

MISS ILLINGTON IN "THE WHIRLWIND" CHARMS AUDIENCE

Return of Noted Actress to the Footlights Marked by Excellent Acting of High Class Company—Forceful Play.

By J. F. S.
Miss Illington and her kiddies—neither of which impediments would have been at all in place—Margaret Illington came back among us last night, riding on the wings of "The Whirlwind," the latest piece by that clever and most forceful of present day French dramatists, Henri Bernstein. It was a stroke of genius for Miss Illington to have chosen this most dramatic and stagey of plays for her return from domesticity. There's no need of the interviewers asking her now what she thinks of socks and sewing. The answer is in "The Whirlwind." It takes the wind out of the cross questioner's sails and leaves him aghast. It is a quite astonishing token of her acuteness and intelligence.

"The Whirlwind" isn't for the milk-fed palate. It is guaranteed not to put you to sleep in a pleasant after dinner nap. It doesn't gurgle with pretty but softly sad sentiment as did Viola Allen's sob earlier in the week. But for those who enjoy dramatic sensations, highly seasoned and forceful, "The Whirlwind" is the thing.

Most Absorbing Play.
What Bernstein did in "The Thief" in which Miss Illington last appeared here, and what he did in "Samson," his powerful play of finance, he has again done in "The Whirlwind." It is a gripping, an absorbing play. It takes you to the edge of your seat and keeps you there till it is over. It burns—but it has a flavor.

Miss Illington has a highly emotional role, but it gives nothing to that of Walter Edwards, who, as Robert de Clavignon, reveals himself as an actor of unusual and distinctive merit. It is not a so-called sympathetic role, but it is acted with an intelligence and a nicety that fixes it in the memory.

Helene Brochelet, who de Clavignon rears the whirlwind they sowed during their three years of love, de Clavignon has gambled away a huge sum that is not his. Helene endeavors to secure the money with which to pay the debt from her father, a rich and socially ambitious today, who has clung to de Clavignon tenaciously because of his social standing. Falling in this one tries to raise the money through her jewelry.

Money Comes Too Late.
Not daring to risk the delay which his precautions necessitate, she obtains it as the price of submission to a detested cousin and former suitor. She hurries with it to de Clavignon's apartments, arriving in time to hear a shot that kills him in the adjoining room.

The "big" scene of the play and one of the finest things that Bernstein has done, is the interview between de Clavignon and Baron Le Bourg while the former is discussing his impending suicide. Le Bourg, bourgeois and ambitious, is shocked at de Clavignon's announcement and comes out with the ready query as to why he should not want to live and, taking advantage of an offer he—the Baron—has just made him, to go to America and start anew, taking pleasure in the struggle with his fellow men, in the attempt to win a new fortune, to show his superiority over them and to enjoy the pleasures of life. Does this appeal to de Clavignon, the aristocrat? Not at all.

"My dear fellow," he replies to the

"IT SEATS ALL."
This is quoted from a letter of M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo.: "I recently used Foley's Honey and Tar for the first time. To say I am pleased does not half express my feelings. It beats all the remedies I ever used. I had contracted a bad cold and was nearly sick in bed, having a terrible headache and cough and was threatened with pneumonia. The first doses gave great relief and one bottle completely cured me. I shall always recommend Foley's Honey and Tar." baron. "You are an upstart. I use the expression in its best meaning."
Prepares to Die.
"To you, who have risen from the dirt, life seems beautiful, and its treasures are dazzling. Do you think they appeal to me? I was born into them. I have always had them and know them. They mean nothing to me." And so, having completely crushed the well meaning baron—the title was bought—de Clavignon goes about his preparations to die.

OWENS VALLEY ROAD REACHES COMPLETION

Los Angeles, Oct. 14.—The last project of the late Collis P. Huntington will become an accomplished fact tomorrow, when the final spike is driven in the new railroad through Owens valley, marking the practical completion of the new road. Railroad men regard the Owens valley line as not only a great enterprise, but by far the best route ever opened in this section. The road has been built for a fourfold purpose—to head off the Western Pacific from an easy way into southern California; to tap a fertile and rich region by connecting Los Angeles and Owens valley; to open a new tourist route from California to the east, and to relieve freight congestion that ties up California every year just at the time the oranges are ready for shipment.

STRANGE VENDETTA IN HILLS OF CALIFORNIA

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Anaheim, Cal., Oct. 14.—Armed with a Winchester rifle and two revolvers, Santos Carlsoda started today for the Triunco hills to search for Rosario Sainz, charged with murder, who escaped from the San Bernardino jail last week. Sainz is alleged to have killed Jose Machado by mistake. Carlsoda declared that the bullet which killed Machado was meant for him (Carlsoda).

A feud of long standing, he said, exists between himself and Sainz. Following Carlsoda's request that he be permitted to take Sainz's trail, he was commissioned by Sheriff Lacey to capture the fugitive dead or alive. He has orders to shoot Sainz on sight.

"Either I will bring Sainz back or I will not return," Carlsoda declared as he started on the man hunt.

ALL WILL WORK FOR BIG FLEET

Pacific Coast Unit in Favor of Maintaining Defense for This Section.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Oct. 14.—The leading topic of discussion in commercial circles of the coast cities today is the plan for the Pacific Coast congress to be held in San Francisco November 15 and 16, for the purpose of adopting measures looking to the restoration of the American merchant marine and the placing of a greater battleship fleet on the Pacific.

As soon as Governor Gillett had signed the call, inviting the governors and leading representatives of the eight Pacific slope states and territories and Hawaii and Alaska to attend the congress, unanimous approval of the action was heard on every side. Politicians, business men, merchants and financiers all joined in the opinion that the reestablishment of a merchant marine and the enlargement of the Pacific fleet were greatly needed.

After signing the call Governor Gillett said:

"The moral effect of this congress on the deliberations of the Transmississippi congress at San Antonio five days later, and on impressive when it meets in Washington, will be weighty."

THE FEAR OF HUSBUG

Prevents Many People From Trying a Good Medicine.

Stomach troubles are so common and in most cases so obstinate to cure that people are apt to look with suspicion on any remedy claiming to be a radical, permanent cure for dyspepsia and indigestion. Many such prize themselves on their acuteness in never being humbugged, especially in medicines.

This fear of being humbugged can be carried too far, so far, in fact, that many people suffer for years with weak digestion rather than risk a little time and money faithfully testing the claims made of a preparation so reliable and universally used as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

New Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are vastly different in one important respect from ordinary proprietary medicines for the reason that they are not a secret patent medicine, no secret is made of their ingredients, but analysis shows them to contain the natural digestive ferments, pure aseptic pepsin, the digestive acids, Golden Seal, bismuth, hydrastis and nux. They are not cathartic, neither do they act powerfully on any organ, but they cure indigestion on the common sense plan of digesting the food eaten thoroughly before it has time to ferment, sour and cause the mischief. This is the only secret of their success.

Cathartic pills never have and never can cure indigestion and stomach troubles because they act entirely on the bowels, whereas the whole trouble is really the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets taken after meals digest food. That is all there is to it. Food not digested or half digested is poison as it creates gas, acidity, headache, palpitation of the heart, loss of flesh and appetite, and many other troubles which are often called by some other name.

They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package.

ered by Honorable Hoke Smith, governor-elect of Georgia.

RELATIONS OF COLLEGES TO SCHOOLS DEBATED

Boston, Oct. 14.—The relation of the endowed colleges of the eastern states to the public schools was the leading topic of discussion this afternoon at the opening session of the annual meeting of the Association of New England Colleges and Preparatory Schools. Elmer E. Brown, United States commissioner of education, and Professor Thomas A.

Jagger Jr., of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, were the chief speakers.

Largest Commercial Club.

Hood River, Or., Oct. 14.—It is very probable that the city of Hood River has the largest Commercial club membership of any city in the state of Oregon. There are now nearly 100 members in the club and the dues have been advanced from 50 cents per month to $1 per month. The assembly hall is in great demand and is in use nearly every evening of the week.
