Decision in Patent Case—United States Judge Bean returned an opinion today in the case of the Schmalzer Manufacturing company against John Lilly and Richard McGilvery, giving the plaintiff a decree, sustaining the validity of patent rights in dispute between the parties in the suit and leaving the amount of damages sustained by the plaintiff to be fixed by a commissioner. The validity of the patent had already been sustained by the United States circuit court in California and eastern Washington.

Wants Summons Served—To allow of the appeal of C. A. Smith, the Linn & Lane Timber company and Frank Kribbs from a verdict for the United States in a suit to recover timber land of the defendants, Attorney John M. Goarlin today secured permission from Judge Bean to serve summons in severance on the score or more of lesser defendants in the case of the Schmalzer Manufacturing company. The important defendants filed their appeal bonds with the United States circuit court last week.

Admitted to Practice—Robert F. Maguire, deputy United States attorney, was admitted to practice in the United States circuit and district courts this morning. Although as a member of United States Attorney McCourt's office, Mr. Maguire has been practicing in these courts for months, and through the right to be admitted to private practice before this, Mr. McCourt moved Mr. Maguire's admission and Judge Bean, upon being assured of the deputy district attorney's probity, laughingly signed the order admitting him to practice.

Will Withdraw Exhibits—Attorney Emmett Callahan of Baker appeared before Judge Bean in the United States court this morning and secured permission to withdraw the books and other exhibits in the suit of Valentine Laubenthal against the Citizens' National bank of Baker. He said the exhibits were needed in the trial of another suit between the same parties in Baker.

MISS GRUNSPAN IN TEARS

tempted to speak in her daughter's defense she was ejected from the courtroom.

Walling was apparently unaffected by Miss Grunspan's hysteria, and manifested no concern when she was carried, half fainting, from the room.

Attorney Fuchs attempted to show that none of Walling's letters contain any promise to marry the plaintiff.

Walling's Courtship. Walling is a wealthy Socialist and husband of Anna Strunsky Walling, settlement worker and writer on Russian politics. Miss Grunspan in her earlier testimony said Walling induced her to leave her mother in Paris and go with him to Russia, by promising to save her two brothers from the persecution of the Russian government and unite them with her mother.

During the trip, she declared, Walling professed that he intended to marry her, only to leave her later on. Walling denies ever promising to marry Miss Grunspan, and says he has proof that they were "only friends."

Daniel Grunspan, a brother of the plaintiff, testified that Walling had given him 100 francs to pay his passage from Paris to America.

at the Burnside bridge from 5:19 o'clock till 5:46 p. m. The same steamer was delayed at the Morrison bridge from 8:06 p. m. till 8:30 p. m.

The steamer Oregon, bound down, was delayed at the Morrison street bridge from 8:03 p. m. till 8:28 p. m.

The steamer Gamecock, bound up, was delayed at the Burnside bridge from 6:12 p. m. till 6:33 p. m. It is alleged a delay of three minutes is reasonable in which to clear the draws and open them for the passage of boats.

The move of United States Attorney McCourt in filing direct information against the county court itself instead of against the bridge tenders, is probably something of a surprise to the county officials. It was expected that a bridge tender would be arrested and that the county would be able to make a test case of his arrest. It was also expected the complaints that have been piling up in the United States attorney's office would be placed before the federal grand jury, which will meet about the 15th of this month.

Mr. McCourt took no chances with a sympathetic grand jury, however, the last one having turned down prosecutions for alleged violations of the navigation laws, and filed the information directly, securing permission of United States Judge Bean this morning.

There is every probability that the cases will be carried to the highest courts on appeal, as both the county and the federal governments are anxious to secure a ruling one way or another on the respective rights of river and bridge traffic during rush hours.

The action of the United States in no way interferes with the cases already agreed upon by the war department for the morning rush hours. The war department has never sanctioned the closing of draws during the evening or afternoon but in defiance of its ruling the county court has instructed the bridge tenders to keep the draws closed during the rush hours around six o'clock at night.

BEATRICE H. GADSBY LOSES SUIT FOR HOME

Mrs. Beatrice Hill Gadsby has no legal claim on the home in which she and her husband lived immediately after their wedding six years ago.

That it was not a gift to the young married couple, was held by Judge Morrow of the circuit court in the last legal arguments over the matter. He sustained a demurrer to the complaint of Mrs. Gadsby in which she sought to recover her share of the home.

Mrs. Beatrice Hill Gadsby claimed the home was given as a wedding present. When the divorce was started several months ago, she asked for her share in the home and made Mrs. Nellie Gadsby, mother of Walter Gadsby, a party to the suit. By the ruling of Judge Morrow, the title to the home is still in the name of Mrs. Nellie Gadsby.

ation. That is why I resorted to quo warranto proceedings. District Attorney Cameron has signed the complaint prepared by me against the company. It is very brief, merely setting forth my contention that the Portland Railway, Light & Power company has occupied and used the Hawthorne avenue bridge since December 29 last, without right or legal authority and praying that the company be excluded from further usurpation on the bridge.

Simon's Stipulation in the Way. City Attorney Grant's action is in direct opposition to the policy of Mayor Simon, by whose advice a stipulatory agreement was entered into between the city and the company, whereby the company was permitted to operate cars across the span without the payment of any rental until the city should establish in the courts what the rental should be, whether $1200 a year, as fixed by the franchisee granted the company for the use of the old bridge, or $15,000 a year as fixed by the charter amendment under which the new viaduct was built. City Attorney Grant has always been opposed to the stipulation sanctioned by Mayor Simon.

If the suit started by the city attorney today should prove successful, he believes the company will lose no time in signing a contract with the city, providing for a $15,000 a year rental.

If the suit should not prove successful, the city attorney will then proceed to sue for the collection of the money, according to the instructions of the city council and the mayor.

TELEPHONING TO THE COUNTRY THE City and the Country are bound together by the telephone line. The farmer and his family use the rural telephone constantly, calling up each other and the market town on all sorts of matters and for all sorts of supplies and information. City people also find the rural telephone of great advantage. A traveler from his room in the hotel talks with the farm folk miles away. Without the telephone he could not reach them. The farmer himself may travel far and still talk home over the Long Distance Lines of the Bell System.
