

HEIRLOOMS LOANED TO CITY MUSEUM OF PRICELESS VALUE

Famous Hartshorne-Robinson Collection Recently Exhibited in Metropolitan Museum in New York.

The famous Hartshorne-Robinson collection of family heirlooms, once the pride of the Metropolitan museum of New York city, has been secured for the municipal museum of Portland, by Curator C. F. Wiegand, and is now being installed at the city hall. The collection has been loaned for a period of 10 years by its present owner, Charles B. Howard, a descendant of the Robinson and Hartshorne families. Mr. Howard may make his home in Portland.

While on a visit here two months ago he became so favorably impressed with the city and its environs that he announced his intention of returning here after he has settled up some business affairs in California.

Copy of Bible.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the famed collection is a copy of the Martin Luther Bible printed in 1545. The copy was the fifteenth of the noted edition. It abounds with hand made wood-cuts of remarkable artistic beauty. Although the book is 366 years old the pictures and printing are undimmed by time and are as clear and distinct as when they first went to press.

Another interesting exhibit is a field telescope presented in revolutionary days by Baron Steuben to William H. Robinson. Steuben was at the time aide-de-camp to General Washington.

A massive silver set, comprising 80 pieces in all, fills one entire exhibit case. Some of the articles are nearly 500 years old. All of them were made by hand. A silver ladle with handle of ebony, made by Halsted in 1410, and a berry dish fashioned by the cunning hand of Louines in the same year are two of the valuable pieces of the set.

Rare kerchiefs of antique Irish linen, embroidered with hair, are objects of unusual admiration on the part of visitors to the city hall. The kerchiefs were made before the year 1700. On one of the pieces a full rigged ship in motion is depicted, the workmanship being marvelous. Human hair of black and brown shades was used in weaving this faultlessly limned marine picture.

Among other things seen in the collection is a hand-made dress, the skirt of which is of white broadcloth, the waist being of old rose silk, embroidered with blue flax blossoms. The dress was worn by Katherine Brinkerhoff on the occasion of her marriage to Jacob Faesch in 1778. Faesch was a celebrated iron maker, who manufactured cannon for the revolutionists.

Rings and watches of ancient make and mosaic brooch pins of exquisite finish more than 200 years old, are some of the many other unusual exhibits in the collection. The collection has been in the possession of its present owner for several years, having come to him by inheritance. He considers it priceless. Because of a difference of opinion between him and the officials of the Metropolitan museum he withdrew it from that institution. Curator Wiegand regards the collection as the chief attraction of the city museum.

PERSONAL

Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, is seriously ill at his home, 161 North Twenty-second street.

The condition of W. H. Corbett, who is suffering from pneumonia, was unchanged today. A change for the better was hoped for today, but physicians saw no improvement. Mr. Corbett's condition is not regarded as dangerous.

ATTRACTIVE WINDOW

Tour Portrait in Oil Absolutely Free at Kohler & Chase Piano Store.

A very generous offer is being made this week by the Kohler & Chase Co., 375 Washington street, who offer a valuable portrait in oil to anyone purchasing a piano or player piano.

The Nyses have been engaged to do this work for Kohler & Chase, and they are giving daily demonstrations of their high class work in oils, and also are carrying celebrities, events and prominent Portland citizens.

Purchasers can arrange for private sittings, and Kohler & Chase draw attention to the sample oil portrait displayed in their windows, which, as you will see, is of great value and merit.

A trip down town to see this most novel window will be repaid by the amusement and entertainment afforded.

ELBERT HUBBARD

"HIT" AT ORPHEUM

Philosopher and Wit Wins Applause; Bill Exceptionally Strong.

By A. L.

As no two bills are ever alike, so the new one at the Orpheum this week manifests marked characteristics of its own, with novelty and feature acts galore, making a strong combination for entertainment and amusement.

Of course, everyone waited with bated breath for Elbert Hubbard, but if memory fails not, "The Fra" is far more delightful when he is serious with bits of his keen wit thrown in, than when he is funny, with sprinklings of philosophy and seriousness. Mr. Hubbard adorns a few tales with a moral, tells some wholesome truths, gives some good advice, springs some big laughs and that is all—only it isn't all. One must hear him to realize his power and understand what it is that made the audience tumultuous in its applause. "Never have more of a good thing than you can use," says Fra Albertus, and forthwith spins a story and ends with the moral, "One horseshoe is good luck, but a load of horseshoes is junk" which is worthy of the "farmer with a literary attachment."

Pretty, and with a charming personality as additional assets, Miss Millman all but flies on her wire as she executes difficult and brilliant dance steps. She is assisted by a young woman of marked ability and a man who is not remarkable.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Allen return in their interesting and strong sketch, "The Phantom Sweetheart." The sketch was splendidly received. Mr. Allen is a clever actor and Mrs. Allen is pretty, but in striving for lightness she sacrifices sincerity.

The Empire comedy four are also back and continue to make more than good with their singing and the comedy which they put over. They were registered a hit.

A decidedly pleasing number comes to hand in Glen Ellison, "London's musical comedy favorite," who sings a number clever song in a finished baritone of unusual quality for vaudeville.

Walter Graham offers the "Manikin Music Hall," in which he impersonates comedians, past and present, winning generous applause.

The bill is opened by the Xerxes, who offer some new and startling features in posture work.

SENDING MAIL FROM QUARANTINED HOUSE A POSTAL LAW OFFENSE

The postal department announced today it would prosecute as a violator of the postal laws anyone sending mail from a house quarantined because of the presence of an infectious disease. It is claimed that numerous instances in the past week have been brought to the department's attention wherein letters have been mailed from houses under quarantine.

One of the postal regulations makes it an offense punishable by fine and imprisonment, to send matter through the mails from a house that is quarantined. It has been considered necessary to enforce this measure because of danger of spreading germs in letters, which is said to be fully as great as the danger of carrying germs in the clothes, the only reason for the quarantining of a house.

In one case called to the department's attention, after mail was returned by the carrier, it was claimed it was carried down town and dropped in the postoffice boxes, the senders hoping in that way to dodge the quarantine.

GRAVES EXPOSED BY WAVES OF SEA

Wind Piles Up Water on Coast of Vancouver Island Mountain High.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Victoria, B. C., Feb. 14.—The gale which raged along the entire coast until early today was one of the severest felt here for a number of years. The wind attained a velocity of 40 miles an hour, while gusts of a velocity of 60 miles were frequent. Despite the strength of the gale, however, the damage done along the waterfront in and adjacent to the city was not serious, except in the vicinity of the Ross Bay cemetery.

At Ross Bay, where the cemeteries of this city are located, a picture of desolation was presented. The seawall was washed away for about 200 yards and the bank had collapsed for a distance of from 12 to 15 feet at the highest point, exposing a number of graves. All day long waves beat an incessant roar upon the shores of the cemetery. In the old Chinese portion 17 graves were exposed and coffins washed out, but all bodies were removed last year to the new Chinese cemetery on Foul Bay, the coffins were empty.

All day yesterday the cemetery caretaker was busy digging up coffins which had become exposed and moving them. Among the coffins exposed were those in which smallpox victims had been buried.

Seattle, Feb. 14.—The north wing of the hotel at Moclips was wrecked by a heavy sea that swept away a portion of the seawall at the summer resort. Several summer cottages are also reported to have been carried out to sea.

REV. M. TALBOTT OWNS A DISLIKE FOR SLAVS

Rev. Russell Talbott, rector of St. David's Episcopal church, does not admire Slavonians as a class, or believe they are desirable citizens. This was his expression before Judge Gatens in the circuit court this morning, when being questioned as a juror, and he was dismissed. It was in the case of the state against John Dordig, who is on trial for robbing freight cars. Deputy District Attorney Collier asked the clergyman if he had any prejudices against the Slavonian people. The state accepted him as a juror, but the defense asked to have him dismissed, which the judge allowed. J. C. Walsh said he did not think he could give a Slavonian as square a deal as some other races. When asked his reason, Walsh said that he was struck over the head one time with an iron bar in the hands of a Slav, which had caused a prejudice in his mind ever since. He was accused.

Rain and Snow at Woodland.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Woodland, Wash., Feb. 14.—The past two days have been the stormiest of the season and the precipitation has been heavier than for any like period during the past winter. Rain fell in torrents all day Sunday and rain and snow fell continuously Monday, but no snow has remained on the ground. The hills north and east of town are covered with snow.
