Quickly following the announcement made by The Journal yesterday of probable rise in the price of roast coffee, there was an advance of 1 cent a pound for all grades that sold from 25c downward...

The outlook for high turkey prices was not so bright today. The situation has taken a new turn. Big people have decided that all provisions are too high and therefore are using their influence and money to carry out their plans.

Dressed chickens are coming in somewhat more freely and the immediate future will show the demand greatest in these.

This was an extremely dull day in the livestock market at North Portland. Only two loads of cattle and 244 head of sheep were received.

Even at the advance of a cent, which by the way is the sharpest rise in roast coffee market to date this season, the raw coffee market is still 2c a pound above the basis for roast, and therefore it is to be presumed that the latter will make a further gain soon.

According to one of the most prominent roasters of coffee on the coast, within a short time the public will not be able to buy for 25c retail any coffee that grades above No. 7 Rio.

The local manager of Armour & Co. had a car of Iowa corn fed turkeys due today and these will be sold to the trade at 24c a pound or 20 under the price generally established on front street for holiday birds.

Geese and ducks are in demand at the prices quoted by The Journal today.

There was a drop of 10¢ per bushel, ever, they were for the account of local packers.

No hogs came forward today, and the market while weaker is nominally unchanged here. At South Omaha today there was a drop of 10¢ per bushel with a weaker feeling.

With No. 7 Rio green quoted in the eastern market at 12 1/2c a pound, which means 15c roasted here, it will be impossible to sell a better grade of coffee today retail at 25c and allow the retailer his normal profit.

Swift & Co. had a carload of eastern dressed turkeys in yesterday afternoon and another car was due this morning.

Just what the aggregate of the eastern turkey shipments to Portland and the northwest was this season, the trade is unable to say definitely at this time but it is known positively that the outside supplies for this territory are fully double those of any previous season.

Among the shippers: Cattle—M. Erwin, Payetta, Idaho, one load; W. Fairman, The Dalles, Or., one load.

HIGH PRICED APPLE MARKET VERY SLOW. Northwestern Fruit Exchange reports the apple situation today to The Journal as follows: There is no particular change to report in the market which continues rather dull and featureless. There is a fairly active demand for cheap apples and mixed cuts of choice grades find a better market comparatively than the high priced varieties, which are being neglected by the trade, as there seems to be a general distrust of the speculative outlook. Spitzbergers in particular are moving very slowly and are hard sellers and not worth more than $1.50 f. o. b. for the very finest stock. We have made the following sales: F. G.
