

HOPE TO PURIFY LEGISLATURE OF ILLINOIS BY VOTE

Lorimer Scandal Awakens Citizens and Primaries Expected to Change Face of Politics—Cannon to Be Returned.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Illinois' new direct primary law—the fourth since 1905—will be given its first test tomorrow, when all parties will name their candidates for state, congressional, legislative, county and judicial offices. The campaign has been one of the most exciting in the political history of Illinois. In the contest for state and legislative offices the Lorimer scandal has been the paramount issue, with national and other local matters mixed in. In the congressional campaign Cannonism, the Payne tariff bill and the high cost of living have been the subjects most discussed.

The better element of both parties is supporting the proposition that the legislature shall be cleaned out from top to bottom of all men who voted for William Lorimer for United States senator. There are 264 members of the legislature, of whom 45 Republicans and 53 Democrats, 108 in all, voted for Lorimer for senator. Four of the 108 have confessed that they were bribed to vote for senator. Another, who has not confessed, has already been tried once for bribery and is now being tried the second time. Still another has been indicted for alleged bribery.

About 20 of the legislators who voted for Lorimer are not candidates for re-nomination. Several others are held over senators who cannot be reached at the coming election. The interest taken in the movement to purify the legislature has brought candidates galore. The Democrats, believing they have a chance to capture the legislature, have put up two candidates in practically every district of the state, and the Republicans have done likewise. For the 153 seats in the lower house 589 candidates are entered in the primaries, and for the 26 state senatorships to be filled there are 182 aspirants.

The fight of insurgency against stand-patism has also brought out candidates in plenty for congressional seats. For the 27 seats Illinois has in the national house of representatives 184 candidates are seeking party nomination.

The prediction is made that few, if any, of the Illinois congressmen will be returned with their old time majorities behind them. One of the delegation, Frank O. Lowden, decided not to stand for reelection, and half a dozen others have serious contests on their hands for renomination.

One Democrat, James P. McDermott of the Fourth district, has been turned down by the Democratic organization because he voted in aid of the Cannon house organization last March. In the Republican ranks the signs of insurgency are pronounced. The leading Republican members have opposition in almost every instance.

Two Republicans are contesting for the seat of William J. Mosley in the Sixth district. Mosley has come in for much notoriety the past year, and his defeat is considered likely. Recently he was forced to pay the government a fine of $20,000 for violation of the oleomargarine law, and his firm has also been repeatedly mentioned in connection with "butter moonshining" in Chicago.

The real surprise of the congressional contest is likely to occur in the Ninth district, where Henry S. Boutell, member of the ways and means committee, who nominated Speaker Cannon for president, and who is known as the "ideal statesman," is believed to be in grave danger of defeat. The newspapers unqualifiedly assert that Boutell, who is known as the "Goanerges of protection," is not coming back.

McMINNVILLE MAN NO LONGER LOST

G. W. Scott Who Places Note in Bottle Soon Finds Way Out of Woods.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Wenatchee, Wash., Sept. 14.—When G. W. Scott, formerly of McMinnville, Or., enclosed a note in an empty whiskey flask and cast the bottle into the waters of the Wenatchee river, he says he really believed he was lost. He was located today in the camp of the Malaga Land company's orchard tract, where he has been working as a cook for a week. Out in the mountains a party of experienced guides are still hunting him and it is probable that they will not know of his safety for several days.

Scott, whose home during the winter months is at McMinnville, was working for Rothrock & Anderson, sheepgrowers of North Yakima, who employed him during the summer months as locator of sheep camps in the mountain grazing districts. He left camp and came to Leavenworth September 2, where he says that he drank considerable whiskey. He then bought a flask and started out. He does not remember where he went, but he says that when he awoke from sleep in a rough country he finished up the contents of the flask, wrote the note and placed it in the bottle. Then he went to sleep again. When he awoke again his mind was clear and he found his way to the camp where he is now employed.

As soon as the note was found last week Sheriff J. E. Ferguson engaged men to hunt for Scott and his deputies were accompanied by rangers from the forestry service. The hunters are still out.

MASTERS OF ROPE COMING TO PORTLAND

Closely allied to the aborigines of America is the picturesque composite race that is now called the native Mexicans. The blood of the old Castilian cavaliers of Spain is liberally mixed with the Montezumlan Aztec natives, with a heavy interjection of the more Moorish Spanish soldiers and adventurers that have fraternized with them since the days of Isabella and Ferdinand, the times of Cortez, down to the occupancy by the French army under Maximilian, all tending to create a combination that while largely Indian has the Spanish predominance.

Their riding with spirit, dash and grace is the closest approach to the American cowboy known, whilst their habit of throwing from the ground or from the horse standing or running is a marvelous display of accurate sight, strength of arm and the control of muscles. Mexico still possesses classes known as vaqueros, and the mounted policemen known as the rurales, who retain a knowledge of and are great exponents of the art.

A number of these marvelous masters of the rope are included in the contingent of horsemen with Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East.

San Francisco was in the field for the big fair for some time before New Orleans came out and declared itself as wanting it, too. San Francisco bus-

Fined for Killing Pheasants.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
McMinnville, Or., Sept. 14.—Frank C. Zosel and Joe Turner were arrested yesterday by Deputy Game Warden O. B.

Parker for killing native pheasants out of season. They both pleaded guilty before Justice Hopfield and were fined $25 and costs each. The native as well as China pheasants are very plentiful in this country this season and it is hard for the nimrods to wait till the season opens October 15.
