

BODY OF TOLSTOY HOME FOR BURIAL; NO CHURCH RITES

Noble and Peasant From Afar Flock to Honor Apostle of Peace; Church Edict Stands—Quarrel Over Writings.

YANAKOVA, Russia, Nov. 21.—With pomp and ceremony, the body of Count Leo Tolstoy, who died early Sunday morning, was brought home today for burial tomorrow at the foot of Poverty Oak where his peasants have all congregated awaiting the last service.

No church ceremony will be permitted. The high officials of the Greek church in Russia prepared to extend absolution to Tolstoy before his death but it is said the count was induced by anti-church advisors to reject the proffer and died excommunicate.

In view of this troops will attend the civil obsequies. The military will cordon the costly caisson in which the remains of the illustrious dead will be viewed by thousands, ostensibly as a mark of respect to the deceased but in reality to preserve order should the peasantry become indignant over the failure of the church to rescind the edict of excommunication, after death. It is not likely that the church will do this as Abbot Varsofonius waited until Tolstoy's death in the hope that before the end the count would seek reconciliation with the church. The church then decided, it is believed, not to act after the body was removed to Poverty Oak the Countess Tolstoy sat beside it, kissing repeatedly the brow of the great Russian, and wailing, "The light of the world has gone out." She swooned when informed that no requiem mass would be sung.

Hundreds of people came today among them being nobles and peasants from distant parts of the czar's domain.

The eyes of Tolstoy had hardly closed before a wrangle over the ownership of his literary works began. Already there is talk of legal complications between Mitchelloff, Tolstoy's representative in Great Britain, and the family regarding possession of the writer's manuscripts, including an unpublished novel, Tichereff, an assistant disciple of Tolstoy holds the manuscripts which the count bound him on oath to give to the world. In 1885 Tolstoy renounced all property rights in the copyrights, his lands and money. He wished the books to be given to the people of all lands without profit to himself. His family objected, declaring that the plan would only pauperize the count and enrich the publishing houses that handled the books. The quarrel over Tolstoy's act is said to have culminated in his determination to leave home and take the journey which terminated in his untimely demise.

LEBANON PAPER MILLS RESUME WORK TODAY

Lebanon, Or., Nov. 21.—The paper mills at this place started their mills at full capacity this morning after a shut down of nearly four months, on account of some trouble with the land owners north of the mill on account of the waste from the mill running through their land. It looked at one time as if Lebanon might lose this mill on account of this trouble. It is said that four other cities had made bids for the mills and one city had offered the company a bonus of $50,000 and a free site and to pay all the freight bill to the new location. This mill has a monthly pay roll of about $7000 for labor and wood alone and through straw hauling season it is more than double that amount, which means much to a city the size of Lebanon.

WALLOWA SAWMILLS CLOSE FOR SEASON

Wallowa, Or., Nov. 21.—The Bear Creek Lumber company closed its mill Friday and will not saw again till spring. The Nibley-Mimsaw mill closed down last week. Both companies will operate their planers during the winter sufficiently to supply the demand for finished lumber. The Bear Creek company will make extensive im-

IMPROVEMENTS TO THE POND AND BOTH COMPANIES WILL PUT IN A LARGE SUPPLY OF LOGS THIS WINTER THAT WILL INSURE AN UNINTERRUPTED RUN NEXT SUMMER.

County dairy commissioners for Oregon Paul V. Morris and J. C. Shrock held a farmers' meeting in the basement of the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon. While the attendance was small, those who were present received some very valuable instructions on improving lands, getting better seed and the most effective care for dairy stock. The commissioners think this valley especially adapted to dairying and advocated the establishment of silos as a better milk-producing feed method and compared the records of various herds of cows as to their value as dairy cows.

Couch & McDonald, the real estate dealers, have sold the new store building now occupied by the Wallows building to F. A. Galloway, the proprietor. This gives Mr. Galloway the finest permanent location in the city and will enable him to improve his store in a manner not possible in a rented building.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED AT EUGENE

Eugene, Or., Nov. 21.—An association having for its object the development of the higher municipal life of the city of Eugene has just been organized under the name of the Eugene Municipal League. The purposes of the organization are four-fold. First, to investigate fully the conditions pertaining to all phases of the life of this community; second, to report its findings to the people; third, to coordinate the different agencies in the civic betterment of the city; and fourth, to effect such improvement in common welfare as seems feasible.

The membership of the league already numbers about fifty men of the city and it is expected that this number will be materially increased within the next few months. Membership in the organization is open to all men who would add to the higher municipal life of the city.

The work of the league is to be carried on through commissions, of which there are ten in number as follows: Public utilities, municipal organizations, finance and accounting, sanitation and public health, streets, parks, playgrounds and plans for the future city, recreation and moral welfare, education, schools and libraries, public order and safety, charities and corrections, and civic cooperation.

The officers of the league are as follows: president, Professor F. G. Young; vice-president, Rev. W. B. Pinkerton; secretary-treasurer, H. E. Holquist. These officers, together with Dr. F. W. Comings and Douglas Campbell, constitute the executive committee.

MARRIED 40 YEARS, AGED PAIR DIVORCED

Dayton, Wash., Nov. 21.—Though both have passed the three score mark, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Helmick were divorced here today by order of Judge C. F. Miller after nearly 40 years of married life. The grounds on which Helmick was given a decree were insanity and intemperance, the complaint bearing that Mrs. Helmick has been insane for several years. Several children have arrived at maturity. Because his wife stole $25 worth of clothes from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller of Walla Walla while she was a guest there, William Groom was today divorced from Ruby Groom. Groom says the Millers presented him with a bill for $25 and threatened suit to recover stolen property.

OLDEST EDITOR IS GUEST OF HONOR

John Miller Murphy Toasted and Dined by Loyal Washingtonians at Olympia.

Olympia, Wash., Nov. 21.—The celebration here Saturday night of the golden anniversary of the Washington Standard, founded, owned and edited by John Miller Murphy, himself the guest of honor at the banquet spread by the Washington Press association, the State Historical society and the state Historical society, occupied an individual and original place in the annals of American journalism and in the history of this country.

Never before has a case similar to this, in which the editor of a newspaper, founded, owned and edited by himself without missing a single issue off the press and in the same building during a period of 50 years, been recorded.

The felicitous occasion, attended by the chief executive of the state, who was the toastmaster, and notable citizens from this and other states, was of notable importance to the state of Washington. The banquet was spread in the Y. M. C. A. building, and 300 guests were seated at 8 p. m. Governor M. E. Hay was the toastmaster, and as such was in his happiest vein. The second guest of honor was Mrs. Mable H. Elder, of Tacoma, who is hale and hearty in body and spirit after having entered her 97th year. Her family was one of the earliest pioneers in the state, and in her girlhood she was one of the society belles of Olympia.

Her acquaintance with Editor Murphy extends back over the 50 years to the time he came to Olympia, and it was she who mailed a copy of the Washington Standard, Vol. 1, No. 1, to relatives in Boston, Mass., the paper having to go around the Horn in its dispatch to Boston. Many were the letters of congratulation received by Editor Murphy on the golden anniversary of his newspaper and his unbroken labor thereon. Among the felicitations received in the written messages read tonight were those from Honorable William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska, Colonel George W. Peck of Milwaukee, James P. Baumgartner of Santa Ana, Cal., president of the National Editorial association; Will H. Mayes of Brownwood, Texas, and all other past presidents of that association, and from others numbering upward of 50 in all. During the toasts Editor Murphy was presented with resolutions adopted by the Washington State Press association in annual convention at Wenatchee, September 24, 1910, printed and enclosed in a gilt frame.

Forest Grove Couple Wed.

Forest Grove, Or., Nov. 21.—A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in this city Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. McGreer, when their daughter, Miss Adelle M. Taylor, was united to Louis C. Dickson, the ceremony being performed by Rev. E. V. Silvers, pastor of the Christian church, in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride was charmingly gowned in white, and carried a bouquet of carnations. The parlor of the home was decorated with native flowers and ferns. The guests were served with a wedding dinner after the ceremony. Mrs. Dickson is a native of Antelope, Or., where she formerly taught school, and where she is highly esteemed. Mr. Dickson is a well-to-do young ranchman of Antelope, where he and his bride will make their home.
