

PLAN EXHIBITION OF OREGON APPLE PRODUCTS IN EAST

 row night. This is to give the people who have been kept by work from the show during the week a chance to see the splendid exhibit of horticultural wealth before it is closed.
 Washington county made an unenvied exhibition of generosity today. Most of the people who came to the apple show admire the coloring, the sheen, the perfection, the beauty of the exhibits. Their olfactory organs are tantalized by the delicious aroma of the apples, but to satisfy the taste of the hunger there was nothing. Consequently there was general admiration when William F. Ritt of Washington county, who arranged the exhibit of that county for the Hillsboro Board of Trade and the fruit growers, produced 25 boxes of perfect apples for the school children. This afternoon the school children, some 25 more boxes if needed.
 The Washington county exhibit won the first prize, a silk banner, for having the most artistic exhibit. Mr. Ritt said he was anxious to foster the idea of artistic exhibits, also the free distribution of apples, and that Washington county's contribution to the show would be bigger next year than this.

Defends Cold Storage.
 A. R. Stubbins of the department of agriculture, defended before the society this morning the cold storage of fruits. He admitted that the charge that it offered opportunity to "corrupt" the market was true in part, but added that the best reason for marketing and the increased territory available for marketing fruit by means of cold storage more than offset the embarrassment caused by possible "corruption."

A. E. LaFollette of Salem talked about the big opportunities for peach growing in the Willamette valley. He said in answer to statements that peaches cannot be profitably grown in the valley, that 20,000 boxes were produced last year in a radius of three miles from his home.

The best things, the care, attention and forethought that are essential to the successful growing of apples were discussed by E. L. Smith of Hood River in his address upon "Unseen Things in Horticulture."

Professor W. H. Sweet, inventor of the "refrigerator system" of preserving fruit, told how he had worked out the plan.

Professor H. S. Jackson warned the society yesterday afternoon not to buy trees from the nurseries unless they are known to be free from crown-gall, hairy root, scab and other infectious diseases of apple trees.

Nox Profer In Sin.
 W. K. Newell, president of the Oregon horticultural board, said yesterday that the Oregon apple box in its present size and the system of packing used was entirely satisfactory.

President Homer C. Atwell today denied that he desired to have the society vote him a salary for the work he is doing. This, he thought, was intimated in a statement made before the society by the secretary, Mr. Atwell.

"I wish to correct any impression that may have been raised by the remarks of the secretary in his annual report, that the president of this society expects or wishes any remuneration for his services. I will neither solicit nor accept any salary for the position. I would accept such a compensation if treated on a par with the president of the national society. The pie contest will end tonight. Big pies and little pies, fat pies and thin pies have been entered. The competition for the first prize of $50 and for the second and third prizes of a barrel of flour each, is very keen. The prize winner will be announced at the apple show at about 8 o'clock, the prize winning pie will be sold to the highest bidder, and with the other entries the Portland Press club will be treated to a picnic dinner. Mrs. I. E. Clark of Portland, who will pass judgment upon the exhibits, has also made a very handsome display of the many toothsome dishes that can be prepared from apples.

Some Prizes Awarded.
 Professor Van Deman succeeded in finishing a part of the judging of the exhibits late last night. Hood River was the winner in nearly all the important prizes. The Dufur exhibit, the largest in the show, consisting of 200 boxes displayed and 200 held in reserve, was ruled out because of faulty packing, although the quality of some of the boxes and the energy displayed in making the exhibit was particularly commended. The Mosler exhibit was ruled out from the awards by Professor Van Deman on the ground that the apples, 54 to the box, were too big. A special diploma was granted. The awards by whom received and by whom made, are as follows:

 The Woman's Trade Union League of New York has formed a committee which will endeavor to organize all of the 30,000 working girls in greater New York. With this end in view, the city is to be divided into districts, each to be in charge of one of the members of the committee.
