

JOHN T. SULLIVAN OF SPOKANE SHOT; ECHO OF OLD FEUD

Former Police Chief Grievously Wounded by Would-Be Assassin; Chance to Recover; No Clue to Culprit.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Spokane, Wash., Jan. 6.—While sitting in the living room of his home, alone, last night, Captain and former Chief of Police John T. Sullivan was shot through the right lung by an assassin who fired through a window.

While in a serious condition, hospital physicians reported today that Sullivan had passed a good night and that his chance of recovery was fairly good. Sullivan was able to make a statement in which he declared he would recover. The shooting occurred at 8:45 o'clock last night. According to marks on a frost covered fence, the assassin stood by the fence when he fired. The blinds of the windows were up and the room brilliantly lighted. Cutting a clean hole in the pane, another in the lace curtain and a third in the chair back, the bullet passed through Sullivan's back and right lung, and then out, dropping upon the floor. The captain picked it up, called for help, and then telephoned to the police station.

No clue as to the identity of the man who did the shooting has been found. Neighbors heard a man running down the street immediately after the shot was heard, but that is all.

Several months ago Sullivan, while chief of police, was charged with incompetency, with favoritism toward certain police officers and with illegal handling of disreputable houses. He resigned as acting chief, keeping his former position of police captain. The city council found him guilty on the charges and ordered him suspended pending a grand jury investigation of the entire city administration.

List of Suspects.
In a statement last night Captain Sullivan charged that those who had made the fight to remove him as chief of police were responsible for the shooting, through publishing attacks upon his conduct of the police department while chief. The police are inclined to the theory, however, that the shooting was the act of some released convict or other party with whom Sullivan in his career had official relations. City detectives are on the lookout for a man named Hanley, who shot Sullivan in a personal encounter nearly 10 years ago. Hanley at the time was one of the most desperate men in the northwest. He swore that he would "get" Sullivan on his release. At the end of seven years the prison authorities wanted to parole Hanley but because of a protest entered by Sullivan he was made to stay there two years longer. Hanley is said to have been seen here within the past few days.

Spokane, Jan. 6.—At 10 a. m., today,

S. H. Elverum, an O. R. & N. special officer, who is believed to have held a grudge against Captain Sullivan of the local police force, was placed under arrest.

A special meeting of the city council has been called to offer a reward for the arrest of the assassin.

Chatters in Sleep

Julius Tannen.

Julius Tannen, the "human magpie," whose oral volleys have been provoking mirth at the Orpheum this week, has a page of life history that is almost unbelievable. It tells of that part of his career that was under the guidance of J. Ogden Armour, the multi-millionaire Chicago packer. Strange as it may seem just before taking up the existence of a vaudeville chatter-box, Tannen was secretary to the packer. That was eight years ago. When serving as private secretary to Mr. Armour, Tannen's ambition first struck the stage tangent. One night, on a dare, he gave imitations of actors at the Great Northern theatre. So great was his success that he quit Mr. Armour within a short time and took to the stage, doing monologue stunts.

Tannen talks like a rapid fire gun shoots—fast and furious. On and off the stage it is the same. His mouth works incessantly. His friends say that Tannen chatters in his sleep.

NEW INCINERATOR TOTALLY FAILS TO MEET GUARANTEE

First Eight Days of Official Test Show Plan Away Low in Capacity, Away High in Cost.

According to the detailed reports of Harry N. Napier, superintendent of the city garbage crematory, the incinerating plant built by the Public Works Construction company, has thus far utterly failed to meet requirements. The six months' official test began December 27 and Superintendent Napier has filed with the city health officer reports covering the first eight days of the test. These show that the plant has burned an average of but 85 tons a day, including all kinds of refuse, but, according to Superintendent Napier's reports, the contractors have refused to receive a certain class of refuse.

The reports show that the cost of incineration has been more than double that guaranteed by the contractors.

January 2, 100 tons of refuse were consumed at an average cost per ton of $1.01. The contractor's guarantee was 55 cents.

January 3, 72 tons were burned at an average cost of $1.55. The contractor's guaranteed cost was 55 cents per ton.

January 4, 77 tons were burned at an average cost of $1.46 per ton. The contractor's guaranteed cost was 55 cents.

In estimating the cost of incineration Superintendent Napier figured in the services of four men employed by the contractor but not on the city's payroll. The reports of the superintendent are made on specially prepared crematory test sheets. The results of the superintendent's observations are supposed to be filled in. But although the health board at its last meeting ordered payment of the second installment of the contract price of the incinerating plant, accepting the city engineer's statement that the plant is completed in all essential details, Superintendent Napier's written remarks show that this is not the case.

For instance, under the heading, "Water gauge readings—forced and natural draft"—appears the following: "Not installed for testing at these points."

Under the heading, "Inside temperature at base of stack," Superintendent Napier has written: "No means of testing at these points."

"Machine does not record," "lack of instruments, no record," and similar remarks appear under the various headings of the test sheet reports.

In view of these reports the question arises whether the plant is completed "in all essential details." Can a proper test be made without the installation of the instruments Superintendent Napier says are lacking?

Recently the huge chimney stack of the plant has developed six large cracks at the base. Engineer F. R. Smith of the contracting firm says these cracks are not serious. City Engineer Morris has made no official report of their existence.

PORTLAND RANKS FIFTH IN NATION'S BUILDING IN 1910

large cities to fifth, and is now out-ranked only by New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

New York shows an increase of 10.5 per cent; Chicago, 5.6; Detroit, 21.5; Minneapolis, 7.7. Among the larger cities Seattle, with a decrease of 26.8 per cent, shows the heaviest loss; St. Louis shows a falling off of 17.5; Philadelphia, 6.5; Pittsburg, Washington and Newark, N. J., all in the first 10 cities last year, are far down the line in 1910.

The following table shows the relative standing of the 10 leading cities in construction operations for 1909 and 1910:

	1910	1909
New York	$188,753,345	$170,001,093
Chicago	96,922,700	90,920,130
Philadelphia	37,868,665	42,692,350
Los Angeles	21,884,100	13,280,703
Portland	20,386,602	13,170,880
St. Louis	19,600,063	23,733,372
Detroit	17,515,945	14,301,450
Seattle	14,449,110	19,044,835

Kansas City	13,783,196	13,363,308

AS SUPPLY OF MEAT LESSENS, AMERICANS EAT LESS OF IT

"The American people are consuming less meat than in years past, and while the demand drops, so does the supply become less," said Joseph Kerr, traffic manager of the St. Joseph Stock Yards company, St. Joseph, Mo., today. Mr. Kerr is staying at the Hotel Oregon.

"If high meat prices continue," he continued, "the American people probably will eventually largely quit eating meat, for it is undoubtedly true that during the last two years of high prices, the demand has fallen off appallingly, but at the same time the supply is lessened because grazing land is becoming scarce and wages and other expenses make the stock raising business less profitable.

"Twenty years ago I ran sheep in Nevada. I have since estimated and found that it cost me about 60 cents to run a ewe for a year. Sheepmen of today will tell you that to run one head for a year costs them from $2.25 to $2.50."

JAPAN TO ASK FOR FREE IMMIGRATION

TO MEET IN INTEREST OF PACIFIC HIGHWAY

A meeting of citizens interested in the building of the Pacific highway in Oregon, has been called for 8 o'clock tonight in the Commercial club by John S. Beall, vice president of the State Automobile association for Multnomah county. In addition to prominent Portland men who have enthusiastically endorsed the project, vice presidents of the automobile association from each Willamette valley town that will be traversed by the Pacific highway are expected to be in attendance. The purpose expressed in calling the meeting is to organize an Oregon branch of the Pacific Highway association, then to formulate a plan of campaign for actual construction of the north and south highways. Similar branch organizations have been organized in British Columbia, Washington and California.
