O. R. & N. TO LOSE IDENTITY THROUGH MERGER OF ROADS

(Continued From Page One.) needed with the railroad, "and it is but right, for while the Harriman estate is still heavily interested, Judge Lovett is at the head. It is he who steers the course of the ship and guides its destinies." Of course Judge Lovett is not as heavily interested financially as was Mr. Harriman, and perhaps he never will be, but nevertheless we recognize that he is the big chief, and that it is but right for us to call them the Lovett lines when the matter comes up in an official way. And gradually the general public will fall in line.
