INCOME TAX BY
WEST GABROAD
Wealthy Capitalists of Britain
Buy American Securities and Avoid Payment of Income Tax.

By Charles F. Stewart.
(United Press Staff Writer.)
London, Nov. 19.—Revelations of the extent to which English capitalists are evading the income tax are stirring up a tremendous storm all over the country. The trouble started with the exposures made by emissaries of the inland revenue department, under the spurring of Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George, but it is beginning to appear that the revenue department's representatives have uncovered only a small part of the truth. And the worst of the situation is that these well-to-do class, which can best afford to pay the tax, is the one which profits most by dodging.

A wage earner has practically no chance of escape. There is a plain record of his income. The collector can readily find it and the recipient either pays or goes to jail. Capitalists simply invest their money in places where the collector cannot find it, and pay no tax at all, or a very small one. If the tax were light the loss to the country would not be so serious. Considering that it amounts to however, an income from invested money, to approximately 8 per cent, it is evident that no great amount of dodging has to be done to run into enormous figures. Of course, the humbler wage earners have to make up by paying higher taxes for what the capitalists escape.

Evadon of Payment Is Easy.
After interviewing a large number of London financiers, the London Chronicle reports that it "discovered that unaccounted for income tax on foreign investments is a matter of great simplicity. The general view was that this policy is not adopted to a large extent by the public companies, but that it has become a growing habit on the part of the fairly wealthy investor who sees a means of avoiding payment of the tax of the country. Every facility is naturally offered by foreign finance houses to increase the traffic, as it is one that brings larger business to them. In addition to the collection of coupon payments, bonds are being purchased abroad, more particularly in America, and they are held there for the purchasers, interest being remitted by draft.

The trust companies of America have laid themselves out in the class of business during the last few months, and have invited people on this side to cooperate with them by opening accounts with them to which coupon payments would be accredited as they fell due. The arrangement of the whole matter is extremely simple, and the evasion of the income tax thus rendered a trivial matter by those who have the power to make their investments through an agency in America or on the continent."

The Chronicle vouches for the fact that corporations have saved $75,000,000 in the last year in income tax on American securities.

Pan-Islamic Alarm.
Europe, and England in particular, on account of the vast number of its Mohammedan subjects, is watching with great anxiety a widespread movement throughout Islam countries to drive all "infidels" out of lands where the religion of the "prophet" predominates. The best judges do not think there is any likelihood of this movement's success, but they agree that it promises to cause the worst kind of trouble in the not distant future.

"Pan-Islamism" had its start fully 30 years ago, but it made no great progress until the last five, during which it has gained ground with alarming rapidity. It has been responsible for the unrest in Egypt and the Sudan, and has had much to do with the anti-British agitation in India, and in Persia, Arabia, Tunis, Algeria and Morocco it has had a profound effect upon the past half decade's developments.

The strength of the movement for the Pan-Islamic league is unquestionable. Both in Europe and Asia, the countries where the great powers are most anxious to establish themselves at present are Mohammedan. England first of all occupied Egypt, then France occupied Tunis, and penetrated into Morocco. Now England and Russia between them look like cutting up Persia. Of course, all Europe has been looking for generations with longing eyes upon Turkey.

Naturally, the Mohammedan world is not only irritated but it feels that it has been marked down as the prey of all the Christian brigands in the occident. The powers have allayed this excitement up to a few months ago by the exorcism of a little tactfulness.

It would have been easy for France, for instance, to have accepted the Turkish loan without imposing conditions which, to any country, would have been intensely irritating. Similarly, England and Russia seem actually to have tried to drive Persia to treaty. The Pan-Islamic movement is trying to do in their country now what they did a number of years ago in Egypt. They have noticed that when England gets a foothold anywhere under pretense of "keeping order," it gives a way to make money, regardless of anyone's feelings, Russia is looked on as a plain land pirate.

Egypt is taking the lead in the Pan-Islamic movement at the moment. In a sense, it is purely local, because it originated with a chief called Elmi, who started a "holy war" on his own account. In addition to this the loyalty of the native troops in both Egypt and Sudan is watched by Mohammedans all over the world. Unless England succeeds in suppressing it promptly, it will certainly be followed by risings in India, Morocco and Persia.

Moslem Cooperation Impossible.
From the European standpoint, a reassuring feature of the situation is that concerted action by all the world's Mohammedans is impossible, the "faithful" being split into so many sects that it is out of the question to get them to fight together. To offset this advantage, however, there is the danger of complications among the European powers themselves. For one thing, Germany has never forgiven France for snatching up Morocco. England is also in the fatherland's bad books for securing a foothold in Persia, and likewise for making the costly Bagdad railroad—which German capital built—of very little value.

Recently Mohammedans have been acclaiming the Kaiser the "friend of Islam." Now Wilhelm knows perfectly well that the "triple entente"—England, France and Russia—is no match for the "triple alliance"—Germany, Austria and Italy. Military experts are agreed that in a contest between the

REPORTED THAT PORTLAND AND SEATTLE LOSE 13,000 EACH—Official Figures Tuesday.

(Washington Bureau of the Journal.)
Washington, Nov. 19.—Census Director Durand expects Portland figures to be given out Tuesday. He says Supervisor Beach and the Seattle supervisor came here and went over the figures of their respective cities with the census officials. Each agreed that the proposed eliminations should be made approximately the same for each city.

Senator Bourne called today on Durand and went over the situation, learning nothing not set forth in the foregoing.

Durand is in receipt of a telegram from Senator Chamberlain, saying he was satisfied with the proposed action. As to the number of names to be stricken from the original enumerators' lists, any figures are pure guessing, the only thing approaching an authoritative statement being that the eliminations will be practically the same for each city, but from unofficial sources comes an intimation that there may be as many as 15,000 from each place. So far as appears there is no evidence of discrimination against Portland in favor of Seattle. Apparently, the census bureau has first procured the complete consent of Beach to the correction of his own rolls, which makes unreliable any stories of discrimination and puts the whole business up to Beach.

TO HONOR IRISH
MARTYR'S DEATH
Memorial Meeting Will Be Held
Tomorrow Night on Anniversary of Execution.

In honor of the Manchester martyr, Allen, Larkin and O'Brien, who lost their lives November 23, 1867, while fighting in the Irish cause, a memorial meeting will be held in the W. O. W. hall, 123 Eleventh street tomorrow evening. All friends and sympathizers of Ireland in her struggle for home rule are invited to attend.

Rev. Father J. A. Conway will deliver a memorial oration. Judge W. N. Gates will act as chairman. The following musical and vocal program will be given.
Medley of Irish airs on the piano, Miss May Barrett; song, "Come Back to Erin," Mrs. Frank Rucker; recitation, "The Flag," Aloysius Hyland; song, "Where the Shamrock Grows," Howard Farrell; "Harp That Once Through Tara's Hall," Portland male quartet; song, "Killarney," Miss May Barrett; selected song by A. B. Cain; "Believe Me If All Those Endearments," Young Chorus; Irish ballad, Judge Frank Hennessy; "Star Spangled Banner," by the audience. J. R. O'Keefe will act as piano accompanist.

LIGHTS CIGAR; THROWS MATCH AWAY; FIRE!

Constable neat Andy Weinberger became a near firebug yesterday afternoon, but quickly distinguished himself by putting out the fire he had unwittingly started. It all happened at the courthouse, in the office of the clerks of the circuit court.

Weinberger lit a cigar while talking with Deputy County Clerk Henry Bush. He tossed the match on the floor, falling to notice that while still aflame it burned beneath the bottom drawer of the clerk's desk.

"What kind of rope are you smoking?" asked Bush, as the smoke from burning waste paper reached his nostrils. Weinberger tried to make out it was the odor of a 25 cent cigar. Bush began to look around the desk, smoke curling from beneath the desk. Weinberger rushed for a pail of water and the blaze was soon out. No damage was done, but in a few moments more it would have endangered important papers with which the clerk's desk is laden.

two the "alliance" would win hands down. And if the "alliance" has the Mohammedan world as its ally, its center's situation would indeed be desperate.

So if Germany should decide that war between the two great European groups—the "entente" and the "alliance"—is inevitable, as most people think it is, it would not be surprising for the Kaiser to determine to precipitate it at once, with England and France unprepared for hostilities and the certainty of valuable assistance for Germany from Morocco, Tunis, Egypt, the Caucasus, Persia and India.

Should this happen, the British empire might tumble to pieces in three months. As matters stand, diplomats are beginning to reach the conclusion that the only safe course for England, France and Russia is to conciliate the Mohammedan world and let the Pan-Islamic have what they want. A strong party is growing up in England in favor of the immediate evacuation of Egypt and of an agreement by which Morocco, Tunis and Persia will be left immune from aggression from any of the great powers. Furthermore, there is a strong sentiment in high political circles that something must be done to convince the Turks that the Kaiser is not their only Christian friend.

In short, the "entente" is beginning to realize that it has carried the policy of "grab" so far that it is itself in imminent danger.

When the Moslem movement started no one paid much attention to it, but its growth has finally brought about one of the most critical situations that Europe has ever had to face. Despite their comparative weakness, it looks as if the Pan-Islamic will have accomplished, within the next few months, what they have for 30 years been seeking.

DEBUKE TO TAFT
AND T. R., NOT TO BE MISSONS ROED

Ohio Mixed President's Medicine and New York Refused Issues Chosen by Roosevelt; Democratic Prospects.

By John E. Lathrop.
Washington, Nov. 19.—The national capital city awoke this morning after election with a distinct realization that the people of the country had arisen in their wrath to rebuke those who have created a regime of political corruption in the nation, the unjust tariff law and opposition to popular government movements, although in some places local issues prevented the clear outworking of the verdict. The deplorable results produced in the election of men who represented the very interests against which the nation designed to declare a rebuke. But the elections of November 8 are regarded as significant of an intention on the part of the people generally to cleanse the Augean stables of politics, and insist upon a higher level of political endeavor.

Manifold Upon the Democrats.
The disposition on the part of many here is to regard the November 8 results as negative rather than positive; that is, as a rebuke to the Republicans rather than a positive endorsement of the Democrats. And now that the Democrats have won the majority of the next house, it is expected that the Democratic members thereof will prove their inability to get together upon a policy of progressive legislation commensurate with the spirit of the people. That the Democratic house will split into quarrelling factions, is the almost universal belief here. Already evidences appear of this in the speculation as to whether or not Champ Clark of Missouri will be elected speaker.

Big Interests Scheme to Control.
Clark is the minority leader in the house; in a clean man, of unsullied record, progressive tendencies, and by the logic of the situation would naturally be the Democratic selection for the speakership. Of course, he may be, but even during the night of election, the politicians are busy plotting to control the Democratic party for 1912.

Taft Rebutted, At All Events.
Taken by and large, however, the elections are absolutely known to be a repudiation of the Taft administration. The administration admitted that the election of Judson Harmon as governor of Ohio, Taft's home state, would be tantamount to a rebuke to Mr. Taft, and he sent Secretary Knox, Secretary Wilson, Secretary Nagel and Attorney General Wickensham into Ohio to tell the voters that if they elected Harmon they would thereby virtually declare themselves against Taft for reelection in 1912.

Where Roosevelt Was in Error.
The New York election is admitted to have been a victory of bad elements of politics over better elements. Tammany Hall, headed by Charles F. Murphy, wall street and the "old guard," effected the defeat of the progressive Roosevelt candidate. And this result is credited by the closest friends of Roosevelt largely to the latter's failure properly to sense the spirit which had developed during the year he was absent in Africa. When he returned he was importuned by some of his best friends, who had borne the brunt of the battle for Roosevelt policies, to come out broadly upon the issue of progressive legislation and the principle of popular government. It is absolutely known that he failed to do this, that he changed the dominant issue, tried to change it, to corruption, and thereby lost the drawing power of the direct primary which Hughes had generated. His platform plank adopted at Saratoga, weakly mentioned the direct primary, and then the Democrats, led by Roosevelt, adopted one that declared warmly for statewide primaries.

It was remarkable, indeed, that a politician of such astuteness should have permitted Tammany Hall, which defeats the direct primary plan to steal that issue from him. Roosevelt, too, refused to make a fight for the proper declaration on the tariff. The tariff was against the Payne-Aldrich-Taft act bill. Schoolboys could see it. Yet Colonel Roosevelt could not see it.

Known as Eastern Standstoppers.
Leaders in Massachusetts, Goodwin in Connecticut, and Lewis in New Jersey likewise failed to understand that the people were in revolt against the tariff bill. And Roosevelt made the cardinal mistake of indulging every standstoper of them all, in the east, at the same time indulging before the primaries every progressive in the west, excepting La Follette, into whose state he did not go until after the primaries had demonstrated that the senator had won his own victory without help from Oyster Bay.

It is known that many friends of Roosevelt believe that Roosevelt's defeat in New York state will be beneficial in the long run; that it will open his eyes to some things not clear to him when he returned from Africa. They look for him to wait a short time and then advance to really progressive ground. They predict, too, that if he does not do that thing, his leadership will have gone from him completely, and another will arise to take away the baton of authority which he so long has wielded before the American people.

Now a Berry Packing Machine.
Picking berries by machine is a development of mechanical ingenuity that would seem to hold out hope of ultimate emancipation of the farmer from the necessity of dependence upon hired labor. From the principal cranberry growing districts of New Jersey come reports of more satisfactory results than ever from cranberry-picking machines—acquiring devices that made short work of the harvesting. Some of the operators can make the machines pick the loose berries off the ground and able to gather the crops without the slightest injury to the berries. This proficiency, however, comes only after years of experience. The machines are stopped under the berries and by an upward tipping motion, called raking, are drawn away from the vines, and the berries roll back into scoops in perfect condition. Of course the firm, round, ripe cranberry, easily detached, presents a simpler problem for the inventor of a mechanical picking machine than would various other descriptions of small fruit. But who shall set a limit to the ingenuity of inventors?
