

PACIFIC U. REVEALS AMBITIOUS PLANS FOR BIGGER SCHOOL

With Library Fund Complete,
Seeks $100,000 More Endowment, Science Hall, Music Hall, Men's Dormitory.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pacific University, Forest Grove, Or., April 1.—President Ferrin has made public announcement of completion of the funds for a library building and an endowment for the maintenance of both building and library. The total raised is $51,000.

For years there has been an urgent need of a library building and a campaign was started six years ago for the funds. A good start was made but because of the fire in the spring of 1905 which destroyed Herrick Hall, the ladies dormitory and the necessity for another, active work was dropped until the summer of 1908 when the building was replaced. In six months, $54,000 was raised, mostly in and near Portland, for the new hall, erection of which was then completed in 1907. Last year, the need of a more adequate gymnasium became imperative, so the library fund was again deferred. A $25,000 athletic building being completed last fall.

List of the Donors.
With completion of the gymnasium, opportunity was offered to recommence the library campaign and for six months, all efforts along the lines of increasing equipment have been centered on this building. President Ferrin, Professor Marsh, Principal Bates of the academy and Professor Ferguson, have all been engaged. The largest donors and their gifts are as follows:

The Misses Palling and Mrs. Cabell, in honor of Henry Palling, $10,000; Mrs. Frederick Billings, of New York, in honor of Sidney Harper Marsh, the first president of Pacific, $5,000; H. L. Pittock, of Portland, $2,000; the following each $1,000: Jeremiah Walker, W. B. Aver, Mrs. P. J. Mann, Theo. B. Wilcox, William Ladd, all of Portland, and John H. Converse, of New York; the following all $500: Corbett estate, E. P. McCornack, Napoleon Davis, M. J. Kinney, T. H. Adams, F. Eggert, all of Portland, and L. J. Colman, of Seattle; G. O. Rogers, $400; G. H. Marsh, $250; James Kerr, $250; N. W. Adams, $250; Dr. Ethel Gray, $250; President W. N. Forster, $200; Dr. Ferguson, $200; Professor Joseph Marsh, $200; A. L. Mills, $250; R. B. Lamson, $200; Fred A. Kribbs, $200; Elizabeth Miller Wilson, $150; Meier & Frank company, $100; W. D. Wheelwright, $100; E. W. Haines, $100; J. Wheelock Marsh, $100; Other liberal givers are Mitchell Gilliam, E. H. Coleman, Dr. Bean, Mrs. A. J. Pridemore, Dr. Treve Jones, B. S. Huntington, Thomas Roberts, E. Bailey, Professor Mary F. Farnham, Professor F. C. Taylor, Professor E. D. West, Dr. J. S. Bishop, George S. Allen, E. R. Burton, Miss Lois Myers, M. Peterson, Alex. Alexander, Miss Pearl Chandler and Miss Alice Clement.

Overcharge May Add $10,000.
Several years ago Andrew Carnegie offered to give $20,000 for a library building on condition that the school should raise a like amount for endowment of the building, but in hope that Mr. Carnegie might raise his gift to $50,000, the trustees went ahead to get $50,000; however it is not yet certain that the millionaire's donation will be raised but if he does so the total amount will be increased to $61,000, thus giving Pacific one of the best college library buildings on the coast.

The library at present numbers nearly 17,000 volumes, all accommodated in small rooms in the administration building, which are entirely inadequate and difficult for easy reference. Among the books are some very valuable ones. Among the early benefactors of the library were Henry W. Longfellow, Rufus Choate, Edward Everett Hale, S. F. B. Morse, the inventor, and his father, Sidney E. Morse.

The new building will, in addition to the library proper, have reading and study rooms, fireproof storage of books and stone, and be situated on the southwest corner of the campus. "Construction will be started as soon as minor details are attended to," said President Ferrin today.

Present Endowment to Come.
The present endowment of the institution, though much larger than that of the majority of private schools, is in the next few years, to be raised to $250,000, and according to present indications the mark will be reached. During the last five years, about $150,000 has been raised for endowment of buildings and the campaign will go on more vigorously than ever for the erection of a new science hall, a men's dormitory, and a music hall for the conservatory department, which is at present badly crowded. The dormitory will be the first building planned and as soon as the library is completed, work will probably start on funds for this structure.

Overcharged Shipper Repaid.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Salem, Or., April 1.—Levi Ernst of Powell Butte has been refunded $35.77 through the railroad commission by the Oregon & Washington Railroad & Navigation company for an overcharge on a shipment of household goods to this state.

VERITABLE JUNK SHOP;
JUST LISTEN TO THIS
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Vallejo, Cal., April 1.—Because his cow coughed constantly, neighbors feared Henry Studer to kill the animal, as it was believed she was the victim of tuberculosis. But this surmise proved all wrong. A postmortem examination showed that the cow had tried to make a junkshop of its stomach. Among the articles found in the stomach were a gold watch and chain, a diamond ring, a door knob, a piece of iron chain, several pounds of nails, six feet of barbed wire and 137 hairpins.

EMPLOYEES OF SPOKANE ARE TOLD TO PAY BILLS OR QUIT CITY'S SERVICE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Spokane, Wash., April 1.—"Pay your bills or quit your jobs." Such is in substance an ultimatum served by Mayor W. J. Hindley of Spokane upon subordinate rates at the city hall, incident to a complaint made against a few of them by their grocers, who declared they were unable to secure settlements. Mayor Hindley has called attention to the fact that though the salary of a city employee cannot be attached, the administration will not tolerate "deadbeats."

PULLS THE WRONG CLOTHES LINE; SHOT

Prankish Lothario Thought
He'd Play Joke on Girls, but Tides Turned.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Stockton, Cal., April 1.—Joe Ardanaz, a gay young Lothario, lies near death in the emergency hospital here today with a bullet hole in his stomach, received while attempting to perpetrate a rash prank.

A few days ago two French girls arrived at the Royal hotel on South Hunter street. Ardanaz and Martin Sarena made their acquaintance. Early today Ardanaz and Sarena made their way into the back yard of the hotel. Sarena grabbed a clothesline which he believed led to the window of the room in which the girls were sleeping. He gave a jerk to arouse the girls.

The clothesline, however, was attached to the window of the room in which John Gulchon and his wife were asleep. Thinking that burglars were trying to force an entrance, Gulchon fired through the window, the bullet striking Ardanaz. Gulchon has been exonerated after an investigation by the police and the district attorney.

OXFORD CREW WINS RACE

today won from Cambridge by two and a half boat lengths the sixty-seventh inter-university battle on the Thames. The dark blues rowed the distance in 18 minutes and 29 seconds. The previous record was 18:47.

Conditions today were ideal and an enormous crowd saw the light blues go down to defeat after a gallant struggle. At no time, however, was Oxford in serious danger, and even in the finish spurt the dark blues showed that they had speed and power to spare.

Oxford Rows Easily.
Oxford started with a 27 stroke and Cambridge at 38. At the end of the first mile, Oxford was three-quarters of a length ahead. At Hammersmith, the dark blues were two lengths ahead. Then Bourne let down and Cambridge gained length in a third of a mile. As a result of the great effort, Arbutnot, stroke of the Cambridge crew, tired, and the light blue stroke became ragged. Seeing that the race was won, Oxford then dropped to 33 and Cambridge sagged her stroke to 34.

Three-quarters of the finish, Oxford started a whirlwind spurt, ending two and three-fourths lengths in the lead.

Cambridge Men Distressed.
After the race, Arbutnot and several other members of the light blue crew were absolutely exhausted and were taken from the shore. None of the members of the Oxford crew were distressed.

More than 120,000 persons, including the Prince of Wales, attended the race. Oxford won on its general superiority, especially that of Bourne, its stroke. Cambridge's bid for victory came in the first mile, but the dark blues were clearly their superiors. Today's race was the third successive defeat of Cambridge by Oxford.

The start of the race at 2:29 was a water smooth as glass. When the water was smooth, the Surrey shore, and pulling strongly together nosed ahead in the first few strokes and held its advantage to the end.

Rhodes Men Row.
Divided between the two boats were three Rhodes men, all of them from Melbourne university, Australia, in the Oxford craft, and Van Der Byle and Skinner among the "Canabats."

To Oxford light was a slight favorite, though the general impression was that there was not a great deal to choose between the two sides. Skins, in the end, it was, had among them only three veterans of previous races, but their stroke, Bourne, is regarded by everyone as the most brilliant oarsman in England. As an effort against this, six of the Canabats rowed in last year's race, in addition to which Skinner was regarded as a most clever oarsman in the Oxford-Cambridge contests on account of the trickiness of the Thames tides. Both crews had considerable sickness and an unusual number of accidents, and Cambridge in particular suffered through the necessity of changing its coach on account of illness.

Take Water First.
The Canabats, as the challengers, took the water first, shortly after 2:30, thousands of spectators cheering them from the river banks and Putney bridge. The crews were renewed a few seconds later when the Oxonians made their appearance. Anything like an accurate estimate of the number of people who saw some part of the race is impossible owing to the length and tortuousness of the course, but probably the total number was somewhere between 60,000 and 80,000.

Of the 66 previous contests, Oxford has won 35 and Cambridge 30, the sixteenth being a dead heat.

Priesthood Losing Popularity.
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Paris, April 1.—Sounding a cry that there would soon be no more priests, Monsignor Amette, archbishop of Paris, today produces figures to show that young men are not entering the church. During 1910 only 26 priests were ordained, and in 1911 so far only six have taken orders.

KESTER ENDS HARD DAY WITH WEEPING

Lewiston Banker's Case Will Probably Go to the Jury
Tonight.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Boise, Idaho, April 1.—After an all day examination in court, George H. Kester, the accused Lewiston National bank defaulter, on trial in the federal court jointly with William E. Kettenbach, late yesterday afternoon, openly wept on the witness stand.

The scene was brought about unexpectedly through the inquiry of a juror, who asked Kester why Kettenbach and he had resigned from the bank in July, 1907. Kester broke down instantly. Recovering, he explained that he had been indicted some weeks before by the federal grand jury at Moscow for timber fraud and rather than remain an official of the bank under a cloud, both he and Kettenbach had resigned.

The defense closed a few minutes later and Judge Bean requested the jurors not to attempt to reach conclusions until after the closing arguments and instructions of the court are heard today, when they will be at liberty to form an opinion. The argument is limited to four hours to side and the case should be in the jury's hands tonight.

3 OFFICERS SHOT BY WIRE THIEVES

In Pitched Battle Gang of Desperadoes Wounds New Jersey Policemen.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Kearney, N. J., April 1.—In a pitched battle at Hackensack Meadows early to day between police and a gang of wire thieves three policemen were wounded, one probably fatally. The battle today was the climax of a series of raids which had netted the thieves thousands of pounds of copper telegraph and telephone wires.

When the police approached the scene of the recent robberies in an automobile, they met a wagon containing four men. When called upon to stop, the four robbers drew revolvers and opened fire. Sergeant McGee and Patrolmen Smith and Doland were wounded. It was believed the wire thieves escaped unhurt.

LAND MEN GOT VICTIMS

Southern Pacific and Oregon & California companies.
Speculators Profit.
"In those cases intervention of so called squatters and others was allowed with the result that speculators, through the use of the mails, have induced people to purchase supposed rights to the land in question for from $25 to $300 cash. Thousands of people have been fooled by this kind of scheme. The land is now flooded with complaints claiming these men have used the mails to defraud. The fact that their contracts are so drawn as to make it impossible to arrest them on such a charge does not absolve these people who have separated unsuspecting victims from their money. For these reasons we wish to assist any petition to intervene in this other suit, and I will ask that it be postponed until Mr. Townsend is here himself—probably in three weeks."

Garrigue Objects.
Mr. Garrigue was apparently enraged by the district attorney's remarks, and said he understood that Mr. Townsend had not objected to the intervention suit filed in the Oregon & California case, and he was sure the grant would be made. He said he was sure the grant would be made. He said he was sure the grant would be made.

"I wish to challenge the statements of Mr. McCourt as unfair," said Colonel Garrigue.
Judge Wolverton held that it would be better to delay the application until Mr. Townsend's return and set the hearing for April 23.

Mr. Farrin said he represented 65 would-be intervenors, mostly from Coos and Douglas counties, who were sure the grant is located. They are 95,000 acres in the grant and it is valued at several millions of dollars.

Lafferty Brought Case.
The intervention in the case of the United States against the Oregon & California company was brought by A. W. Lafferty, who is present one of Oregon's congressmen at Washington. The alleged bunking of easterners in the sale of "claims" in the Oregon & California grant was made possible, it was intimated by Mr. McCourt, through the suit brought by Lafferty.

The southern Oregon grant was awarded the Coos Bay Wagon Road company by congress and by the state of Oregon to repay the company for building a wagon road to Coos Bay. It is claimed the road was never built and that the company did not sell its land at a stipulated price in quantities no larger than 160 acres in accordance with the terms of the grant.

The people represented by Mr. Farrin, he says, are either squatters or are demanding their right to purchase 160 acres at the price stipulated by the government.

IMMUNITY BATH NOT FOR "BATHTUB" TRUST

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, April 1.—The government prosecutors today are concluding the preliminary work in the approaching prosecution of 24 individuals and 14 corporations, comprising the "bathtub trust." It was predicted that court proceedings would be under way next week. All the defendants were called to answer indictments, no promise of immunity having been made by the department of justice officials.

DOG, TRAINED TO AID WOMAN THIEF, GIVEN SENTENCE OF DEATH

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Paris, April 1.—Innocent of intentional wrong doing, yet convicted of aiding a thief, a thief dog used by a woman shoplifter has been condemned to death here today, but popular protest may save his life. The woman trained the dog to pull at her skirts when policemen appeared, thus warning her while engaged in stealing. The woman and dog were captured by detectives, whom the dog could not distinguish from uniformed policemen.

SALOONMAN'S EYE NOT ON THE NICKEL

Fined for Breaking Tacoma's
Anti-Treat Law, Makes a Test Appeal.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Tacoma, April 1.—Preparations are being made today by Attorney John H. Gordon to appeal to the superior court the case of G. W. Kiesel, a saloon proprietor, who was convicted in police court late yesterday of violating the new anti-treating law and fined $50. If necessary, it is said, the case will be carried to the state supreme court for a decision as to the constitutionality of the measure.

Kiesel, who is the first to be tried and convicted of allowing treating in his saloon, testified that he did not accept money from A. H. Fries, the complainant, in payment for drinks for Fries and his companion. Instead, he says, when Fries laid a dime on the bar and called for two glasses of beer, he rang up but five cents and handed back the change. Then according to Kiesel, he was called away momentarily, and when he returned he found five cents in front of the glass of beer's companion. Then he did not question whose money it was.

The cases against Joseph Pischoffert and John F. Schmidt, also accused of violating the new ordinance, were continued until Monday.

31 HORSES ENTERED AT WOODBURN SHOW

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Woodburn, Or., April 1.—Summer weather brought out crowds to the fourth annual horse fair held yesterday by the Woodburn Horse Breeders' association. The fair was a success, although it would have been more gratifying if there had been more competition. Dr. James Withycombe of the Oregon Agricultural college and Dr. E. J. Young of Salem were the judges. Music was furnished by the Aurora and Chemawa Indian bands. In all there were 31 competitors.

The stallions over 4 years receiving premiums were:

Standard bred—"McAlzo," H. C. Fletcher, Salem, first; "Major Weltzel," E. F. Rose, Salem, second; "Broadheart," Albert Pratt, Aurora, third.
Clydesdale, 1909 goal—"Ray McQueen," D. M. Dryden, Woodburn, first.

SEATTLE AND FRISCO MAY BUILD SUBMARINES

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, April 1.—The Union Iron Works of San Francisco and the Moran plant in Seattle are each likely to receive a contract to build a submarine boat for the United States navy. While the building of four submarines will be controlled by the Electric Boat company, it was announced that the contract calls for two of the vessels to be built on the Pacific coast, and the Seattle and San Francisco concerns are prominently mentioned in this connection.

STATE'S EXPENSES FOR QUARTER JUST ENDED ARE OVER $1,000,000

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., April 1.—More than $1,000,000 in warrants were issued by the secretary of state yesterday against funds in the hands of the state treasurer to defray the cost of the state government for the first quarter of the biennial period of 1911 and 1912, which closed yesterday. This is the largest sum ever expended by the state for state purposes in any one quarter. Expenses incident to the legislative session, cost of issuing Lord's Oregon laws and paying the deficiencies of the last biennial period, for which money was appropriated by the late legislative session, account for the large expenditures.

BANK OF STAYTON MAY OPEN MONDAY

Portland Money Said to Have Saved Day, on Security of Real Estate.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., April 1.—Arrangements are being completed today by which officials of the Stayton State bank, which was closed by State Bank Examiner Will Wright Wednesday, believe they have obtained sufficient financial backing to reopen the bank Monday. A visit was made to Salem last night by the bank officials in an endeavor to persuade Mr. Wright to consent to the reopening of the bank this morning, but Mr. Wright was not yet satisfied with the showing.

It is reported Portland banking interests are willing to finance the Stayton bank on real estate security, that has been personally pledged by Peter Freres and W. L. Freres, president and cashier of the bank, and that arrangements for reopening on this backing will be completed by Monday.

STRANGE DEMISE, MYSTERY

The peculiar circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Blosser.

Every effort has been made to show that the woman committed suicide, and the explanation has been made that she took prussic acid, but prussic acid acts immediately and no bottle or vial of any kind can be found in the room in which the acid might have been conveyed, say the police. Her dead body was found by Mrs. Mabel Blosser, a sister of the confessed bank robber, when she called at the house on Wednesday afternoon.

Arrest Is Surprise.
The arrest of Blosser is a complete surprise to the neighborhood. Not the least trace of suspicion was cast on him until yesterday morning, when it was learned that he was not at his home last Sunday night. Taking up the trail from that suggestion, the detectives watched the man, all day yesterday and this morning brought him to police headquarters on suspicion. Two hours close questioning brought forth the confession.

As soon as the man confessed to the robbery, Captain Moore said, "That is why your wife committed suicide, isn't it?"

Blosser immediately became confused and after stammering and stuttering for some time said, "Well, there were other reasons besides that, also."
Relatives of the man immediately after the suicide declared that the woman had threatened on numerous occasions to commit suicide, but now it is believed that these threats if ever made by Mrs. Blosser were merely recalled to turn suspicion from Blosser.

Attempt Daring One.
The first report that came to police headquarters was that the woman was murdered and that Blosser could not be found, although he was seen to leave for Portland on a car, shortly before the dead body of the wife was found. The couple is known to have had trouble, and from what Blosser confessed to this morning it is known that his wife not only knew of his attempt last Monday to rob the bank but knew of his unsuccessful attempt of last November.

The attempt made to rob the Sellwood bank Monday morning was a most daring one. All night Sunday night Blosser who had gained entrance to the basement of the building in which the bank is located, by going through a barber shop, worked with auger and saw, cutting a hole in the floor of the bank through which he crawled into the banking room.

By 6 o'clock he was in the room and at 8:30, when Janitor Jensen appeared to put out the lights, Blosser jumped on him, assaulted him with a revolver and then threw the old man onto the floor and tied his head in a sack.

It was Blosser's intention, he declared the morning to await the arrival of Cashier Harry Trichner, and then at the point of a gun, compel him to open the vaults in which $50,000 was kept and demand the delivery of the money.

The encounter with the janitor, however, interrupted the wait and after waiting but a few moments, he fled.

Makes No Statement.
"I was just simply hard up and needed the money," he said this morning to Captain Moore and to Coleman and Snow. "I didn't know whether I could do the trick or not, but I took a chance."

The affair last November was to have been worked on almost the same basis, except that Blosser proposed to wait until the bookkeeper and the cashier were alone in the bank and then by tying and gagging the bookkeeper in the basement, having him out of the way, walk into the banking room and gather up the loot before it had been placed in the vaults.

Blosser will make no statement regarding the death of his wife, but instead he maintains a stolid demeanor.

The search for the place where the prussic acid with which the woman's life was ended has been started anew, and in addition to Detectives Coleman and Snow, several other of the secret workers are seeking further information on the place where the acid was sold.

The body of Mrs. Blosser has been buried and no inquest has been held over her remains. It is more than likely now that a demand will be made to have the remains exhumed and re-examined, for in the face of the arrest of Blosser and the fact that his wife knew of his attempts to rob, and in addition to the fact, the suspicious features in connection with the alleged suicide, it is believed that an inquest, if Dr. Norden will conduct one, will bring out facts that will incriminate Blosser.

YEGGMEN BLOW UP POSTOFFICE SAFE

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Los Angeles, April 1.—Yeggmens blew the safe of the postoffice at Moneta, near here, early today, secured considerable money and a quantity of stamps and escaped. A posse of sheriff's deputies, headed by Postal Inspector Hall, has left to take up the chase. Postoffice officials said $500 in coin and between $500 and $800 in stamps was stolen.

The robbery was discovered at 3:15 o'clock by Postmaster T. C. Pittman when he opened for business. The robbers drilled three holes in the safe door in an effort to force the combination. Failing in this, he knocked off the dial and finally inserted a charge of nitro glycerine in one of the holes. A window 10 feet from the safe was not broken. No one heard the explosion.
