IN SOCIETY

Announcement was made yesterday at a pretty tea by Mrs. George J. Beach of the engagement of her sister, Miss Priscilla Elliott, to Sigfrid Marmaduke Under. The artistically decorated with Oregon grape, pussy willows and jonquills. About 50 friends of Miss Benson called and as they entered were presented with monogrammed card bearing B. U. The table, presided over by Mrs. Oliver G. Walker and assisted by Sterling, carried a great platoon of jonquills and Oregon grape with streamers of smilax to the corners of the board. Yellow and green were used in all appointments of the tea. Miss Benson is the younger daughter of S. Benson and a sister of Mrs. George J. Beach. She is a Stanford graduate and not only a member of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority but also a prominent worker in the Pan Hellenic and other college organizations. Mr. Under, who has lived most of his life abroad, is also a Stanford graduate and a Phi Psi man. He is connected with Messrs. C. & C. Miss Benson is leaving this evening for Los Angeles to join her father and together they are planning a motor trip of some months through southern California.

Carlo B. Waters of New York, who has been the guest of William E. Moore for a returning in a few days to the east.

Miss Priscilla Elliott was hostess at a pretty Valentine tea last Wednesday when the guests were some of her schoolmates. A "tea test" was one of the diversions of the afternoon and at this Miss Nan Russell was the prize winner. Additional guests were Miss Lora Cumming, Miss Jean Morrison, Miss Charlotte Laidlaw, Miss Katherine Laidlaw, Miss Esther Tucker, Miss Elizabeth Jones, Miss Genevieve Halley, Miss Cassie Hiller and Miss Elizabeth Halley.

Mrs. Francis D. Chamberlain was a bridge hostess yesterday when she invited guests for 11 tables of the game. Mrs. T. W. B. London and Mrs. H. N. Burpee were at the table.

Mrs. Horace Fenton was hostess at the latest meeting of the Oregon Alumnae, Saturday. About 36 of the members were present and the meeting was presided over by president, Mrs. E. N. Blythe. The work of the association this year is making aprons for the Children's home on Corbett street. Mrs. Fenton's mother, Mrs. H. W. Goddard, poured. Daffodils decorated the table, and were used about the rooms.

Mrs. George F. Holman returned Saturday to her home in Salt Lake after visiting with her daughter, Mrs. T. W. B. London. Mrs. London, with her daughter, Miss Zulette, and small son, George Tampion London, expects to leave for her new home in Vancouver, B. C., March 1 or 3. Miss Winnifred London will remain in Portland until school is out at St. Helen's Hall.

Mrs. Leon H. Peters gave the first of her bridge afternoons yesterday, complimenting Mrs. Edward Lucas, her guest from Minneapolis. Oregon grape was used in profusion over the house with red carnations in the dining room and jonquills and smilax in the hall and living room. Bridge was played at eight tables, and the prizes fell to Mrs. George Kaddery, Mrs. Fred Nolting and Mrs. Cyril Maginnis. Mrs. Peters is having nine tables of bridge this afternoon.

Mrs. Henry Waldo Coe will be hostess tomorrow at the Psychology club reception given at her home on Twenty-fifth and Lovelock, from 8 to 9.

Mrs. George Hyland was also a card hostess of yesterday, when she asked guests to play 14 tables of five hands.

"For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

By Darra More.

A CYNIC once observed, "There are two kinds of women—those we love and those we marry." While this sentiment would seem to be a bit overdrawn, it contains its burden of truth. There are many, many kinds of women, and each apparently occupies its own particular niche in the masculine scheme of usefulness. Men gravitate from one class of woman to another, as he changes from his business suit to his riding clothes, and from riding clothes to his dinner coat.

Lenora belongs to the "jolly good fellow" class. Men buzz around her, her telephone calls and invitations to dine and drive are overwhelming. Her rooms are filled with American Beauties and chocolates. She is erratic, emotional, a hale fellow well met, and always ready to take another and higher fence. She is the toast over many a cafe table, and her name is on many a lip, but she isn't the kind people's sisters can talk to, and no man offers her his name.

I saw her in a down town cafe recently. There were milk, gin and beer and she was in the gay and heavy with smoke. Lenora's eyes gleamed dully from out her flushed face as she lifted a wine glass to her lips. The man opposite her, leaned over the table in an offensively insinuating manner. As the wine flowed, his enquiring laugh grew more persistent and significant, and Lenora spoke too loudly at moments. When they had finished their liquors, Lenora remained, helpless and hopeless, fluttered through the safe door into a waiting taxi—and her companion says of her, "she's a bully sort," "a top-notch," "a jolly good fellow," and helps her game along, but she is a rank outsider when his thoughts turn to matrimony.

Men are terribly exacting—of others. They coax the girl into reckless and needless ways, snatch the sweetness from the palpitating victim and pay the bill for a broken heart and blasted life with a few greenbacks. Then, "on with the dance!"

Men marry a girl they do not respect, and no man marries a girl his friends do not respect. No man has sincere interest in a girl he urges to drink or smoke. No man forgives the wife, the sister or the sweetheart who has sinned greatly. He is tender and charitable to the sins of women as a class, but severe and uncompromising on them as individuals. If a girl wants to drink wine and be the pride of the cafes, she must make her sacrifice.

A New Workbag

The latest thing in workbags has a quaintness that makes it appropriate to be used as a prize. It is in the shape of a miniature sunbonnet and can easily be made at home.

Cut two pieces of cardboard four inches long, four inches deep in front and two at back. Slope the sides to the shape of a sunbonnet frame.

Cover each piece with a flowered silk on the outside and white satin on inner side. To the back edge of the two pieces join a gathered crown of silk and to the lower edges put a shaped plume of the same material. This is cut three inches wide at top, the frame expanding beyond it, and should be two inches deep with the back edge cut straight and the front one sloped to make the lower edge of frill about four inches deep.

The crown is joined to the frames with a narrow whalebone, which opens to form a small bag for thread, thimble and a bit of fancy work.

On one inner side of frame are fastened leaves of white French flannel, with edges pinked and frills attached in colored silk. On opposite side is ribbon, held at intervals to hold scissors, bodkin, stiffener and rule.

The bonnet fastens in front with a crocheted loop and button, and may have baby ribbon attached if it is to be carried.

To Renovate Velvet.

Velvet is being so much worn this season that it has to be renovated if it may not come amiss.

The velvet should, first of all, be stretched, pile side upward, over the steam from a kettle of boiling water. As the steam begins to rise get some one to brush up the pile heavily with a stiff brush. Then spread out flat to dry, and afterward brush lightly again.

When the material has been worn a great deal and is very soiled sponge it lightly with benzine.

New Parasols.

Some of the new parasols for the summer girl look for all the world as though they belong in the upholstery department, for they seem to be mammoth lampshades, sloping steeply at the sides and having a trimming of dangling fringe at the bottom. These new lampshade parasols have a queer frame which is rather at a steep slant so that the parasol is higher and rather small in circumference at the base. Velvet parasols are the smart notion at Palm Beach now, and some of these affairs are of jetty black and accented by big black velvets and feather-trimmed hats rather than by effect, but one unquestionably smart.

Woman Inventing an Aeroplane.

The Viscountess d'Azay, wife of the naval attaché of the French embassy in Washington, is now at work inventing a flying machine. She will return to Paris early in the spring and will watch tests of her machine. She comes of an ancient family of Saxon and inherited a large fortune. She always has been interested in science, especially that which relates to the conquest of the air. She is a patron of Santos-Dumont, and frequently has entertained the young inventor at her home near the Bois de Boulogne in Paris.

POLICEMEN, CALLED TO CATCH BURGLAR. CATCH ONLY LONE STRAY CAT

If it takes two policemen to catch a cat, how many policemen will it take to catch a burglar? or if one lost cat can scare O. A. Ottosen, what would a burglar do?

Patrolmen LaSalle and Willett are working on the above two problems, while neighbors of Mr. Ottosen, who lives in the vicinity of 94 Graham avenue, are having one glorious laugh today.

About 1:30 o'clock this morning, Ottosen rushed down the street, partly clad, hardly able to talk. He encountered LaSalle and gasped out that a burglar was in his house. The policeman started on a run to the house, and encountering Patrolman Willett on the way, took him along. Thorough search of the place was made. A stray cat that had been locked in a room and was making a frightful noise trying to get out was found.

The discovery set the Ottosen family at ease again.

study of the text of the treaty, and incline to believe it is less dangerous than at first feared.

It transpires that the government for three years has been doing absolutely nothing to enforce restriction but has left to the Japanese government all such work.

JAPAN HAS STATUS OF MOST FAVORED NATION; PROMISE ON COOLIES

(United Press Special Wire.)

Washington, Feb. 24.—That Japan, under President Taft's new treaty, now awaiting ratification, will not only be discriminated against, but will enter the "most favored nation" class as regards the United States, is revealed here today by publication of the tariff paragraph of the treaty. It says:

"Import duties on articles, products or manufactures of either high contracting party, upon importation into the territories of the other party, shall be regulated either by special arrangement between the two countries or by the internal legislation of each."

It declares that neither nation shall discriminate against the other in export duties, and adds:

"More shall any prohibition be imposed by either country on the importation or exportation of any article from or to the territories of the other which shall not equally extend to a like article imported from or exported to any other country."

"The last provision, however, shall not be applicable to any prohibition or restriction maintained or imposed as a sanitary measure for the protection of animals or useful plants."

Residence and Business Rights.
Referring to patent rights, the treaty says:

"Citizens or subjects of each party shall enjoy in the territories of the other the same protection as the native citizens or subjects, regarding patents, trademarks or designs, upon the fulfillment of such formalities as the law prescribes."

Equality of the right to reside, conduct business or travel in the other country is guaranteed to the citizens of each and the same trading and navigation rights as were contained in the former treaty are renewed.

If ratified, the treaty will become effective July 1 and will continue in force for 10 years unless terminated after six months' notice by either nation. It is also provided that ratifications must be exchanged within three months of the date of the treaty's being signed.

Japan's Additional Promise.
The text of Japan's promise to limit the immigration of laborers into the United States, which is applied to the treaty, is published here today by the administration. It says:

"In proceeding this day to sign a treaty of commerce and navigation between Japan and the United States, the undersigned Japanese ambassador, duly authorized by his government, declares that the Imperial Japanese government is fully prepared to maintain with equal effectiveness the limitation and control which they have exercised for the past three years in the regulation of the emigration of laborers to the United States."

Alleged Thief Taken.
Eugene, Or., Feb. 24.—Albert Raymond, sometimes known as Shroder, wanted here for larceny in a dwelling, has been arrested at Los Angeles and Sheriff Down or one of his deputies will leave today for that city to bring him here for trial. He is accused of stealing $39 in cash, a gold watch, a gold ring and several minor articles of more or less value from the house of Robert Bushnell, near Irving, where he was employed for some time past.

ROYAL Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

Royal Baking Powder is made from pure grape cream of tartar, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is more economical at its price than any other leavening agent, because of the superlative quality and absolute wholesomeness of the food it makes.

Mixtures made in imitation of baking powders, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food. In England, France, Germany and some sections of the United States their sale is prohibited by law. Alum is a dangerous mineral acid, and all physicians condemn baking powders containing it.

The label of every baking powder must show the ingredients.
