stage, and Bill Barry, in the back row, acted as yell leaders, and they both applauded the chairman, as they did the subsequent speakers. When they applauded the old liners fell in with the chorus.

R. H. Butler was the first speaker of the evening. He said he had tonilitis but that he came from the waving wheat fields of Gilliam county. That was the county that would also grow the next governor. He was there as the representative of the county, not of the governor, he said. The governor was up in eastern Oregon trying to get Oregon's share of the $20,000,000 irrigation fund being distributed by the government, and which share the state had not gotten. Congressman Ellis, who was on the platform, did not applaud this part of the speech.

Judge Butler said that he had heard that the assembly had been corporation packed. He did not know whether it was or not, he said, but he did know that Gilliam county's delegation was on the square, it had been composed of the butcher and the baker and the candlestick maker from up his way.

Charles B. Moore came after Judge Butler. Mr. Moore talked for some time, saying more or less caustic things about various anti-assembly candidates, but he had evidently left his "skinning knife" at home, as he didn't skin the other side as he was advertised to do.

George W. Stapleton said to "Beware of False Prophets." He said he represented not one but several corporations and that he was glad of it. He believed, however, that a corporation lawyer could go to the legislature and represent the people, if he were an honest man. He spent most of his time commending Judge Elmon and attacking Judge H. E. McGinn, saying that the latter did not have the judicial temperament.

Stapleton said they did pack the bar association meeting to nominate Elmon. He said the other side tried to do it, and brought "old man Marquam, tottering on the brink of the grave, when he should be thinking of other things than the resentment rankling in his heart and not be turning his back on the open grave" to vote against Elmon.

Toose Eulogizes.

When Walter L. Toose began to speak there was only a fragment of the audience left. His address was devoted largely to eulogy of the Republican party. In the course of his remarks he declared that he accepted a challenge to meet Dan J. Malarky in debate in the anti-assembly meeting last Saturday night, but was finally refused opportunity to speak. At this point Toose was interrupted by Malarky, who was sitting in the gallery. Malarky attempted to make an engagement for a debate, but the crowd would not permit him to speak, and his voice was drowned in the uproar. Toose then resumed his argument. He was the last speaker of the evening.

SENATORS ABSENT THEMSELVES TO PREVENT QUORUM

Massachusetts, and Senator Sutherland of Utah refused to attend the meeting, which was called to order by Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, chairman, at 10:04 o'clock.

It is presumed that the absentees remained away today to prevent a quorum attending the session. Senator Sutherland left the hotel where the committee is meeting a short time before it was called to order. McCall and Denby could not be found today. The other members of the committee were present when Chairman Nelson called the session to order.

The anti-Ballingerites threatened to send the sergeant-at-arms out after the absentees and compel their presence. Denby, McCall and Sutherland conferred shortly after the meeting was called to order. They refused to say whether they had planned to prevent a meeting of the committee until the absent members arrive.

Infantile Paralysis at Cornelius.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Forest Grove, Or., Sept. 8.—The 4-year-old son of a family by the name of Turpin died yesterday at the Buchanan hospital near Cornelius of the dreaded disease, infantile paralysis. The boy had been ailing for several days, but the nature of the malady was not suspected until about 24 hours before his death, when a physician was summoned. This is the first case of death occurring this year in Washington county from the disease. The boy was buried in the Hillboro cemetery.

Discontinue Venator Postoffice.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)

Washington, Sept. 8.—An order has been issued discontinuing the postoffice at Venator, Harney county, on September 30 instead of August 31.

WOMAN CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER HAS BEST CHANCE TO WIN

(United Press Lined Wire.)

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 8.—Mrs. Mary Archibald has been appointed for treasurer of Ashland county by a vote greater than the combined votes of her two male opponents. Nomination is equivalent to election. Mrs. Archibald is a widow and supports several small children. She is said to be one of the cleverest business women in this part of the state.
