Elliott Tires of Ties. 1909, carried about $10,000,000. The bill 1909, carried about $10,000,000. The bill of 1910 carried some $53,000,000, while the present bill provides for something over $36,000,000 so that there has been legislation affecting our great high-ways and our harbors for three con-socutive years. This certainly estab-lishes the precedent for an annual bill hereafter. This feature of the bill is not conversion of the bill is Everything was lovely for several ears, and two boys were born to the happy couple. Then Elllott tired of domesticity, and his wife obtained a divorce.

Then the war with Spain broke out, and Elliott enlisted. His natural apti-tude for the profession of a soldier was ost generally praised and I have no mbt it will be followed by successive soon noticed by his superior officers, and after the war he was given a com es as a well-settled policy. mission. "Another feature, which is gratifyalry in the Eighth regiment, of which ing to the friends of a liberal water-way policy, is, that the present bill, to-gether with that of 1910, which, carrye is senior first lieutenant. approximately $90,000,000, if expromptly would give an aver-$45,000,000 a year-a close apož each to the $50,000,000 per annum ich was adopted as the slogan of the ational Rivers and Harbors congress "The annual feature and the inre-engaged many times, but nothing was officially announced

"If I were asked to name the dis-tinguishing characteristic of the two her two sons via Suez and India to Manila, and that the happy consum-mation of a wedding will be reached is passed by the sixty-first congress, in the tropic islands.

I should say that they are essentially river bills, as contra-distinguished from the harbor bills which have been enact-Milton, Or., March 6 .- Arrangements into law so frequently in the past. deed such liberal provision was made are about completed for the opening of a new bank in this city by Nelson Manor most of the harbors on the Great akes, the Pacific, the Gulf and the ola of this city and W, Jones of Op-Atlantic, by former congresses, that their demands were small and the pres-ent congress could well afford to be liberal in its treatment of rivers.

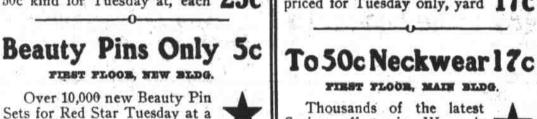

No Biver Competition. I wish it clearly understood that Five Minutes harbor improvement, for every harbor is a railroad terminal. The greater the facilities thereat for handling freight large vessels, the cheaper the rates a subject in which all freight novers are intensely interested. But while we have cheapened freights by deepening harbors, we have done prac-tically nothing to establish forceful petition on rivers and everyone concompetition on rivers and everyone con-cedes that a great east and west water-oourse, such for example as the com-bined Ohio and Missouri rivers, and a north and south route, as the Mississ-ippi from St. Faul to the Gulf would, if properly improved and utilized, be wonderfully beneficial in solving the problem of freight charges. I use these attracms as an illustration marries nese streams as an illustration merely and there are many others in practical ly every part of the union which would, proportion to costs of improvement, equally helpful. "Another and most important idea, consistently followed by this con-gress, in its river legislation, is the adoption of a definite plan on great projects and fixing a specific period in itch to complete them. To illus-ite: The river and harbor act of trate: 1907, adopted a plan to improve the Mississippi from St. Paul to the mouth of the Missouri at a cost of $20,000,000; it provided $500,000 in cash and author-ised contracts for $1,500,000 additional with the proviso that not exceeding $50,000 should be spent in any one year. This would mean 40 years in which to complete the project.
