Promptly at 8 o'clock Monday night Mayor Simon will press the button which will light the thousands of colored incandescents that will illuminate the 100 exhibits of the manufacturers at the Food and Industrial exposition and the show will proceed upon its two weeks' run.

Thousands of dollars are being expended by the Retail Grocers' and Merchants' association and the exhibitors in presenting this exposition to the people of Portland and Oregon. The specific purpose is to boost the products that will be represented. Every industry of note will be represented. Many mechanical exhibits will be in operation.

The interior of the Armory will represent a miniature world's fair. All exhibitors will dispense food samples and souvenirs to the visitors. A force of carpenters and decorators have been working day and night since Friday to get the exposition ready for the opening. Director General A. A. Treppe, of the exposition, promises to have everything spick and span and complete when the doors are thrown open.

Streamers of lights from Washington and Eleventh streets to the Armory will point the way to the food show. Rosebrook's band will give concerts each afternoon and night during the first week and the mysterious woman with the red mask in an act of sensation will thrill those attending, by her performance.

More than 300 mothers have promised to bring their babies to the first grand baby show Tuesday afternoon and compete for the six silver cups to be awarded to the most beautiful babies present.

Special attention is to be given the women of Portland by the exhibitors during the business and they are urged to attend afterwards, as they can enjoy the show with more comfort and avoid the night crowds.

The following ten young women, queens of the exposition, will vie with each other for the honor of empress of the show: Miss Lillian Gardner, Alma Ketterstein, Maud Woodruff, Florence Squires, Ruth Kopple, Ruth Lindholm, Roxana Wommelsdorf, Cassia Lane, Telle Fieischauer and Marie Noel. These will be stationed in the Queen's Court especially built for them, and there they will receive their friends and all visitors.

The exposition will continue for two weeks, every afternoon and night. An attendance of 150,000 is expected by the manufacturers.

Merchants from all over the state will attend. As an educational feature nothing better than an affair of this kind could be held. Even the children are to have an afternoon to themselves, to be amused and incidentally to learn what is produced by Oregon and national manufacturers. Saturday afternoons being set aside for children. Special features and attractions of various kinds will be given daily.

FENDER SAVES LIFE OF DELIVERY HORSE

Although built only to catch people, a Nelson automatic fender saved yesterday the life of a Mason-Ehrman company delivery horse, for which the horse is supposed to be properly thankful. The animal pulled across the street in front of car No. 546 at Davis and Couch streets. The car was moving too rapidly to stop before the collision occurred. The weight of the horse released the fender, throwing it against the pavement. The horse was caught and carried 30 feet. It was found almost uninjured, while the fender was but very little damaged. The fender at the time was being demonstrated by E. L. Brown, local representative of the American Automatic Fender company. "I suppose it is one of the unaccountable decrees of fate," said E. A. Nelson, of the American Automatic Fender company, last evening, "that within the period of a few days a human being should be killed by a street car without an efficient fender, while under exactly similar conditions the life of a horse is saved by a fender that is thus proven to be a life-saving device on the streets of Portland. It seems to me if any further evidence were needed of the necessity of having the street cars of Portland equipped with a life-saving fender it is furnished in the recent killing of Mr. Lechmoier by a car without a suitable fender, and the saving of the life of a horse yesterday by being picked up by the American Automatic Fender company's air-controlled fender."

NEIGHBORHOOD DIRECT PRIMARY RALLY LATEST IN POLITICAL WORLD

New wrinkles in political meetings will be introduced Thursday night, when a "neighborhood direct primary rally" will be held in Waverly hall, Twenty-sixth and Clinton streets. It will be a general republican rally in the interests of the direct primary. Dan Malarkey will be the principal speaker. L. O. Hull will speak on conservatism. Votes will be taken from all over the county have been invited to attend.

Buffalo Bill Will Make His Last Visit With Wild West Show

Goldie St. Claire, winner of first honors at Cheyenne last year and this season on Hystepper with the Wild West.

The announcement of the coming of two exhibitions heretofore given separately, known as the Wild West and Far East, promises to be one of rare interest. The scope of the two subjects gives the untraveled spectator a passing view of the personalities of people from around the globe, their customs and pastimes, and incidentally, as is well known, presents horsemanship in all its stages from the bareback riding Indian to the well trained thoroughbred.

Among the many and varied personalities none will be more attractive than the western ranch girls. A group of these expert lady riders will vie with the male contingent in feats of equestrian skill. Among them are some who are adepts and will show their grace in the high school art; others that are competent will ride bucking bronchos. While these feats will astonish there will be nothing that will appeal more pleasantly to the spectator than their rocking dash and grace in the Virginia reel with their cowboy partners. It presents a breezy, picturesque, pulse eating measure in nature's hall, whose hangings and decorations are clouds, sunbeams and stars, and it is vitalized with so much healthful vigor that a part of it is infused into the delighted spectator.

MOTHER IN RAIN WITH CHILDREN

Woman in Intoxicated Condition Given Shelter; Father and Husband Gone.

A puzzled lodging-house keeper telephoned to the juvenile court yesterday to know what he should do about a woman and two small children who sought shelter with him. He said the woman was intoxicated and he could not accommodate them.

Chief Probation Officer Treuscher suggested a call on the police to take care of the woman, and he volunteered to look after the children. Soon after the police called for him to take charge of the case, saying they had found the woman out on the street in the rain with the children.

The woman gave the name of Mrs. Mary Marshall. She talks with a strong Scottish accent and is believed to be of the gypsy kind. She said her husband left her in Denver five months ago, where they lived in a park. The husband and two sons-in-law are horse traders. She said she came to Portland by way of Spokane, and, as she was exhausted by the trip, went for a "brazer." She had a quart whiskey bottle, almost drained of its contents, which she said she purchased at a saloon near the east end of the steel bridge.

The woman was found to have $15 in cash, and rooms were secured for her and the children until Monday, when disposition of the case will be made by the juvenile court. One of the children is a girl two years old, and the other a babe born last May.

WORKING WOMEN ARE UNDERPAID

Object of Protective Association Is to Raise Salaries; Meets Today.

"For a living wage for working women," is the cry of organizers of the Portland local of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association, who will hold a mass meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon to perfect the organization. A meeting was held Thursday night and a temporary organization formed. The mass meeting today will be attended by a large throng. It is expected by the organization committee. Mrs. Frank W. Cotterill, state organizer, will preside. She will be helped by the organization committee of the Central Labor Council.

"In Portland," said Mrs. Cotterill, "the average wage paid girls working in stores is $17.50 a month. We are organizing in an effort to have wages raised so that the women can live properly. In Seattle we got better working wages for women, and I believe we can do it here. Conditions are frightful in some of the larger stores. We have investigated, and have found that 82 per cent of illness among employees is caused by lung trouble."

"In organizing the association local here we want to recruit both men and women. My duty is to get the women into the local. We are having great success."

Mrs. Cotterill is the wife of State Senator Frank W. Cotterill of Seattle, Wash., one of the labor leaders of Washington.
