FULL RECOGNITION PROMPTLY GIVEN NEW GOVERNMENT

nel at first wanted to stay in Lisbon and fight, but his advisers forced him to flee. When the Necessidades palace began to crumble under the shells of the republican-manned warships and forts, Manuel left the building by means of a secret exit and went to Mafra, north of Lisbon. Queen Amelie and Dowager Queen Maria Pia, then at Cintra, joined Manuel at Mafra. The Duke of Oporto remained in hiding until Thursday, when he boarded the royal yacht Amelie had sailed to Ericeira, near Mafra. Manuel and the others, guarded by the students of the Mafra military school, went to Ericeira. On the way the young king wept constantly and threatened repeatedly to return. He was dissuaded from his purpose and his mother and the party boarded the royal yacht. The little craft sailed at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon and

MANUEL SAYS HE WILL BOW TO PEOPLE'S WILL; BRITISH GRAB PREDICTED

(United Press Leased Wire.)
London, Oct. 7.—A Central News agency despatch from Lisbon via Hendaya, today says that more than 1000 were killed in the fighting at the Portuguese capital during Tuesday and Wednesday.
The estimate is believed to be high, although it is said to have been based on the judgment of experienced newspaper correspondents.
Passengers on the steamer Asturias arriving at Vigo, and official despatches to the foreign office, confirm the assertions from Lisbon that Dom Manuel is at Gibraltar, aboard the royal yacht Amelie. The queen mother, Amelie, the dowager queen, Maria Pia, and the Duke of Oporto also are reported aboard the yacht.
The Gibraltar correspondent today quotes Dom Manuel as saying that he would make no attempt to regain the throne. Manuel's comment, according to the correspondent, was: "I will bow to the will of the people."
The fact that he fled makes it unlikely that he will ever head a successful revolution against the republic.
Financiers and politicians here believe the British foreign office knew in advance that a revolution was impending. This statement, however, is officially denied.
It is believed that England will attempt to acquire some of the Portuguese colonies, including Cape Verde islands, Guinea, St. Thomas island, Angola, Portuguese East Africa, Goa, Samoa, Diu Assit, Timor island in the Indian archipelago, Macao and possessions in China. Angola is the largest of the dependencies.
Germany is expected to resist the plans of Great Britain.
The Portuguese royal family has been making investments in England and it is reported that its members have made millions.
It is likely that Dom Manuel will live in France.
The general opinion in England is that the republic will not last long and that Dom Miguel, the pretender, will be called to the throne.

CORTES ASSEMBLES BUT NO REFERENCE MADE TO AFFAIRS IN PORTUGAL

Madrid (via Hendaya), Oct. 7.—The Spanish cortes assembled this afternoon, after several postponements, owing to the state of the public mind following the exciting reports from Portugal.
Premier Canalejas was besought by the monarchists to again postpone the assembling of the cortes, but he refused to do so, saying he feared the effect of such action on the people and the possible consequences to the peace of the realm.
Routine business was transacted and no reference was made to the Portuguese situation, according to official dispatches.
