"SOFT JOBS" FOR YEARS DRAINED NATION'S COFFERS

Country "Milked" Through Congressional Sinecures According to Special Report Made to House.

$1200 ANNUALLY PAID TO 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Thirty-Eight Policemen, Engaged During War to Frustrate "Dynamite Plot."

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, April 10.—How the country has been systematically "milked" for years through congressional sinecures is shown today in Congressman Palmer's special report on "soft jobs" in the house, most of which have been set off by the new Democratic regime. Palmer's report shows that a girl of 13 years, the daughter of a door-keeper, was on the payroll for $1200 annually; that 38 policemen, appointed during the Spanish war to watch for plotters, who were said to be likely to attempt to dynamite the capitol, were still on the payroll at a cost of $30,000 a year; that two telegraph operators, at $1400 each, who were long since dismissed, were still drawing their salaries.

It further shows that $6000 could be saved by cutting off the $6000 a year for a clerk's document room, which had not been in existence for 15 years, and that an equal sum could be saved by abolishing expenses for an "employees capital library" which in fact was removed from the capitol years ago.

Prominent Democrats at National Capital

Snapshot taken in Washington of William J. Bryan and Governor Harmon of Ohio. The first session of the New Democratic congress brought thousands of prominent Democrats to the capitol from all over the country. One of the main topics of conversation that can be heard discussed by parties of jubilant Democrats is who will be the Democratic presidential nominee for 1912; and Governor Harmon appears to be one of the most probable candidates.

TOO MANY SECTS, BISHOP'S VIEW; 1 BIG CHURCH BEST

Paddock, of Episcopal Diocese of Eastern Oregon, Surprises Pendleton Hearers by Plea for United Churches.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., April 10.—Declaring that the modern church is divided into too many sects and denominations, and advocating amalgamation of these different branches into one broad church, Bishop Paddock, of the eastern Oregon diocese of the Episcopal church, last evening surprised the congregation of the local Episcopal church. He did not go into the subject extensively, but was emphatic in what he did say. He asserted that competition among denominations which differ only on minor points is undesirable and does not result in maximum good.

When amalgamation is secured, he said, there will be less starving churches and starving ministers.

Rev. Charles L. Quinley of the local church does not concur in the views of his superior and stated this morning he could not accept such a union unless all other denominations would adopt the Episcopal creed.

"We have union now," he stated, "We all believe fundamentally in the Trinity, which is the unifying essential, and differ only on minor details of doctrine and creeds."

BISHOP OF MISSOURI DEFENDS WALL ST.; NECESSARY, HE SAYS

New York, April 10.—Coming to the defense of the big Wall street financiers, Rev. Dr. Daniel S. Tuttle, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Missouri, in a statement today declared that any plan which in any way would destroy the workings of Wall street is a crazy one and a monstrous absurdity.

"Notwithstanding the fact," said Dr. Tuttle, "that not a grain of corn or wheat is grown here, the sinews of war are furnished by the big people in downtown New York."

CITY OWNS STREETS OCCUPIED BY INMAN-POULSEN, SAYS COURT

Presiding Judge Gantenbein of the circuit court held this morning in passing upon the case of the city against the Inman-Poulsen Lumber company that the city has the right and title to the streets now occupied by the lumber concern. This is considered one of the most important suits started by the city, and will go to the supreme court, it is said.

The fight to have the lumber company acknowledge the city's ownership of the streets was started during the administration of ex-Mayor Lane. The present suit was filed by City Attorney Grant and Assistant City Attorney Benbow. Attorney George Shepherd represented the lumber company. The company has used part of the streets for the last 22 years, and the mill stands on some of them, while lumber sheds are spread over others.

Point in Issue.

One chief point upon which Judge Gantenbein found in favor of the city was the act of the lumber company on January 22, 1908, wherein it filed nine petitions with the city council for the vacation of the streets. The court held this was practically acknowledging the streets as public thoroughfares. The company contended that the plot containing the streets was not properly accepted by the city, and the streets were not legally dedicated. In that the streets were dedicated, in that the streets were not made in the proceedings that the streets were dedicated. In regard to this Judge Gantenbein ruled: "Dedication by express words is not necessary. If lots and blocks are sold by the owner with reference to a plat made by the owner, and such plat is recorded, it constitutes irrevocable dedication of the streets and alleys for the use of the public, and formal acceptance by the public is not necessary."

Company's Side.

The company contended that it had expended large sums of money in improving the mill and lumber sheds over the streets, and that in view of this situation the question of equitable estoppel should be invoked against the city. The judge held that the company is estopped in claiming any private ownership of the streets by reason of the acceptance of deeds of the property wherein the property is expressly described as being subject to the street easement; by the execution of mortgages with the same provision; by the failure to pay taxes on property in the streets; by paying special street assessments; by making application to the council, designating the property in dispute as streets, and asking to have them vacated.

City Attorney Grant says, in his brief on the case: "The city only desires, at the present time, that these defendants recognize its street rights by accepting the city permits to occupy the streets, until such time as the city wishes to open them. In the near future, it is plain from the sums demanded...

TAFT, RUSHING ARMY TO BORDER, GAVE DIAZ 6 DAYS IN WHICH TO BREAK SECRET PACT WITH JAPAN

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, April 10.—Not since rush orders were issued for American troops and warships to hasten to the Mexican frontier has there been so great interest excited as today when a Mexico City dispatch confirmed, circumstantially United Press reports which showed that Japan was the secret foe whose aggression were guarded against by that call to arms.

That, when a secret treaty with Japan was discovered to have been made by President Diaz, President Taft gave Mexico just six days to "back down," and that the proof of the compact was brought to Washington by Ambassador Wilson in actual photographs of parts of the secret treaty. These revelations which caused the greatest excitement, of course, no department officer will confirm the statements, and the president's advisers are mute. Little doubt is expressed, however, that the secret story of President Taft's remarkable mobilization has at last been fully set forth.

Photographed Treaty.

The Mexico City dispatch, which was sent to the New York Sun, related in detail that late in February Ambassador Wilson for a few hours obtained a copy of the secret Japanese-Mexican treaty and that he photographed certain parts of these provisions which caused the greatest excitement. Of course, no department officer will confirm the statements, and the president's advisers are mute. Little doubt is expressed, however, that the secret story of President Taft's remarkable mobilization has at last been fully set forth.

The clauses Wilson is said to have photographed set forth that Mexico and Japan had mutual interests in the Pacific. They did not stipulate for an offensive and defensive alliance, but diplomatically stated that it was to Japan's interest to protect Mexico from aggression. The treaty had been ratified by President Diaz and his cabinet.

Mobilization Ordered.

The very day after he obtained his photographs, the dispatch says, Ambassador Wilson started for Washington. When he arrived he went direct to the cabinet room, where President Taft and his advisers were in session.
