

WAKES VOTES IN VIRAL AND DASH OVER COUNTIES

Robert G. Smith, Democratic Nominee for Congress in the First District, Accompanied by Senator Chamberlain.

Honorable Robert G. Smith, Democratic nominee for congress in the first district, winds up a whirlwind campaign tomorrow night at Selo, Linn county, having covered Yamhill, Polk, Benton and Linn since Monday morning. Both Mr. Smith and Senator Chamberlain addressed a huge crowd at Corvallis yesterday afternoon and last night were welcomed by a big turn out of voters at Philomath. Mr. Smith began a two days' campaign of Linn county this morning. Senator Chamberlain speaks at Toledo tonight.

Tomorrow morning Senator Chamberlain returns Mr. Smith for the meeting at Selo tomorrow night. Both Mr. Smith and Senator Chamberlain have been greeted by large and enthusiastic audiences throughout the four counties and it is freely predicted by observers of political conditions in the first district that the Democratic candidate for congress will receive the largest vote ever cast for the Democratic nominee in Yamhill, Polk, Linn and Benton counties.

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS

There has been many sales put on in Portland, but the crowds yesterday at the opening of Davidson Bros' sale of their $55,000 clothing stock demonstrates the fact that the public at large can distinguish between the real and genuine sale and the fake sales so commonly attempted in this city.

Davidson Bros. were compelled to move their immense stock of men's and young men's clothing, shoes, furnishings, goods, hats, etc., from their old location at 47 Third street to their store at 61 to 63 North Sixth street, where their mammoth consolidation sale of the two stocks is now in progress. This old established firm of Davidson Bros. are too long in the business and too well known to need a word from us—their square dealing in the past accounts for the unusually enthusiastic crowd of eager buyers which packed the store all day long yesterday and today.

The sale will continue throughout the week, while the stock lasts. Never before in the history of Portland has there been a strictly new, up-to-date stock of clothing of the best known manufacturers' makes, thrown upon the market for what it will bring like this.

It behooves every man to at least look through this extensive line of styles, up-to-date suits, cravattes, hats, shirts, underwear, shoes, etc., before buying elsewhere, as no firm on earth, unless they were forced to do so by some cause or other, would ever make such sacrifices—genuine sacrifices—as Davidson Bros. are now doing.

A sale of fall and winter clothing like this, coming right at the beginning of the season, makes it a most opportune chance for all—the every man and young man needs so many articles of clothing to start the winter.

Why pay even more for poor, inferior grades of clothing, when you can attend a sale like this and obtain the best lines made at prices in many instances half?

This popular firm were greatly handicapped for salesmen the opening day. However, they have arranged for plenty of extra salespeople for tomorrow, and none will be turned away. Without a doubt, tomorrow, at 61 to 63 North Sixth street, Davidson Bros' store will be crowded to its fullest capacity, and you will do well to come early.

EXPLAINS ATTITUDE ON DOCK RATES

W. D. Wheelwright Insists Port of Portland Did Not Act Hostile in Matter.

Portland, Or., Oct. 21.—To the Editor of The Journal—I avail myself of the opportunity given me to answer the statements that appeared in a recent issue of an evening paper, under the heading of "Dock Rates," and beg to say, in the first place, that the conclusion arrived at in that article, viz: That the Port of Portland commission "passed on the matter nastily" is quite erroneous.

On the contrary, they carefully considered the whole subject, from the point of view of the income that should be derived from the very large investment of public money which for the past years has yielded no return, as well as from that of furnishing dock facilities on as low a basis as they can be had at any port on the Pacific coast. As a result of its deliberations, the commission lowered its regular rates, making a smaller reduction on the larger vessels that would necessarily use the public dock, than that dock would come into competition with the local private dock.

Restored Old Custom.

It is true also that when lowering the established docking rates they restored the old custom, which I understand to be the universal rule of dry-docks everywhere, of making a fair and reasonable charge for each day's use of the dock. The practice of giving two days' dockage at the low rate of 30 per cent per day, with a minimum charge of $40, is an experimental and exceptional to the general usage. Free lay-days were first established on the representation by contractors using the dock, that, owing to an alleged excessive rainfall in Portland, much time was lost on that account here as compared with other ports. Originally these free lay-days were made to apply only during such weather, and later, only on vessels that were docked for cleaning and painting alone, without repairs, but it soon appeared from claims made by the aforesaid contractors, that nearly every day was rainy day and that practically no repairs were done. It was all cleaning and painting, and it always rained!

Establishes New Rates.

Thereupon the rate of 2 cents per ton per day, with a minimum charge of $40 for each of the first two lay-days, was again established experimentally, without restrictions as to work or weather, in the hope that it might attract business, which hope has resulted in disappointment. The use of our facilities during the past year or so has been practically limited to vessels that were too large to enter the other dock. Thereafter careful consideration of the Port of Portland commission established the new rates on the principles hereinbefore stated, and a very little study will show that the results, as a rule, are not such as were given in the article referred to. It is quite true that a sailing vessel of 175 tons, such as is mentioned, if she could occupy the dock for three days, would pay more than she would have paid under the old rates, although the figures are not quite correct, owing to an oversight of the condition of a minimum charge of $40. It is equally true that if she occupies the dock for three days in the performance of a job that should be done in one day, the expense is greatly in excess of what it would be.

Charge Unfounded.

That such work can be done in that time is shown by the recent experience of the British steamship "Glenlee," 4149 tons register, which was cleaned and painted in 24 hours and paid $621 dock-fee as against $579.60 that she would have to pay now. If this same vessel should require repairs that necessitated her occupying the dock for seven days, the charge under the new rates would be $2421.00, as against $1968.10 under the old schedule. Whereas if the repairs were important enough to hold her in the dock for thirty days, the charge under the new tariff would be $4,921.50, as against $7718.10 under the old one, from which it appears that the longer a vessel occupies the dock after the first few days, the smaller the relative expense, which is as it should be. It appears, therefore, that the charge to the effect that the Port of Portland commission has advanced rates about 66 per cent, is entirely unfounded. It is to be further noted that all of the above calculations are based on gross rates, without taking into account the large discounts that are offered to any persons, firms or corporations that will bring business amounting to $5000 or more during any one year, to the dry-dock.

It hasn't been claimed, of course, that the rates for docking have been lowered on the basis of the 2 cents per ton rate for two days being considered regular, that provision was without precedent, so far as I know, in the history of the dock. It was tried and found wanting. It failed to attract business and served no purpose except the convenience of dilatory contractors. Therefore it was abolished.

Yours respectfully,
WM. D. WHEELWRIGHT.

PRES. WOODRUFF CALLED T. R. LIAR

Storer Incident Recalled to Point Allegation of Unmit- igated Mendacity.

(United Press Special Wire.)
Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The talk in Ithaca today is the attack on Theodore Roosevelt made by President Woodruff of Cornell university at a political rally over which he presided and at which he called the subject such names as "liar" and "unmitigated liar."
During his speech Professor Woodruff was cheered and hissed alternately. At frequent intervals there were loud calls for Judge Alton B. Parker, who begged the crowd to allow Professor Woodruff to finish his speech.
Woodruff reopened the Bellamy Storer episode, which Roosevelt recently denounced. He charged that when Roosevelt denied anything Storer to the Vatican he was an "unmitigated liar" and that there were letters in his possession to bear him out.

BOARD IN GAME WITH CITY COUNCIL

Each Works Against Other in Holgate Sewer Squabble; Meanwhile No Sewer.

It is practically a game of checkers that is being played by the executive board and the city council over the Holgate sewer proceedings. Each municipal body is moving against the other, and neither is able to reach the king row. The council had its move this morning. The next will be up to the executive board.

The Holgate sewer district includes Kenilworth and adjoining territory. The estimate for the work is $101,000. Proceedings have been moving from committee to committee of both the executive board and city council. This morning, the sewer committee of the council decided to send the proceedings back to the executive board with a request that bids be called for, and the matter settled.

The executive board recently returned the proceedings to the sewer committee of the council, recommending that proceedings be discontinued. The latter committee frowned at this action, and today made another move for the king row.

The fight proper is between the terra cotta sewer pipe builders, and the cement sewer pipe people. The original plans of the council were to build the sewer of terra cotta. The property owners agreed to this, and all necessary specifications and ordinances were prepared. The cement interests made a move that defied the matter, but finally bids were received for a terra cotta sewer system. The lowest bid was $17,000 above the estimate of the city engineer. This gave the cement pipe people a chance. The argument was made that the cement sewer could be constructed below the engineer's estimate, which was $110,000.

This feature was presented to many property owners, and a mass meeting called. The meeting lasted until 1:15 o'clock in the morning. A petition with fully 100 names was filed with the council asking that cement sewer pipe be used. The executive board listened, and recommended this. Today, a strong request was made for a sewer. Prominent men of the district said they were not particular what kind of sewer, they wanted a sewer. The difference in cost will be very little, and sentiment has again moved for terra cotta sewers. The street committee will state in their communication to the executive board that terra cotta material should be used, and it is expedient to advertise for bids immediately, as the people need the sewer without delay.

THIEVES STEAL VALUABLE PAPERS

Los Angeles, Oct. 21.—Private detectives were employed today by Mr. W. Hazelton of Oxnard, N. Y., to recover securities worth $160,000, which he says were stolen from his apartments on South Main street. According to Hazelton, who is 35 years old, the papers were locked in a small steel box, which he kept in his bureau drawer. He returned to his rooms last night to find the box had been stolen. The securities were not negotiable.

REAL ESTATE MEN DINE; HEAR TALKS

Portland Realty Board's Ban- quet a Success; Some In- structive Addresses.

One of the best attended meetings of the Portland realty board since its organization four years ago was held at the Commercial club last night, when 60 members of the organization sat down to a banquet and later listened to a number of interesting and timely addresses by guests.

After the banquet was served, Edgar B. Piper, managing editor of the Oregonian, the first speaker, made a talk on the "Relation of Real Estate Men to Journalism." Mr. Piper made the point that the two lines of work have a large share in building up a city.

R. W. Raymond, manager of the industrial bureau of the Commercial club, explained the work of his department in exploiting the city's advantages and made a strong appeal for the earnest cooperation of the real estate men in developing Portland as a manufacturing center.

Whitney L. Boise talked on the single tax amendment to be voted on at the next election. He advised the realty men to be on the alert in making votes against the land tax measure, and predicted that if the proper effort were put forth the amendment could be defeated.

President Killingsworth appointed the following committee to prepare a report upon the advisability of making an effort to repeal the law making it impossible for an agent to collect a commission without possessing a written contract: Henry B. Reed, chairman; George D. Schalk, Henry W. Fries, W. H. Chaplin, Carl Jones, A. B. Slauson, W. A. Spanton.

WILL ARREST ANY SEATTLE GAMBLER

Another order on the subject of gambling was issued this morning by Chief of Police Cox on the receipt of information that gamblers were coming to Portland from Seattle because of the agitation against law breaking in the Puget sound city. The order to the police captain reads:

"Information has reached this office that a number of professional gamblers have come to the city from Seattle, Wash., with the intention of setting up gambling games and plying their trade here. You will, therefore, instruct the officers of your reliefs to be on the lookout for this element and when sufficient information is procured that one of this class is here bring him in on a charge of vagrancy."

POLICE ARREST MORE GAMBLERS

Patrolman Klinge, Singlehand- ed, Raids One Place; Nabs Three Chinamen.

Five prisoners were taken last night by Patrolman C. C. Klinge in single-handed raids in Chinatown, forming the first arrests since Chief of Police Cox issued the order withdrawing the sanction of the police department on Chinese gambling.

Following the posting of the order the fantan gambling room at 22 Second street, close to police headquarters, was closed, but the gambling since has been transferred to a room in the rear of a tea store at the same address. Klinge got by the drowsy "lookout" last night and burst into the room, but quick as he was the gamblers succeeded in brushing most of the stakes from the table before he could reach it. The officer, however, obtained 40 cents, the dominos and dice.

George Wah, Oh Long and Yuen Hsuey, the prisoners, through their attorney, denied in the municipal court this morning that they were gambling and also denied that they were playing in a closed room. To settle this question Judge Tawell went to look at the premises and disposal of the case went over until Monday.

Shortly after this raid Patrolman Klinge slipped into a rear room at 87 Second street, where he found He Ching, a former gambling room proprietor, and Hing Sing, an employe, engaged in making up lottery books. They pleaded guilty before Municipal Judge Tawell today and drew fines of $35 each.

Despite the order issued by Chief Cox gambling is said to continue in Chinatown and numerous subterfuges have been adopted to outfit members of the force. All of the old fantan rooms have been abandoned and new quarters unknown as yet to the policemen fitted up. One patrolman found a game in progress on Everett street last night, but the door to the room where the Chinese were playing cards was not locked and the only stakes in appearance were matches. The players asserted they were only whiling away the time and not playing for money and the officer had no evidence on which to arrest them, although feeling sure that the matches represented money.

HIBERNIANS READY TO GREET O'CONNOR

When T. P. O'Connor, famous Irish patriot, comes to Portland tomorrow he will be greeted at the station by the great number of the Irish-Americans who live here. A reception committee, consisting of Dr. Andrew C. Smith, Postmaster C. E. Kendrick and Edward H. Boies, will accompany Mr. O'Connor from Seattle. They left for Seattle this morning. Plans are being made, too, to have a committee meet the famous advocate of home rule for Ireland at Kalama.

Plans for Mr. O'Connor's entertainment while in Portland were announced yesterday. He will attend mass Sunday morning. He will be guest of honor at breakfast from 12 until 2, to be given at the Hotel Portland by the Portland Press club, which has planned a typical Irish "spread." In advocacy of Irish freedom from English subjection he will address a great mass meeting to be held in the Portland theatre Sunday afternoon. A small admission fee will be charged and the amount collected will be used to swell the campaign fund for home rule. Mr. O'Connor will leave for Spokane Sunday evening.

JACKSON CLUB TAKES HAND IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS

A meeting of the Jackson club in the assembly hall of the Medical building has been called for this evening to discuss $2 charter amendments. These proposed measures will be considered from a non-partisan view. Men familiar with each subject have been selected to lead the discussion.

This will be the second meeting of the new club. The membership has increased three fold since the organization. The organization is Democratic in principle and doctrine, but in handling the 32 charter amendments, it is proposed to go into them with the idea of throwing out all sides. It will be aimed to present and advocate the best features that will improve city, county and state affairs.
