

STRIKE QUESTION IS PARAMOUNT IN FRANCE JUST NOW

Briand Persists in Abolishing Right to Strike; Opponents Declare However That to Strike is a Fact Not a Right.

Paris, Dec. 20.—The biggest question in France today is: Shall French labor be permitted the privilege to strike?

The 1911 budget, to which an additional 119,428,397 francs will have to be tacked on to this year's figures, in order to reach the required total of $4,304,510,829 francs, important as it is, takes second place to the labor question.

The governmental majority even, depends upon it, and it alone. For Prime Minister Briand has said:

"Unless the government will vote me the means adequately to cope with such movements as the recent railway strike, I shall resign my office."

The situation in the chamber of deputies, because of this labor agitation, is tremendously strange. Parties are split. In the days of Combes, Clemenceau and other prime ministers, the government ruled by "blots" vote.

At any critical moment, could be sure of the "bloc" voting its way. Not so now. Far from it.

Deputies Divided. After the resignation of the first Briand ministry and the vote was taken on the platform of the second Briand cabinet, not one party voted its entire strength for the government.

There are those who say that a breach has occurred between Briand and the government, and that Briand, who is an extremely strong man, is merely awaiting the psychological second to tumble Briand in the dust.

The political, if not personal split, between Briand and the government, came about because of Briand's determination to squish the privilege of striking from railway employes and other public service labor.

Briand claims that it is a question of voting, not of principle, as will prevent the recurrence of such strikes as that recently undergone by France, or voting against the nation itself, whose very existence, he says, is at stake.

Millerand says to take away the "right to strike" from public service employes, is almost the same as a strike is not a right, but a fact. There can be no idea, therefore, of depriving any individual of the "right."

What is the use of telling a set of men that they have no right to do a thing, when there is no way of punishing them in case they do it? A million men could not be put in jail, yet a million men could strike, illegal thought it should be, if they wanted to.

Arbitration courts and conciliation committees are what Millerand stood for and still stands for. What he wished to do was to prevent strikes, more than to provide measures for the punishment of men who actually were on strike.

Briand's policy is to allow trade unionism in a general way, though he is said to be opposed to the National Federation of Labor and determined, possibly, to dissolve entirely. He is in favor of plumbers, tinners, carpenters, printers and so on, unionizing themselves, if they care to, but opposes strike organizations among railwaymen, shipyard laborers, telegraph and telephone operators, postmen, mail-carriers, etc., and the "right" to strike among them.

Legislation to this effect will probably pass into law during this session of the chamber of deputies, if the Briand ministry remains in power. It will probably provide for arbitration in case of trouble between men and employes, but as was actually the case recently to "call to colors" public service employes who declare a strike, forcing them as soldiers, to resume their duties, without this call being "general," such as is now the case.

There is much personal bitterness in "WHY BE SO THIN?"

Thinness is Embarrassing, Unhealthy and Not Natural—Formula Now Used Which Adds From One to Three Pounds a Week.

Every one ought to have some extra flesh on the bony structure of the body, both for the sake of health and self-esteem.

Most thin people are sensitive to the harsh, unfeeling criticisms which are constantly being hurled at them by the more fortunate well-fleshed persons.

Every one pities a thin, bony horse, but horses don't know it—while thin people are both pitted and ridiculed. It hurts not to be so, but it is not.

A well rounded figure, be it man or woman, excites admiration; not only for the figure but for the bright eyes, pink cheeks, red lips and vigorous carriage which accompany a well-nourished body.

Strength, health, beauty and sound flesh abound if the blood and nerves get enough nourishment out of the food eaten.

This prescription aids nature: helps absorption, digestion and assimilation; helps distribute the blood and nerve elements which make sound flesh. Get the ingredients and make it at home and save your time and pain in weight.

In a half pint bottle, obtain three ounces of essence of pepton, three ounces of essence of chondrin. Then add one ounce compound essence cod-liver oil and let stand two hours; then add one ounce tincture radium compound (not carboradon). Shake well and take a tea-spoonful before meals and one after meals. Also drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Weight yourself before beginning.

EXPRESS RATES TO BE INVESTIGATED

Commission Will Also Go Into Subject of Treatment of Patrons.

Express companies will be investigated by the Interstate Commerce commission for the purpose of ascertaining the reasonableness of rates and the tariffs.

The proposed investigation comes as a result of a petition presented to the commission by the Merchants' association of New York after having enlisted the support of a large number of other commercial organizations in the United States, among them the Portland Chamber of Commerce. All are equally interested in the investigation to cover the entire United States.

It is held that express company tariffs are very little understood by the average patron and that in many instances rates are very inconsistent.

It is held that while the large bulk of express business consists in transporting goods of certain classes for industrial and commercial concerns, it comes almost as close to the daily interests of the people in its minor aspects as the mail service of the government, and it is there that the lack of consideration is most felt.

It is further pointed out that business concerns that have large dealings with express companies may get some relief from exaction and some redress from complaints of bad service or injury or loss to the property, but that the casual customer is helpless. He has to pay the charges, and have his goods delivered or collected at the convenience of the company.

"The express companies have a peculiar way of fixing their tariffs," said W. S. Smallwood, secretary of the chamber's transportation committee.

"In that they have not tariffed like the railroads to given points, but to entire districts, the boundaries of which are very strangely defined."

Precisely how far the powers of the Interstate Commerce commission are adequate to the occasion is not known. It is said that so far as the railroads are concerned, it matters not what tariffs are charged by the express companies since they do not enter into competition with them.

That the express companies are making enormous profits is also the contention, instances being cited where an annual dividend of 300 per cent has been declared.

The chamber, Briand is himself frequently the object of rabid attacks of this sort. It is well known that he carries a rather heavy load in the person of M. Lafferre, minister of labor, whom almost all the political divisions resent.

He is said to have been responsible for the "army lads" which followed the Dreyfus affair, when it is charged, every officer of importance had recorded for or against him: "He is a good Catholic; he goes often to church; he is a Jew; he seldom attends church; he is this, or that; he is a Freemason, etc." according as the case for or against him was.

He had "good reports" rose; others were driven from the army; some stood still and were never advanced. Anyway Lafferre is resented by the Royalists, Catholics, army people and many others, and is censured in many quarters for naming him.

"Why this open slap at the army," a deputy shouted to Briand, "the army which you rely upon and call upon so readily when the nation is menaced?"

As an anti-labor administration, the excitement is bound to be intense throughout the country for some time. Stormy times are ahead in the legislature, as I have predicted before, now that the church, labor, socialists, and part of most of the other parties have joined hands, so to speak, toward what they term their foe.

FIGHT TO GET HOTEL GOING INTO COURT

Attorneys representing the Norman interest in the Portland hotel are preparing the legal papers necessary to bringing suit against the hotel company to compel the issuance of certificates for the shares of stock which have never been paid for, and which were recently acquired by the Normans from London subscribers.

Whether the suit to be filed will take the form of a mandamus to compel the president and secretary of the corporation to issue the shares, or in the nature of a straight suit to determine the validity of the newly acquired holdings of the Normans has not been determined, but it is known that some sort of legal action will be begun before the first of the year.

In any event, it will probably be a year before there is a change in the management of the hotel, as the question will be carried up to the supreme court on appeal no matter which side wins in the lower court.

MOTHER OF LUCKY BALDWIN CROSS EXAMINED

Consort of Lucky Baldwin is Further Questioned as Witness in Will Contest.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Los Angeles, Dec. 20.—When Beatrice Anita Turnbull's suit to break the will of the late E. J. "Lucky" Baldwin was resumed today in Judge Rivett's court the plaintiff's mother, Mrs. Lillian Ashley Turnbull of Boston, was sent back on the witness stand to submit to further cross examination.

Mrs. Turnbull was nervous when she took her seat. She had been given some idea of what to expect during four hours of cross-examination by Attorney Gavin McNab, for the defense, when she was first called last Thursday.

McNab at once returned to the attack. With lightning rapidity he questioned the witness regarding her coming to California, her relations with Baldwin, her so-called honeymoon at the Hotel Coronado, near San Diego, and again brought in the name of Colonel Pope of Boston, to whose friendship for Mrs. Turnbull he had referred Thursday.

The suit alleging seduction, which Mrs. Turnbull brought against Baldwin in San Francisco near two decades ago, again was referred to by the attorneys for the defense. Repeatedly during the witness' recital of that suit McNab interrupted with sudden questions relating to the story that had been elaborated upon by the witness when she appeared on the stand the first time. It is not believed the cross examination will be completed today.

NOBODY WATCHING SMUGGLING RING

Inquiry at Vancouver, B. C., Shows Chinese Stowaways Come in Droves.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 20.—With the appearance on the stand this morning of J. M. Howell, controller of customs, former controller of Chinese immigration, the inquiry into the alleged frauds in connection with Chinese immigration took a turn bordering on the sensational. Besides dealing with the question of the passports and the exemptions from head tax, the inquiry was applied to the watch system of the customs service so far as it related to the smuggling in of Chinese and it revealed a service which apparently had totally failed to do its duty and which had probably permitted the admission into Canada of a very considerable number of Chinese stowaways.

Crown counsel suggested that as many as 23 stowaways got away from the Kumerik when she was in port here, being part of a contingent of anywhere from 50 to 100 who were concealed in the hold and who were afterwards discovered at Port Townsend.

THE MONODIET

about which we hear so much, does not mean living on one food exclusively, but on foods that harmonize.

Certain elements of nutrition are essential to health, but all these elements cannot be obtained from any one food—hence the necessity of a variety.

Deficiency of one or more of these elements, such as iron, for instance, in the blood, will cause anemia, rundown condition and sleeplessness.

If you are one of the unfortunate who have drifted into this state, change your diet, eat foods that are rich in the mineral elements of nutrition, and take "Tino," our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, which contains no oil and supplies iron to the blood in the most easily assimilated form.

Vinol creates an appetite, aids digestion, makes pure, healthy blood. In this natural manner it builds up the run-down, weak and debilitated. If you don't find this to be a fact we will return your money if you will try a bottle. Woodard, Clarke & Co., druggists, Portland, Or.

RYAN APPOINTED THEATRE MANAGER

Popular Young Theatrical Man Named to Take Charge of the Grand.

Charles N. Ryan.

Charles N. Ryan was today appointed manager of the Grand theatre, on the Sullivan & Considine circuit of the northwest, to succeed James O'Brien.

In reality Mr. Ryan succeeds Frank Corlinberry, the present manager for the Orpheum in this city. Mr. Corlinberry was the manager of the Grand for more than a year, but went to the Orpheum early in December. At that time it was hoped that Mr. Ryan, who for 18 months has been assistant manager for the Orpheum, would be promoted to the Grand. That the reward is now Ryan's was this afternoon the cause of his receiving many congratulations.

Mr. Ryan is one of the popular young theatrical men of Oregon. His greatest hit was the management of the stage and selection of numbers for the press club show of last night.

O'Brien will manage the Sullivan & Considine Majestic theatre in Seattle.

INJURED BY CROSSING PLANK; SUES COMPANY

Suit was started today in the circuit court by Christian Pauley against the Oregon Hazzam Paving company. Damages to the amount of $1600 are asked for an injury received while crossing Dawson street at Portsmouth avenue.

The plaintiff says he was attempting to cross the street, when a heavy plank was thrown against him. The plank had been placed there by the Paving company, while the street was being improved. It is charged in the complaint that the company has been negligent in improving the street, and had it torn up an unreasonable length of time. The plank was intended for a temporary walk, but was so placed as to be a menace to pedestrians, he says.
