HOTEL PORTLAND WILL BE ALTERED

Work on Improvements Will Probably Begin Soon After January 1.

An extensive program of improvements to be made to the Hotel Portland has been outlined by the hotel management and it is expected that at the meeting of the directors of the hotel company to be held December 15 the action of the management will be formally ratified and arrangements made to proceed with a part of the work.

So far as developed the plans contemplate altering the east half of the Morrison street front into four or five small store rooms, instead of the two large rooms now occupied as a drug store and a barber shop. It is understood that the Nau pharmacy is to take the corner room of the Selling building at Seventh and Alder.

No definite decision has been made by the owners of the hotel as to the projected enlargement of the building, but it is regarded as practically settled that the enlargement will take the form of a 12 or 14 story addition occupying 50 by 50 feet in the Sixth street court. This is the only feasible method of enlarging the big hotelery that the architects have been able to work out, and it seems to be either that or the destruction of the entire building and the erection in its place of a modern full block building with an interior court.

PORTLAND NEEDS CONVENTION HALL

City Loses Large Meeting Because Cannot Accommodate Delegates.

The American Electric Railway association has just written the convention bureau of the Portland Commercial club expressing regret that the lack of a proper convention hall makes it impossible for Portland to invite the association for its next meeting to be held in this city.

H. C. Donecker, the secretary of the association, wrote some time since, asking what accommodations could be offered the association in the way of hotel accommodations, an exhibit hall and exhibit space outside the hall for the parking of cars and other exhibits.

When the requirements were carefully examined it became evident that it was impossible to entertain the convention in Portland. R. W. Raymond, the manager of the bureau, wrote Mr. Donecker accordingly, but assured him that the probabilities were that the people of Portland would at no very distant date erect a convention hall or auditorium, where space would be provided in conjunction ample for the exhibits which are usually made in connection with the annual convention of the American Electric Railway association.

Attractive design used in stamp campaign.

"What was done with the proceeds of last year's sale of Red Cross seals is a question frequently asked in connection with this year's campaign for sales in order that $15,000 may be secured to carry on the work. The question is answered in a bulletin issued yesterday by the Visiting Nurse association and it outlines not only the way in which money was received and spent, but demonstrates how comprehensive and important the work has become. The bulletin reads:

How the money was spent:

Gross receipts from sale of stamps and postals $10,084.89

Expenses of campaign $7.50

Portland Open Air Sanitarium $4,895.40

Milk for home $402.50

Eggs for home $244.65

Fruit, meat, etc. $286.87

Pods, bedding, tents

Alleged Forger Taken to Salem.

Salem, Or., Dec. 3.—Moody A. Rogers, wanted in this city for obtaining money under false pretenses and who was apprehended in Portland this morning, was brought to Salem by Deputy Sheriff Wilhelm Esch of this county this evening and lodged in the county jail here.

Rogers is charged with having passed a check for $10 to J. A. Cooper, a local merchant, last September, when he had no funds in the bank to cover the amount of the draft.

Convention Good "A.A."

In speaking of the matter, Mr. Raymond said:

"It seems too bad to have to pass up any conventions that we might secure, and yet we are face to face with the problem of securing ample space for two of the conventions that are already booked for this city for next summer. Portland cannot take too speedy action in this matter of securing accommodations for all the conventions.

"I few days ago I was talking with one of the oldest advertising experts of America, and he said to me, 'There is nothing to be compared with conventions to advertise your city. By all means get them, and as many of them as you possibly can. In my estimation your work in that direction is far more important than the securing of factories for the city, for if you can only bring the men of the east to see what Portland has to offer they will come themselves of their own volition, with their capital and with their industries, and the city is bound to grow."

would attract delegates.

Matthew McCurrie, the secretary of the State Humane association of California, has just written the bureau on behalf of Mr. Partridge, the president of the American Humane association, to say that the convention to be held in the city of San Francisco next September or October will bring a large number of delegates from the east, and that the indications seem to be that the eastern delegates will assemble in Chicago and come out from there in private cars. Continuing, he says: "I am sure they would be pleased to stop over in Portland, should they choose the northern route. I would suggest that you write President Stillman, 237 State street, Albany, N. Y., who will have charge of the convention. We feel sure that they will have a good impression of the people of the west and we would be pleased to have the Commercial club of Portland give them the first handshakes of western hospitality and we will do everything we can to have the itinerary include the city of Portland."

Manager Raymond says that every effort will be made to secure the routing of all these private cars as far as possible through Portland. He is securing the most cordial cooperation of all the officers and executives of the American Humane association in this work, and has already received assurances from President Stillman of his hearty cooperation in this matter.

Two Tickets at Kalama. (Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Kalama, Wash., Dec. 3.—At a caucus of the Independent party, newly organized in this city, J. E. Stone was nominated for mayor, John Taylor and J. S. Chastinger for councilman for two years. Mr. Stone is at present prosecuting attorney of Cowlitz county, his term expiring January 1. This will make two tickets in the field to choose from at the general election, December 6—the Nonpartisan and the Independent.
