A bill appropriating $12,500 for experimental work at the University of Idaho was introduced. Another bill introduced provides for the repeal of the law prohibiting children from participating in theatrical performances.

The senate passed the Kerns resolution, memorializing congress to establish the state's right to sections 16 and 36, known as state school indemnity lands, in forest reserves.

MALARKEY'S BILL MAY PROVOKE BIG FIGHT, BELIEVED

Provides for Extending Powers of Railroad Commission—East Siders Would Exempt Portland.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., Jan. 19.—Senator Malarkey's bill for a public service commission for the state, enlarging the powers of the state railroad commission, was introduced in the senate yesterday, and almost simultaneously there arrived from Portland a delegation from the east side push clubs with the announced intention of fighting it.

In this delegation are Ben Riesland, J. Wood Smith and Mr. Brant. They are advocates of the municipal public service commission for Portland, saying being instrumental in framing a bill to be submitted to the voters of the city next June by the initiative was this purpose in view.

The Portland committee would not oppose the Malarkey bill if it were amended to exempt the city of Portland from its terms. This Malarkey will oppose, contending that regulation by the city will fall far short of being effective as compared with the state wide plan. Many corporations needing regulation, he contends, extend into two or more counties of the state and cannot be adequately reached by the municipal plan.

The Malarkey bill extends the powers of the railroad commission to all public service corporations in the state, including telephone and telegraph lines, light and gas companies and street railways. It does not increase the membership of the commission or increase salaries.

One of the big fights of the session is likely to center around the Malarkey bill. The friends of the municipal commission plan say that President Joeselyn of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company is too friendly to the Malarkey bill. They are willing to let the state regulate all corporations dealing in public utilities outside of Portland, but contend that the principle of home rule should be applied to the city.

These rival ideas threaten to divide the friends of regulation and may imperil the passage of the bill advocated by Malarkey, should an alliance be made against him between those opposed to any plan of regulation and those favoring the municipal commission idea.

The bill, if adopted, would divide the district now composed of Josephine and Jackson counties, over which Judge Calkins presides. Judge Calkins resides in Jackson county. The bill provides the usual salary of $3000 for the new judge and $2000 for a new district attorney.

TEXAS GENTLEMAN ALLEGES FRAMEUP

Washington, Jan. 19.—Charges that a clique of the Democratic members of the next house have planned to control an organization caucus to be held here tonight are being circulated today among the Republicans.

Congressman Dies of Texas is named as the author of the charges and a letter purporting to have been written by him is being shown. It alleges that through secret trading a committee on committees is to be selected tonight, which will apportion the honors of the house according to its own views. The leaders of the movement, Dies is quoted as writing, will endorse Champ Clark for speaker, though the Texan says both Clark and Underwood, ranking member of the ways and means committee, had no part in the alleged plot.
